Six Killed As Airliner Strikes Wires And Crashes

Ten Others Hurt; Plane Falls While Trying to Land At Chicago Airport

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Six persons were killed tonight when a United Airlines "Mainliner" plunged into a vacant lot near the municipal airport. The plane was reported to have struck a power line on its way into a landing at the port. It burst into flames but the fire was quickly extinguished.

Ten others were injured, at least four of them critically, when the big ship crashed in murky weather.

The company reported that the dead were:

First Officer George S. Young, Chicago, the copilot.

S. W. Moore, U. S. Ordnance Engineers, Cleveland.

Miss Jane Selby, Chicago.

The list of injured was given as follows:

C. W. Manville, Cleveland, general sales manager of the National Refining Co., condition critical.

Paul Ryan, Cleveland, president National Refining Co., condition fair.

T. F. Paulson, Monigomery Ward & Co., Wilmette, Ill., condition critical.

Richard R. Petitt, 36, New York lawyer, son of Milton H. Petitt, of the Wardman Park Hotel, production expert with the War Department; condition good.

R. G. Woodbury, Denham Tire & Rubber Co., New York City, condition good.

Stewardess Florence Little, Chicago, condition fair.

George Haig, Sherwin-Williams Co., Cleveland, condition fair.

The ship fell in a vacant lot about one and a half blocks from the Municipal Airport.

At the time it was approaching the port for a landing.

First indications were that the liner was approximately 100 feet in the air when it plunged, apparently with one wing down. One wing struck the ground first and was partly sheared off. The plane then tilted up on its nose and fell back on its underside.

Snow was falling at the time and visibility was poor.

One wing of the plane apparently brushed a three-story apartment building across the street from the lot. Then it struck a steel power line post and dropped to earth. The nose was pushed back into the fuselage. The airliner came to rest a few feet from a row of small houses.

Motor Pins Pilot

George Anthony, who lives in the apartment building, said the structure was jarred. He rushed out, he added, and saw the airliner burning. The flames, fed by gasoline, were extinguished by firemen.

Mrs. Forest Reeder, who lived at the scene, said she heard "a commotion" in the air just before the plane knocked off part of a neighbor's roof and landed at the edge of her backyard.

"I rushed out in the yard and heard people moaning," she said. "A man was trying to get out of the

Late Gifts Raise Chest Fund To $1,921,240

Campaign Reaches 96.08 Pct. of Quota As $10,466 Is Netted

Gifts and pledges or additions to previous contributions from 1,717 givers yesterday swelled Community Chest receipts to $1,921,240, or 96.08 per cent of the $2,000,000 quota. New gifts and pledges totaled $10,466.

Meanwhile, William B. Marks, chairman of Area 3, Monigomery County, thanked workers "who have contributed so generously and willingly of their time and energy in making the . . . drive an outstanding success in Area 3."

Unit reports since close of the three-week drive Tuesday were Metropolitan, 5 givers of $705 to bring totals to 12,574 donors of $403,282, or 93.38 per cent; Group Solicitation, 539 givers of $2,005 for totals of 55,808 donors of $650,405, or 96.74 per cent; Maryland, 11 givers of $31 for totals of 5,174 donors of $34,415, or 93 per cent, and government, 1,162 contributors of $635 for totals of 134,555 donors of $824,057 or 96.95 per cent.

Among records reported at the last Chest luncheon Tuesday not previously printed were:

Divisions in the western area of the metropolitan unit and their chairmen were: Division 12, Mrs. John M. Sternhagen, 114.86 per cent; division 14, Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, 118.45 per cent; division 17, Mrs. Frederick E. Altemus, 102.60 per cent; division 18, Robert G. Wilson, 109.12 per

Proprietor Fires As Bandit Flees In Taxicab

A colored bandit last night took $30 from Clifford Johnson, 31, proprietor of a liquor store at 2139 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, and speeded away in a taxicab.

Johnson grabbed a gun from under the counter and emptied it at the cab. Ten minutes later a taxi with five bullet holes in it drew up before Second Precinct station, Nine-and-one-half and U Streets Northwest, and the driver informed police that he was mystified by the presence of the bullet holes.

Police held the driver for questioning.

Mellon Gallery Staff Moves In On Saturday

Transfer of Paintings To Begin in 2 Weeks; Opening in March

The full staff of the National Gallery of Art Saturday will begin moving into the big marble structure at Fourth Street and Constitution Avenue that was erected with $15,000,000 of the late Andrew Mellon's fortune.

In about two weeks, officials said yesterday, the first of Mellon's famed collection of old masters will be transferred from vaults in the Corcoran Gallery of Art at Seventeenth Street and New York Avenue Northwest to their permanent home. In the two months following, other prized paintings and works of sculpture comprising the Widener and Kress collections will be brought down from New York and Philadelphia.

Some time in March, the exact date has not yet been set, the gallery will have its formal opening.

To move in to offices in the gallery are the staffs of David E. Finley, director of the gallery; Harry A. McBride, the administrator; John Walker, chief curator; Macgill James, the assistant director, and Donald Shepard, secretary and treasurer.

Arrangements have been made for members of the Association of Federal Architects to be taken on a conducted tour of the building Saturday, December 14. The tour for the purpose of inspecting architectural design and uses of various materials, was arranged by Karl Hartig, association president, and Rudolph Dahl.

Roosevelt Visits Guantanamo Base

Copyright by New York Times

Havana, Dec. 4.—President Roosevelt this afternoon visited the Guantanamo Naval Station, according to a report reaching Havana. The cruiser Tuscaloosa arrived at the station at 3:30 p. m., it is said. The President immediately went ashore to inspect the work in progress there. Some 2,000 Cuban laborers cheered the President.

House Seeks Nondefense Spending Curb

Woodrum Proposes Joint Budget Group; Economy Pact Likely

Agreement on a rule of thumb for reducing nonmilitary appropriations in advance of any House action next session on appropriation bills appeared in prospect yesterday.

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, who touched off the discussion with proposals for a House Joint Budget Committee, was sounding out members on a definite economy policy as a prelude to any appropriations.

Regardless of the fate of Woodrum's joint committee proposals, leaders were of the opinion that ranking members of key House committees could get together on a general policy of holding down nondefense outlays for the duration of the emergency.

Indications were that no appropriations bills would be submitted to the House until after the January 20 inauguration date.

"If we can hold the ordinary appropriations down to what they were last year, we will have accomplished something," said Woodrum.

To effect any substantial saving below last year's regular appropriations, the Virginian said he believed some Government functions must be eliminated. But he conceded the difficulties of running any such plan through the House.

Give Britain All Possible Help, Ford Urges U. S.

Detroit, Dec. 4 (AP).—Henry Ford said today that if Great Britain needs money he favored "giving them all they want."

"It will end the war in a hurry," he said in a brief interview. "We did it before and we might as well do it again."

The automobile manufacturer was commenting on proposals for financial aid to Britain.

The American dollar, Ford went on, "is the best piece of paper on earth. To my knowledge it has bought a bushel of wheat for the last 66 years, and a bushel of wheat is the best dollar standard that I know of."

Ford, who 25 years ago today started a peace expedition to Europe in the Oscar II, said that he was convinced neither side would win the present war. "After this war is over," he said, "I see the people turning to the land—the source of all things needed for the peace and prosperity of any nation."

No More Snow—But It'll Be Colder

That snow you saw falling here last night was just a flurry or two, according to the weatherman, and there'll be no more of it today. It will be warmer today but colder again tonight.

Washington experienced its coldest weather of the fall season yesterday when the mercury fell to 18.5 degrees above zero. Freezing temperatures will hover around these parts for a couple of days.

The Light That Failed

'Cure' of 'I Am' Sect Useless, Says Widow of Blind Senator

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Dec. 4.—Efforts to restore the sight of Thomas D. Schall, blind senator from Minnesota, through application of teachings of the "I Am" movement were related in Federal Court today by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Huntley Schall.

She was one of the first of the Government's witnesses in the mail fraud trial of Mrs. Edna Ballard, widow of Guy W. Ballard, founder of the movement; their son, Donald Ballard, and eight others.

Mrs. Schall said she and the Senator first came in touch with the Ballards in 1935 when some publications of the movement were received at his office. Later, she testified, the Schalls attended meetings conducted by the Ballards.

"Mrs. Ballard told me that if I could visualize a ray of light coming down to his head and leaving it at right angles through his eyes, he would be cured," she asserted.

She said she had spent "many hundreds of dollars" in various cities in connection with the movement but was unable to cure the Senator's blindness, of 25 years' duration.

"Mrs. Ballard told me that if I looked into the atmosphere I could see particles of light sparkling.

Italians Fleeing Vital Base And Port as Greeks Close In; Jones Favors Loan to Britain

England Would Be 'Good Risk,' Federal Lending Chief Asserts

By George Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

The United States moved a step nearer to lending money to Great Britain yesterday when Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, said he considers the British "a good risk" and that he believes in making loans to good risks "when they need it for the proper purpose."

Jones, who controls billions of dollars, was one of the nine top Government figures who attended a closed meeting Tuesday, in Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's office, where Britain's shipping and financial problems were canvassed.

After his "good risk" remark at a press conference, Jones refused to amplify his views on the question of financing Britain's war effort.

However, when asked if he favored repeal of the Johnson Act, which forbids nongovernmental loans to nations in default on their debts to the United States, the Commerce Secretary and Loan Administrator replied:

"Not now."

Neutrality Act Real Bar

Officials say that it is the Neutrality Act—and not the Johnson Act—which is the real bar to Federal loans to Britain.

Meanwhile, Secretary Morgenthau fed speculation on possibilities of American financial aid to Britain by announcing that Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury, was coming to Washington to place the latest available information before the United States Treasury." He landed in New York from a clipper plane late yesterday.

Sir Frederick conferred with Morgenthau in July, 1940, and in September, 1937.

Would Total 7 Billions

Treasury officials, it is understood want to get a first-hand picture of British financial resources and spending plans. Jones told his press conference yesterday that he did not know the extent of British commitments, obligations or resources. It is explained that a Treasury report on British ability to pay might satisfy Congressmen who are urging an investigation of the subject.

Marriner Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, distributed transcripts of an off-the-record speech he made last Thursday in New York City. The text read:

"I believe that Congress, in considering all the interrelated elements of the monetary picture, should consider wether or not it would be wise to make credits available at low rates, as a means of aiding the British, taking as collateral their gold, as well as their security holdings here, in Canada, or elsewhere."

Gold Production Was $750,783,000

Total British gold production, in all the empire, last year was $750,783,000. Gold in the British banking system, if the $1,732,000,000 equalization fund be included, totals roughly $4,000,000,000. Their security holdings in the Western Hemisphere are believed to approach $2,000,000,000.

Thus the total credit that could be extended to Britain, under Eccles' suggestion, would be almost $7,000,000,000.

Eccles made the speech before the National Industrial Conference

Neediest Families

6 Children and Parents Face Separation Over Lack of Funds

By Lucia Giddens
Post Staff Writer

On top of all their other troubles, a jobless World War veteran's family of six children face the prospect of being scattered at Christmas—for lack of funds to hold the home together.

Help for them through The Post's neediest families fund would not only reunite them at Christmas but would give the father a chance to make his own way again.

Due to this same fund the future of Mrs. S. and her two sons, who were No. 5 among the neediest families, brightened yesterday. For a smiling quiet-voiced woman walked into the office of The Post, drew a $100 bill and a $20 bill out of her purse, and said: "I want to provide the whole amount needed for Family No. 5."

She would not give her name. All she would say was: "I myself have been fortunate in this past year. I would like to show my gratitude in this way."

Mrs. S., the head of family No. 5, is a widow with two little boys to support, and is able to hold only a meager part-time job because she is frail and in need of special medicines and a more nourishing diet. With a total of $120 assured for the next two months because of the spontaneous generosity of this anonymous giver, and with her worry relieved, there is

7 Armed Ships Sunk in Day, Nazis Claim

One U-Boat Credited With Direct Hits on 6; Bomber Gets Seventh

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Germany's accelerated sea warfare against Great Britain was credited by the high command tonight with sinking seven more armed merchant vessels of 36,400 tons.

One submarine scored direct hits on six of the ships, a communique said. A seventh was listed as the victim of a bomber which attacked a convoy in the Atlantic 250 miles off the Irish coast.

DNB, official news agency, said the bomber attack was made against a "long convoy" which headed for the Irish coast when the planes were sighted.

Since Monday the high command has claimed sinking of 25 British merchant ships aggregating 285,000 tons.

Berlin (Thursday), Dec. 5.—Since early last evening, it is reported here, German bombers have been under way in an attack on London and "a city in the Midlands." The British capital, it is stated, has been in a state of alarm for several hours past.

The first planes have already returned from the raids and report having bombed harbor districts in London.

The official German news agency last night issued a report on activities of the German air force in November. It is stated that 23 "large-scale attacks" were made in the month against British industrial centers and seaports.

In these attacks, the reports continued, over 5,000 tons of high-explosive bombs were dropped, in addition to countless incendiary

Bucharest, Dec. 4.—The frank statement that Germany expects smaller European nations to lend their armies, their territory and their transport facilities to the Axis for a spring offensive was made today by Curentul, the newspaper which frequently is called the Nazi mouthpiece in Rumania.

Rumanians in particular were exhorted to look seriously upon their promise of military assistance to the Axis—made, along with those of Hungary and Slovakia, in recent adherence to the "all for one and one for all" alliance among Berlin, Rome and Tokyo. Nazi troops are in Rumania.

'Peace Feelers' Reported Sent Out By Salazar

Vichy, France, Dec. 4.—Diplomatic circles reported tonight that Premier Antonio Oliveira Salazar of Portugal is sounding out the European belligerents on the chances of bringing about a negotiated peace which might be facilitated by President Roosevelt, the Pope and other neutrals.

These diplomats admitted, however, that beyond the "seasonal timeliness" of such peace soundings, there was nothing to pose new hopes of ending the war before either Britain or the Axis powers achieve a knockout victory.

The reports gained headway immediately after Pope Pius XII's appeal for a Christmas truce—an appeal which appeared today to have no chance of being heeded.

Life, Not Death, Its Mission

Roosevelt Sends Army Bomber On Mercy Flight for Chilean

By the Associated Press

Acting under orders from President Roosevelt, the Army put one of its giant four-motor bombers in readiness yesterday for an errand of mercy to Chile.

The great machine, designed to carry tons of death-dealing bombs over hundreds of miles, has been placed at the disposal of Senora Davila, stricken wife of Don Carlos Davila, former President of Chile. If doctors agree, it may be used to take her to her Santiago home.

Senora Davila has been ill for many months. Recently she underwent an operation in New York City. Several weeks have elapsed since then and her condition, it was reported here, has failed to improve. Attending physicians decided she should be returned to Chile where the climate might prove to be beneficial.

Chilean authorities took up the question of the journey with Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State. The matter then went to the President who ordered the bomber made available.

The flight will start at Mitchel Field, N. Y., today if Senora Davila's physicians approve of beginning the journey at that time.

General Advance

By the Associated Press

Athens (Thursday), Dec. 5.—The Greek high command announced today the capture of the strategic town of Premet, in south central Albania, with heavy Italian losses, and a Greek spokesman said the Fascist forces also were hastening northward from their vital southern Albanian bases of Porto Edda and Argirocastro.

(Premet is north of Argirocastro and a deep thrust in that quarter could make a northward Italian movement difficult.)

Italian counterattacks in some sectors were acknowledged, but the spokesman asserted they were all repelled "in whatever part of the front."

Summing up the situation, he said:

"Despite severe weather and difficult terrain our troops continue to advance and pursue the retreating enemy. At certain points fierce fighting is taking place, which has continued to our advantage."

Press Toward Tirana

The northern Greek wing was reported struggling on through icy mountains toward the Albanian capital of Tirana.

Early in the day the Greeks had declared the fall of Porto Edda and Argirocastro, an important supply center, was momentarily expected.

The spokesman, saying that Italian claims to have repulsed Greek attacks were "simply figments of the imagination for home consumption," asserted the efforts of the Fascist high command to reorganize its forces "must be considered as having failed and one should even foresee that the position of the Italian army will become more and more difficult."

Foe Routed There

"There are several important facts," he said in resume.

"The enemy in order to avoid encirclement is retreating. We have been able to observe his movements from Santi Quaranta (Porto Edda) toward Chimara, from Argirocastro toward Tepeleni, from Premet toward Klisoura.

"Generally the enemy is retreating from the places where he tried stubbornly to maintain himself. Regarding Premet there are two facts: First, on the Premet front the Italians have abandoned em-placements called the Lousnia and have fled toward the west. The second fact of great importance is that north of Premet we have succeeded in occupying the Frasheri Mountain range.

"This new success is in itself important in view of the fact that the Frasheri position is a junction of mountain chains and passes.

"It was necessary to dislodge the Italians and that was done after a battle which ended in an Italian rout.

"In the Pogradetz area (on the northern front) up to yesterday the enemy defended himself stubbornly on the heights northwest of Pogradetz, but today they were no longer able to continue resistance and we drove them out. The enemy sustained heavy losses, leaving many prisoners and war material including three guns in our hands."

As early as dawn this morning, the Greeks were officially declared to be in Porto Edda's outskirts and during the day their artillery went into action to cover the road running from that seaport northeast some 20 miles to Argirocastro. Italian resistance, which the Greek command already had officially characterized as failing, was said to have been thus even more nearly broken.

From the center of the front, Greek accounts told a similar story of success: It was said that new mountainous positions in that sector had been occupied and that Greek field pieces had been set up to shell the Italian emplacements.

From the far northern theater, it was declared that Fascist camps in the region of Elbasan had been assaulted by Greek bombers. There was no detailed description of the Greek movements save that the advance continued toward Elbasani and toward Tirana, some 15 miles farther to the northwest.

Push on in North

Belgrade, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Greek troops tonight drove within 15 miles of Italy's big base of Elbasan while another Hellenic force pushed upon the strategic point through the snow-covered Opar Mountains from the south, according to the frontier dispatches reaching here.

The Greeks appeared to be converging on Elbasan in a two-pronged drive threatening to cut the country in two and trap Italian forces in the south.

The Greeks took the village of Djura, 15 miles east of Elbasan, without meeting resistance, frontier dispatches reported. The Greeks were said to have driven north from Pogradetz to the bend of the Shkumbi River in the north, opening the way for a westward shot at Elbasan.

Another Greek column was reported moving north through the rugged Opar Mountains down the Devoli River.

On the central front the Greeks were reported to have moved north on the main road to Premet, covering about 5 miles and nearing the village of Barilona, about 4 miles south of Premet.

Albanian rebels numbering about 600 men were said in frontier dispatches to have descended from the hills in bitter cold last night and attacked Italian barracks at Tepelini with hand grenades. These reports said 97 rebels and 50 Italians were killed in a fierce two-hour fight.

From 2 a. m. until 9 a. m. today British planes were said to have heavily bombed the Elbasan road which was reported to have been unused since Monday. Heavy traffic was observed on the road during the week-end, frontier dispatches said.

Britain Good Risk, Loan Chief Says

Board. A New York newspaper yesterday published what purported to be an account of the address. Eccles called the newspaper's account "garbled." It had said he proposed lending $2,500,000,000 to Britain against a lien on their gold production for five years. Eccles said the text which he released was "full and complete." It made no mention of a definite credit or the five-year lien.

In another move for greater aid to Britain, Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, new chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that American munitions factories should work a 24-hour day and all arms production should go on a "war-time" basis.

As pressure appeared to be increasing in Washington to lend financial help to Britain, Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, author of the loan-ban statute that bears his name, came vigorously to its defense.

In Oakland, Calif., for a visit the veteran of World War Senate battles said he would rest up for a fight he expects to wage in Congress next year against any attempts to repeal the Johnson Act.

If the United States should lend more money to Britain, he said in an interview according to the Associated Press, and the war should end in England's favor, the loans would be the cause of "constant bickering" between the countries.

Secretary Morgenthau's talks with the British treasury official were expected to be of supreme importance to the future role the United States will play in the European war.

According to a brief Treasury announcement, the conversations would be a continuation of those held last year.

At tha itme, Morgenthau and Sir Frederick said they covered problems of foreign exchange, the effect of British war buying on the balance of payments, and the disposition of the $2,000,000,000 in frozen assets here of invaded European countries.

Behind the present official concern over British financial resources is the recent statement of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, that his country is runnnig out of cash balances.

American officials have held the view that British requests for American loans just now are premature. It is believed that Sir Frederick Phillips has been summoned to give a true picture of British financial needs.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, has pending in Congress a request for a study of British interests in this country.

Senator George, in talking to reporters, said:

"The supreme need at this time is to step up the whole defense program from a peace-time effort to a wartime effort. It is difficult for us to realize that we are not yet doing that. We do not seem to sense the pressing need for even greater and faster production than we are getting—and that is not a criticism of the defense program as far as it has gone."

The institution of a 24-hour day for the defense industries should be accompanied, he said, by action to "get rid of anything and everything that interferes with stepping up the program." He was referring to labor and management troubles which have caused interruptions in some instances. He made it plain, however, that he was not advocating nationalization of industry or any other form of Government control of private plants.

Treasury Emissary Lands

New York, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Sir Frederick Phillips, British undersecretary of the treasury, arrived from Lisbon on Pan American Airways' Dixie Clipper today to see United State Treasury officials about "lacks" in the British financial position.

His mission, he said, is to straighten out a "technical difficulty" in connection with the dollar reserve. He declined to comment when asked if he intends to seek credits for Great Britain in this country.

"The first thing to do," Sir Frederick told newspapermen, "is to discuss what are the present lacks in our financial position. I anticipate that they in Washington will want to know our present situation."

On his third wartime visit to Washington, Sir Frederick observed that since his last trip in July British purchases of supplies here have increased markedly.

"Of course," he added, "we can't go on paying out of our reserve funds forever. We are, in fact, ahead of deliveries at the present time and we hope to purchase a great deal more here."

Sir Frederick asserted that Britain's "financial position has never been stronger," explaining that he meant "our general financial position is extraordinarily good in the sense that we have had no inflationary rise in prices, despite the war."

"There is," he continued, "a technical exchange problem in finding all the dollars we need to purchase supplies in North America. We now have to buy many supplies in this country that we formerly bought from France or Scandinavia, exporting British gold to pay for them.

"The war is costing us $45,000,000 a day and we are able to stand that. The only technical difficulty is one of dollars, and I believe that we will be able to arrange that."

On the subject of recent heavy German bombings, Sir Frederick said he knew of many parts of London still untouched by bombs but personally knew little about the effect of bombings on Coventry and other industrial cities.

plane."

Other neighbors said two men staggered out of the plane and were the first rushed to the hospital.

The pilot's body, badly burned, was the last to be extricated from the ship. It had been pinned under a motor.

Witnesses said the stewardess was alive but unconscious when she was taken to a house to await an ambulance.

Mrs. Reeder placed the time of the accident at 5:48 p. m., C. S. T. (6:48 E. S. T.). Her electric clock stopped then.

Harold Crary, United Air Lines vice president, said that "a light snow was falling when the plane arrived and that it circled the airport for 28 minutes waiting for the traffic control department to give clearance into the airport.

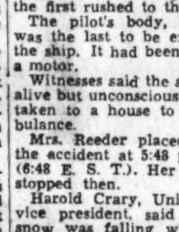
"Four other planes landed during the same period," Crary added. "There was a ceiling of 1,200 feet and the visibility was 1 mile."

The plane reported nothing unusual by radio between Cleveland and Chicago, Crary said. The plane was a substitute ship to which the passengers and crew transferred at Cleveland.

The airport dispatch tower radioed permission to Capt. Scott to take off at 3:08 p. m. (Eastern standard time). The plane which had flown the trip from New York taxied out over the field.

Former D. C. Man Was Flying to Ill Wife

The United Airlines plane that crashed in Chicago last night was carrying Keller F. Melton, 45, formerly of Washington, to the bedside of his wife who is critically ill with pneumonia in Chicago.



PETTIT

Melton, native of Alabama and son of Dr. Wightman Fletcher Melton, noted Atlanta educator and editor, was injured in the accident.

Another passenger on the airliner was Richard Pettit, 26, son of Melton H. Pettit, of the Wardman Park Hotel, dollar-a-year production expert attached to the office of Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, the Army's chief of ordnance. Pettit suffered rib fractures and backs sprain.

Melton lived in Washington for about a year before he was transferred to Chicago in 1937 as regional safety engineer for the Works Project Administration. He had resided at 2715 Courtland Place Northwest.

Melton returned to Washington a month ago on a special assignment in the office of Perry Fellows, WPA chief engineer. He was to have returned to Chicago today but left a day early when informed of his wife's illness. He flew from the Capital to Cleveland and transferred to the Mainliner there.

Melton has a son, Keller F. Melton, jr., 15. He was long a resident of Atlanta, where the family is widely known, and his brother, Oliver Quimby Melton, is publisher of the Griffin (Ga.) Daily News and past State commander of the American Legion.

Pettit, a lawyer with offices in New York City, was en route to California, where the family has a ranch. He had stopped off in Washington for a day's visit with his father. The elder Pettit formerly was general manager of the Nash Motor Co., and an official in several other manufacturing concerns.

Rumania Signs Pact to Let Nazis Develop Her Resources

Reich Pledges Technical Assistance In Return for Markets; Turkey, Britain Conclude New Trade Agreement

By the Associated Press

Germany and Great Britain strengthened their economic ties in southeastern Europe and the Near East yesterday. Germany signed trade and financial agreements with Rumania and Britain with Turkey.

Rumania, already in the Nazi military orbit, concluded a sweeping ten-year agreement with the Reich. The Rumanians contracted to improve markets in their state for German goods while the Germans promised credits, machines and technical aid for production.

The British agreement with Turkey is a complement of a trade and payments pact signed last February 3 between Britain and her nonbelligerent ally in the East.

Hungarian and Yugoslav trade delegations meanwhile headed for Moscow to place big orders with the Soviets.

The Yugoslavs expect to negotiate the purchase of from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 worth of wool. Hungary has a trade agreement with Russia envisioning a turnover of at least $3,700,000 annually.

Russia has placed orders for eight Danube River boats, several thousand railway car undercarriages and more than 2,000 Diesel engines with Hungary.

Anglo-Turkish Accord Reflects Axis Reverses

By James B. Reston.

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 4.—The British government announced tonight the signing of a new Anglo-Turkish financial agreement, which they hope will lead to a considerable increase in trade between the two countries.

The effect of the agreement is to bring Turkey more or less into the sterling area, and to encourage the Turks to stop trading with Germany.

Under the new agreement, which is complementary to a trade payments agreement signed last February, all persons in the United Kingdom making payments to persons in Turkey must pay sterling into a special account, and similarly payments for all exports from the United Kingdom must be met from a special Turkish account.

The terms of the agreement as issued by the treasury are, however, obscure. Nothing is said as to why it was felt necessary to complete this agreement now, after the detailed agreement of last February, and no indication is given of the state of Anglo-Turkish trade. The most interesting part of the agreement, however, is what was omitted, rather than what was included, in the communique.

When the original Anglo-Turkish agreement was signed it was gensend most of her surplus food and send moost of her surplus food and metals, particularly chromium, to the British Empire. Very little, if anything, was to go to Germany. That was one of the main reasons why the British and French agreed to give the Turks loans and credits amounting to £43,000,000 sterling. It was also understood the Turks should buy their arms and other war materials from Britain and France.

An entirely different situation developed, however. In the first place, when the Germans invaded Norway and then the Low Countries and France, Turkey began trading with Germany. Food was sent there, and German arms were purchased by the Turks—presumably to protect themselves against German attack.

This new agreement, therefore, is evidently designed to bring the Turks and the British back at least to the poiont where they agree to be each other's best customer.

The timing of the agreement is particularly interesting. So long as British supremacy in the Mediterranean was in doubt, nothing happened to indicate what game Turkey was playing. Although, under the Anglo-Turkish agreement, she should have come into the war both when Italy entered it and again when Mussolini attacked Greece, she did not do so. Now that Britain is beginning to succeed in the Mediterranean, however, she is taking a much more pro-British attitude.

Nazis Expect Lion's Share Of Rumania's Resources

Berlin, Dec. 4.—An agreement providing for extensive German credits to Rumania to enable that country successfully to execute its ten-year economic plan, has been signed in Berlin, it was revealed here tonight.

In its entirety, this agreement forecasts exploitation of Rumanian resources on a scale which that country has never known before. It leaves little doubt that Rumania, in the "new order," economically will be completely aligned with Germany, and that the greater part of her resources will be at Germany's disposal.

Germany agrees to give Rumania financial, material and moral assistance on the basis of long-term credits, and further to provide Rumania with experts in agricultural, industrial, financial and other fields.

The agreeement provides Rumania with the fullest measure of German cooperation and gives her assurance that "the Reich will remain an assured market for Rumanian products at fair prices, independent of economic crises."

For the duration of the Rumanian 10-year plan the Reich "grants extensive long-term credits on special conditions." What these conditions are remains unspecified, but it is implied that they include a Rumanian obligation to switch the bulk of her trade to Germany, for it is stated that while the German market will be assured for Rumanian goods, "the importance of the Rumanian market for trade with Germany will be further increased."

Germany obligates herself to deliver equipment and machinery needed by Rumania, to cooperate in furthering industrial production and to place technical and financial support at Rumania's disposal, along with technicians in various fields.

Rumania undertakes to enlarge her transport facilities, including railroads and highways as well as oil pipelines. Germany will deliver the necessary equipment within limits of the long-term credits.

In this regard it is interesting to note that Rumania today announced that the state is taking over all existing pipelines and that henceforth construction and exploitation of new pipelines can be effected only by the state.

Germany agrees to furnish capital for furthering Rumanian industry and its banking and credit system, "on the basis of cooperation in the field of private enterprise." It is stipulated that such advances will be made above and beyond the long-term credits.

Finally, both governments "note with satisfaction that German-Rumanian cooperation has already begun in all fields," and record, in conclusion, their determination "to assure the fruitful continuation of this cooperation in the interest of both nations."

Syria Glad Death KeptChiappe From Power There

Copyright by New York Times

Haifa, Palestine, Dec. 4.—Travelers arriving here from Syria report a widespread feeling of relief among the local and native populace because of the death of Jean Chiappe, who had been French high commissioner.

His death provides a period of grace before appointment of a successor to Gabriel Puaux, who it is widely believed would have broken relations entirely with Vichy and initiated his own policy in Syria, had not personal reasons been involved. He feared the Germans would have executed his only son, who has been a prisoner of war since the collapse of France.

Chiappe's mission was understood to be to establish a reign of terror in Syria, directed not only against French sympathizers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the "Free French" movement, but also against the Arabs.

Inside Story Told of Nazi Prison Hells

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Dec. 4.—A young physician who spent four months in French internment camps this year declared here today that 12 of his fellow inmates committed suicide while being transferred in cattle cars from one camp to another.

Describing conditions in the camps as "more than horrible," Dr. Rene Hartogs, who arrived from Lisbon on the Portuguese liner Nyassa, said that the interned refugees had been deprived of food, water and sanitary facilities while locked in the cars for as long as four days at a time. Fifty refugees were herded into each car, he said, and cries for assistance were of no avail during the journey.

Five of them committed suicide during a three-day ride from the camp at St. Livrade to another at Villemur, he said. While traveling from Villemur to the camp at St. Cyprien, a journey of four days, seven more ended their lives by slashing their wrists, he added. Their bodies remained in the cars until the destinations were reached, since it was impossible to open the doors or obtain aid from outside, Dr. Hartogs declared.

Flees Before Nazis

Forced to give us his position as medical adviser at the psycho-technical laboratories of the Siemens Co., the large electrical trust at Frankfurt, Germany, in 1933, when anti-Semitic decrees were enacted there, Dr. Hartogs went to Belgium. He taught medicine and social psychology at the Social Science School of Brussels and Antwerp until the Nazi invasion of Belgium, when he and his wife, who accompanied hi mhere, were again forced to leave their home.

After they entered France, Mrs. Hartogs, her father, mother and two younger sisters were separted from Dr. Hartogs and were unable to rejoin him until they met in Portugal last month. He was interned in July. He served as physician at each of the three camps in which he was interned, he said, although no medical instruments or supplies were on hand.

Nearly all of the 15,000 inmates of one camp were stricken with cholera, including himself, and about 500 died from it, Dr. Hartogs related. He told of many cases of typhoid at the camp and said that there were a number of diabetics whose sufferings were intense because they were unable to obtain insulin treatments. Dental work at St. Cyprien was performed with crude instruments formed from barbed wire, he said.

No Shovels to Dig Graves

"There were no shovels to dig graves with, no coffins to bury the bodies in. We dug shallow graves with our hands and cremated those we could."

The Nyassa, which operated as the Bulow in the Hamburg-American service and was sold to Portuguese interests 24 years ago, carried 458 passengers, including refugees from nearly every country on the continent.

The 8,980-ton ship left Lisbon on November 23. Monday her steering gear machinery became frozen in subzero weather, and she was steered by hand on the poop deck by telephonic communication from the bridge for the remainder of the trip.

Credits to Britain Favored by Eccles

Backs Plan as Curb On U. S. Inflation Due to Gold Hoard

By the United Press

Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board revealed last night that he had suggested before a New York audience last week the advisability of Congressional consideration of credits to Great Britain as a means of combatting threatened credit inflation resulting from excess monetary reserves.

He made public the text of his remarks before the National Industrial Conference Board with an explanatory note saying that his action was prompted by "incorrect and misleading" accounts of his speech.

An article printed first in a New York newspaper yesterday quoted Eccles as proposing a $2,500,000,000 loan to Great Britain secured by a lien on the empire's gold production for five years. Eccles' text, which he said was a "full and complete" one, made no mention of a definite credit or of the five-year gold lien.

Gold As Inflation Threat

"I believe that Congress, in considering all the interrelated elements of the monetary picture, should consider whether or not it would be wise to make credits available at low rates, as a means of aiding the British, taking as a collateral their gold, as well as their security holdings here, in Canada, or elsewhere, rather than to continue to accumulate more and more of the world's gold supply at the cost of inflating our banking and credit structure," the text read.

This proposal was embraced in a program suggested by Eccles for a sweeping revision of the New Deal's depression-founded monetary policies—a program be urged to fit conditions created by the multibillion dollar defense drive and steadily mounting excess banking reserves. Others included:

1. Creation of an economic climate that will give the greatest possible encouragement to private initiative and private enterprise consistent with orderly and continuous national progress.

Avoidance of Strikes

2. Avoidance of strikes and lockouts that interrupt the flow of production, and price and wage policies that induce forward buying and inventory bulges due to fear of higher prices.

3. Reduction of excess reserves by increasing requirements of all banks of deposit, whether they are members of the Federal Reserve System or not.

4. Arrangements to absorb future gold and silver acquisitions that add now to excess reserves.

5. Exemption of deposits held with reserve banks and vault cash held by banks from assessments for Federal deposit insurance.

6. Discourage the purchase of Government securities by banks because this policy creates new deposits.

7. Adaption of longer-term Government issues to the requirements of insurance companies, savings banks and individual or institutional investors.

End Foreign Silver Buying

8. Discontinuance of purchases of foreign silver.

9. Cancellation of $1,500,000,000 of seigniorage from silver purchases which could be used for issuance of additional silver certificates.

10. Scrapping of the authority empowering the President to issue $5,000,000,000 in greenbacks.

11. Revision of the tax structure with higher excess profits and gift tax rates and other changes looking toward ultimate balancing of the Federal budget.

12. Elimination of tax-free securities.

13. Sale of modified "baby" bonds to the mass of the population which, if sold after the defense program is completed, would serve as a post-defense cushion against depression.

Eccles warned that not only do the current excess reserves, the highest in United States history, afford an opportunity for over-expansion, but they tend to depress the interest rate structure to "excessively low levels."

Not Such "Low Rates"

Generally regarded as one of the chief proponents of the New Deal's "easy money" policy, Eccles said he favored it only in a period of "under-employment."

"I have never favored artifically low rates such as have been brought about through an uncontrolled surplus of excess reserves," he said. "No such oversupply of excess reserves is necessary to carry out a policy of monetary encouragement to business recovery."

Eccles declared that the time has come to close the gap between income and outgo "as far as can be done without either confiscatory taxation or the retarding of private enterprise." As long as the Government continues to increase its total expenditures, he said, these outlays can not be placed on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"It would not be wise to try to put sufficiently high rates into effect to close the gap entirely until we have reached a condition of full production and employment," he said. "But at that time, the tax system in effect should be adequate to bring about the balancing of the Federal budget."

Contributors In Campaign Warned to File

Maurice M. Milligan, special assistant to the Attorney General, said yesterday that persons who contributed $50 or more to political campaigns, except directly to a political committee, and their contribution was used "to influence the election in two or more States," would be required to file a statement with the House of Representatives.

"Of course," Milligan said in a statement, "anyone who made a campaign contribution to a political party or committee does not have to make a report. That must be done by the party or committee itself. But there are so many people in the last campaign who personally paid for newspaper advertisements, radio broadcasts, pamphlets, etc., that I think it is only fair to warn them that the law requires an itemized statement from them on their expenditures if the money was used to influence the election in two or more States."

Milligan said that expenditures in the recent national campaign must be reported by December 30.

His statement cited a provision of the Corrupt Practices Act requiring the reports, and added:

"The investigation (by a Federal grand jury in the District of Columbia) is directed principally against the alleged excessive expenditure of money in the campaign in violation of the Hatch Act, and we do not want to be forced to prosecute a lot of people who may have spent $50 or $100, or even $1,000, but who are unaware of their duty under the law to report it."

Quorum Lack Defers Action On Mine Bill

Only 7 of Necessary 11 Attend Meeting of House Committee

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The long-disputed Federal mine inspection bill—promoted by John L. Lewis and indorsed by President Roosevelt—remained buried yesterday as the House Mining Committee met to reconsider the measure but failed to collect a quorum.

Only seven of the necessary 11 committee members showed up at a meeting called on short notice by Chairman Joe L. Smith, of West Virginia. After waiting an hour, Smith said he would make another attempt to get the committee together before Congress quits for the Christmas holidays.

The bill, which would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to make annual inspections and investigations in coal mines, has been tied up in committee since its passage by the Senate last January.

Lewis Asks End to "Butchery"

On Tuesday Lewis reiterated his indorsement of the bill in a statement to members of Congress. Pointing to the death last week of 31 men in the Cadiz, Ohio, explosion, he urged the House "to stop this butchery of Americans who work in coal mines." Lewis declared that in the first 11 months of 1940, five major mine explosions have cost the lives of 267 men.

"The only decent thing the committee can do is to pass this bill," commented John T. Jones, director of Labor's Non-Partisan League, when he heard of the committee's failure to act.

Of four committee members who had been expected to appear yesterday, two were said to be out of town and the other two told The Post they had not been informed of the meeting in time to attend.

Mr. Roosevelt's indorsed the mine inspection bill October 24, the day before Lewis made his speech in support of Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee. In a letter to House Majority Leader John McCormack, the President wrote that the bill was an important step toward protection of miners and deserved "favorable action."

It was reported that one of the reasons for Lewis' swing away from the Democrats had been the alleged failure of the Administration to press for action on the Federal mine inspection measure.

Spokesmen for the United Mine Workers have contended that the bill would cut the number of mine-accident fatalities because of the purported inadequacy of some State inspection laws.

The seven Representtves who answered the committee roll call yesterday were Chairman Smith and Representatives Secrest, of Ohio; Moser, of Pennsylvania; Beckworth, of Texas; Cravens, of Arkansas, Democrats, and Landis, of Indiana, and Fenton, of Pennsylvania, Republicans.

The Federal Diary

Renewal of Reorganization Bill Almost Certain to Be Sought

By Edward Ryan

Renewal of the bitterly contested Reorganization Act, under which the Government has been giving its own administrative machinery a thorough overhauling during the past 18 months, is almost certain to be sought early in the next session of Congress, it was learned yesterday.

Key to the Administration's new reorganization plans is the fact that the present act expires on January 21, day after the President's inauguration—any further transfers or mergers of Government agencies under the act must be submitted to Congress before that date.

The move now believed most likely to result from the act's approaching expiration is a bid from President Roosevelt for Congress to extend the present deadline date, without changing the form of the act, according to key Government management officials.

Also believed certain, these officials said, is that the President does not now plan to offer Congress, before January 21, any specific new proposals for shifting Federal agencies or their functions under the present act, to supplement the five merger plans already in operation.

Still wide open, however, is the question of whether the President may decide to seek, not simply renewal of the act, but an extension of its provisions to permit a more complete consolidation of Government agencies than the present law allows. This law specifically exempted 21 Federal agencies and bureaus from any of the general reorganization moves it authorized.

The question of broadening the reorganization law, possibly to cover some of the exempted agencies, has been discussed in Administration circles, it was reported, but so far only the "fringes" of the question have been explored and no detailed program on this line has been developed.

It was around some of the exempt agencies, including the General Accounting Office and Civil Service Commission, that the sharpest political skirmishing centered during the two years the reorganization plan was en route through Congress. As a result of their exemption, the Administration is still far from having what they originally sought to get through the Reorganization Act.

Starter for the original plan was the report of the President's committee on administrative management, headed by Louis Brownlow. Out of the committee's five major proposals, two have been carried out nearly in full, two others in part, and the fifth is still out of sight.

These, in outline, are the proposals and the results:

The committee called for expanding the White House staff so that the President could have a sufficient group of assistants in his own office to keep him in closer and easier touch with the affairs of administration and to make a speedier clearance of the knowledge needed for executive decision. That has been done, the White House staff has been expanded, and the Reorganization Act gave the President a crew of six $10,000-a-year administrative assistants.

The committee urged strengthening and developing the managerial agencies of the Government, particularly those dealing with the budget, efficiency research, personnel and planning, as management arms of the Chief Executive. That, too, has been done—the first reorganization plan under the act placed the Budget Bureau, and the National Resources Board, the planning branch, into the President's executive office, while one administrative assistant was assigned to be liaison officer for Government personnel work.

The committee called for extending the merit system, upward, outward, and downward, a move now possible under the newly-approved Ramspeck Civil Service Bill. They also urged reorganizing the Civil Service System as a part of management under a single administrator, with a 7-member civil service board to be "watch dog" of the merit system, and this proposal was turned down by Congress.

The committee advised the overhauling of the 100 Federal independent agencies, administrations authorities, boards and commissions, and the placing of them by executive order in 1 of 12 major departments (with the list of departments to include two new ones—Social Welfare and Public Works). On this, the five reorganization plans adopted since the act was approved, have reduced the number of agency heads reporting to the President to about 40. Many of them were grouped into the three new units—Federal Security, Federal Works and Federal Loan Agencies. Others, like the Farm Credit Administration and Civil Aeronautics Authority, went into existing departments.

M. P. Suggests U. S. Navy Help Guard Convoys

British Can't Bear War Burden Alone, Commons Told

By the Associated Press

London, Dec. 4.—The British House of Commons heard an unofficial suggestion today that the government appeal to the United States for warships to guard Britain's harried Atlantic convoys and for dollar credits to pay for American supplies.

Ian Campbell Hannah, Conservative member of Parliament and an educator who taught church history between 1915 and 1925 at Oberlin College, Ohio, urged in the question period that the United States "help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own navy." Moreover, he said, Britain should tell Washington candidly, "we want financial help."

"I do not see how this nation can bear the tremendous burdens of carrying on a great war which, after all, if we see it rightly, is just as much to the benefit of America as for our own empire," said Hannah.

Government spokesmen avoided a direct reply to Hannah, who reflected the nation's concern over U-boat, submarine and raider attacks on Britain's Atlantic shipping, in the face of a deficiency of warship protection for convoys.

R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, replying to another query, made the stock statement that Britain is maintaining close contact with the United States "on all matters of common interest" in the Pacific; Clement R. Attlee, the deputy leader, reiterated assurances that Britain did not intend to "barter the sovereignty of any British territory" in the Western Hemisphere for American war help.

The minister of economic warfare, Hugh Dalton, said there had been negotiations with the United States over Britain's desire for "a reservation of United States surpluses for the allies."

Five Firms Bid On 3d Set of Locks At Panama Canal

Five firms submitted bids yesterday on the job of excavating a third set of locks at the Panama Canal which eventually will cost $277,000,000.

Intensive work on the new bombproof pass for warships is to start in a few weeks, officials said. Preliminary surveys already have been made.

The first large scale excavation for the locks is to start 30 days after a contract is awarded. Contractors bid on excavation of 12,000,000 cubic yards to be completed in 500 days. Officials said additional bids would be asked from time to time on further excavation and other phases of the undertaking, for which Congress provided an initial $99,000,000 appropriation.

Family Faced With Separation

every prospect that her health can be built up and she can be self-supporting again.

Other Post readers have similar opportunities to brighten the future of other needy families, by sending the amounts needed. But any contribution—however small—will do much to help relieve the plight of these families.

Among organizations which have already planned to aid The Post's Neediest Families Fund, the Welfare Association of the General Accounting Office will turn over to the fund the contributions made at its anual Christmas party December 23 at 2400 Sixteenth Street Northwest. Mrs. Mary Bowen, its secretary, said yesterday.

The problems in two more families are presented today. Contributions for them should be sent to The Post's fund as soon as possible.

Family No. 7.

A World War veteran, Mr. J., lost his job, and during the period of unemployment, the family—husband, wife and six children—were evicted from their home.

Instead of appealing to any agency for help they tried to make their own adjustment. They stored their furniture in a shed and moved into the already overcrowded home of the wife's sister. The two families, a total of 15 persons, were living in five rooms—with the only income the $65 monthly wage of the sister's husband.

Feeling that he could not be such a burden on his wife's relatives, Mr. J. left his family there and went to live with his brother. The brother wanted to help, but he has heavy family responsibilities and his own income is meager. Mr. J.'s health, affected by worry and deprivation, needs building up before he will be able again to find and hold a job.

More trouble developed when the 16-year-old daughter rebelled at the lack of a suitable home at which her boy friend could call. She disappeared and a week later was found living in the boy friend's home, under conditions below the standards of her own family, even in their crowded quarters.

This family is now separated, discouraged, in danger of increasing illness. With $175, rent and food and other expenses could be guaranteed for several months, so that the family could be reunited in one home, while the father finds employment.

Case certified and help administered by American Legion welfare department. Amount needed: $175.

Family No. 8

Mr. B walks the streets daily, looking for work. With the termination of his WPA project in August, he was laid off, but has placed application at numerous firms. At one of them he was told that he has a chance of being called to work within the next few months.

But in the meantime—what? Mrs. B and the five children are almost as worried as he over what will become of them.

Mr. B. is handicapped because he has no upper teeth, and in order to make a more presentable appearance on a job, he needs new plates. Mrs. B. has been subject to colds and anemia, and the clinic has advised her to have her teeth extracted and plates made.

The older children attend school regularly and take part in community and church activities, but they need milk and other nourishing food in order to keep up their health and energy.

For the dental plates, for milk and other urgent needs of the family, a total of $100 is required for this family for the next few months.

Case certified and help administered by Salvation Army. Amount needed: $100.

These families are not eligible for public relief, and the funds of the various social agencies are severely limited, insufficient to meet all the demands made upon them.

Each one of the 50 neediest families was selected by one of the five following agencies: Family Service Association, Catholic Charities, American Legion welfare department, Salvation Army and Bureau of Rehabilitation. These agencies, which are members of the Community Chest and are supported by Chest funds, carry all costs of administering The Post's fund for the neediest families.

Citizens Committee Head Lauds Post Fund

Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman, Citizens Christmas Committee for the District, says:

"The Washington Post, in making an appeal for the 50 neediest families, is offering to the people of Washington an opportunity to help these families over a period of crisis when unemployment, illness or other difficulties make the future look bleak. Hope for the future comes as a result of the money contributed through The Post.

"All of these families have been self-supporting in the past, and will be able to carry on again if timely help can be given to them. The constructive effect of this kind of giving lasts far beyond Christmas day."

Price Conspiracies On Nitrates Charged

Indictments Name 11 Corporations And 32 Individuals

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 4—An international chain of conspiracies to control and monopolize the price and production of nitrates was charged today against 11 corporations and 32 individuals.

The allegations were set forth in a series of six Federal grand jury indictments, based on antitrust laws, which were returned September 1, 1939, and then sealed. The alleged conspiracies date back to 1920 and up to and including September 3, 1939.

Why the indictments remained unopened for 15 months was not disclosed. The indictments were based partly, the anti-trust division of the attorney general's office said, on an investigation of fertilizers which started in 1938.

The indictments charged that the alleged conspiracies existed through restrictive and secret contracts with producers and marketers of various nitrates throughout the world, including such countries as Canada, England, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, Poland, Belgium, Japan and Chile.

The nitrates which the defendants allegedly conspired to control are used as fertilizers in agriculture, steel mill operations, gas plants, water works and other industries.

Allied Chemical Denies Charges

Named in the indictments were the following corporations: Allied Chemical and Dye Co., E. I. du Point De Nemours and Co., the Barrett Co., Semet-Solvay Co., Imperial Chemical Industries (N. Y.) Ltd., Anglo-Chilean Nitrate Corp. (Chile), Lautaro Nitrate Co. Ltd. (Great Britain), Chilean Nitrate Sales Corp., Synthetic Nitrogen Products Corp., Chilean Nitrate and Iodine Sales Corp. (Chile), all with headquarters in New York, and the Solvay Process Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

Most of the individuals named are officers and employes of the defendant corporations. Some of the individual and corporate defendants were named in at least two indictments.

One indictment named only Rudolph Ilgner, not otherwise identified, on a charge of obstructing justice during the grand jury investigations by allegedly ordering the destruction of the books and records of Chemnyco, Inc., to prevent their falling into the hands of the grand jury.

Allied Chemical and its subsidiaries, Barrett, Semet Solvay, and Solvay Process, issued a statement denying charges against them.

Chilean Nitrate Sales also issued a statement denying "in every respect the reported charges made against it . . ."

Quasi-Governmental Company

Medley G. B. Whelpley, president of Anglo-Chilean Nitrate and the Lautaro Nitrate, said in a statement that the two companies were engaged solely in production and under Chilean law the export was handled exclusively by the Chilean Nitrate & Iodine Sales Corporation, "which is a quasi-governmental instrument of the Chilean government."

He said he understood that the indictments with respect to these companies "relate to arrangements made several years ago under auspices of the Chilean government, between the Chilean Nitrate & Sales Corporation and the governments and nitrate producers of England, Germany, Denmark, France, Italy and other European producing companies."

"These agreements," he added, "expressly exclude from their terms and penalties all markets within the United States and its territories and possessions. . . . I can not believe, however, that it is the intention of these indictments to attempt to give extraterritorial effect to the anti-trust laws of the United States."

The first indictment, which named 42 foreign corporations and 63 individuals as coconspirators in addition to those indicted, charged conspiracy to fix prices and control production and marketing of fertilizer nitrogen of all types; the second, conspiracy to restrain trade and fix prices in ammonia solutions; the third, a similar conspiracy in the domestic import trade of sulphate of ammonia.

More Indictments Expected

The fourth related to similar charges of restraint and monopoly in sulphate of ammonia and the fifth, which named 28 coconspirators in addition to those indicted, dealt with an alleged conspiracy to restrain trade, fix prices and limit competition in Chilean natural nitrate to enable American processed nitrate to compete.

In Washington, Justice Department officials said concerning the delay in opening the indictments that the original intention was to make public at one time all the results of the Nation-wide investigation of the fertilizer industry. Plans were changed, however, after a settlement was reached some weeks ago which resulted in dismissing charges involving the potash industry.

Additional indictments are expected in the fertilizer industry, an official said, but it was decided not to wait until they were ready before opening the charges brought in the nitrogen phase.

Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the anti-trust division, issued a statement in which he said that the department's investigation did not "involve those activities of the defendants that are directly related to the national defense."

DuPont Issues Denial

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 4 (AP).—W. S. Carpenter, jr., president of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co, said in a statement today that "we have not seen the indictments; therefore, we cannot comment on their content other than to deny any violation of law."

Crowd Sees Pretty Wife Shot to Death

MRS. NADYNE MAAS

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 4.—The court-bound marriage troubles of a pretty young divorcee and a middle-aged former life guard were ended today in violent death for Mrs. Nadyne Heady Maas and arrest of her estranged husband, John, on a murder charge.

In view of Christmas shoppers and store workers, a man pumped six bullets at short range into the slender brunette's body and fled. A few minutes later, he shot a policeman in the hand as he out-raced pursuers.

About an hour after the shooting—in the heart of the downtown shopping district—Maas, outdoor swimming pool proprietor and son of a prominent Louisville undertaker, surrendered to police. He was accompanied by his brother, Stanley.

In an interview at police headquarters, the 40-year-old, well-dressed Maas told a Times reporter: "I didn't mean to shoot her, . . . She wouldn't come back with me and I still loved her. . . .

"Before we were married, we agreed she could have a divorce any time she wanted one if the marriage turned out badly. About two weeks after we were married she told me she wanted to return to her first husband."

Court records showed Maas filed suit for divorce September 27. The couple were married September 5, shortly after Mrs. Maas' divorce from her first husband. Maas also had been married previously and is the father of two children, a boy, 6, and girl, 4.

Mrs. Maas, 21, wounded four times in the chest and thrice in her legs was dead upon arrival at the City Hospital.

Science Answers the Call

U. S. Inventors Held Capable Of Dulling the 'Ax' in the Axis

By Dr. Charles F. Kettering.
Chairman, National Defense Inventors Council
Copyright International News Service

Science and inventions have played a tremendous part in the frightful grab for power now being made by European dictators.

New techniques and implements of warfare leveled the defenses of proud nations with breath-taking speed.

I should like, however, to analyze this so-called new type of warfare. It is dependent on fast opening thrusts, fan wise spreads behind enemy lines of communication and supply bases and other factors in which the time element is of paramount importance. No longer do millions of men entrench themselves behind barbed wire fortifications pounding away at each other for months at a time in an attempt to establish a weakness on the part of the opposition.

Speed is now the watchword in modern warfare. Let me analyze some of the basic needs for a campaign of this nature. Among the more important, I would list radio communications; light, powerful, internal combustion engines for use in aeroplanes and tanks and high-test gasoline needed for their operation.

Although this is not common knowledge, these materials or devices were either invented or brought to their peak of efficiency by inventors of our own country. They have been "borrowed" for use in the war of aggression now raging.

It is my opinion that the inventors of this country can so improve on war materials now being used by dictators that we will become absolutely impregnable.

Outstanding Men Are Legion

For instance, among the outstanding men now in the field of radio is Dr. William D. Coolidge, director of General Electric Research Laboratories. Dr. Coolidge is a member of the Commerce Department's inventors' council and has done as much to improve radio communications as any man in the world. Included in his accomplishments is the invention of the radio tube, which lifted the device from a toy to a great industrial unit of the Nation's economy.

If aggressors find they must use Dr. Coolidge's inventions, there remains but one thing for him to do. That is to again call on his genius and improve radio communications to such a degree that no nation in the world will possess any electrical communication system comparable to our own.

The same is true with internal-combustion motors. Fred M. Zeder, vice chairman of the Chrysler Corporation and director of their engineering policy, is also a council member. He and other outstanding men in this field provide the United States with such engines as are beyond the dreams of any other nation.

Dr. Thomas D. Midgley, vice president of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, is the inventor of the process by which high-test gasoline is obtained. He and his associates will no doubt provide this country with new and improved fuels superior to those of any nation which might attack us in the future.

So it goes. George Baekeland is a council member. He is one of the foremost pioneers in the field of plastics and if synthetic materials are to play a part in modern warfare, you may be sure that the United States will have better plastics than anybody else.

Another outstanding council member is Dr. Fin Sparre, director of development of the duPont corpooration. If a time ever comes when our chemical warfare must be compared with that of an aggressor, you may rest assured that ours will be superior. Other council members are equally outstanding.

Conway P. Coe, United States Patent commissioner; Lawrence Langer, well-known patent lawyer; Dr. Webster N. Jones, dean of engineering, Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. Frderick M. Feiker, dean of engineering, George Washington University; Watson Davis, director of science service; Gen. J. O. Maubargne, United States Army, and Admiral Harold G. Bowen, United States Navy, are all prominent in their chosen fields.

This country possesses the greatest industrial machinery ever known to the world. Its citizens invented the internal combustion machine, the submarine, the machine gun, the automobile and the aeroplane. It was the first nation to put mass production on an operative basis.

The initiative that conquered the frontiers is not dead. Our inventors and scientists daily conquer new frontiers.

It is my sincere belief that should a challenge, not to be denied, be flung at this peace-loving democracy the challenger will find us ready.

Hitler Coup Seen In Balkan Moves

Rumored Visit of Yugoslav Head of State To Berlin, Von Ribbentrop's Return, Hint At Attempt to Entice Belgrade Into Axis

By Daniel Brigham

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 4.—Indications of the preparation of another "Hitler Saturday"—or at least an eventful week-end—are seen in some foreign circles here tonight in connection with the return of German Minister von Ribbontrop from a week's vacation in Salzburg, the rumored visit of the Yugoslav head of state to Berlin during the last few days, and the plans of Hungarian Foreign Minister Csaky to visit Belgrade.

That Von Ribbentrop, who has doubtlessly been overworked during the last few weeks, should decide to take a rest, following the stalemate in Bulgaria, is not surprising. But that he should have received the German minister to Yugoslavia during the "vacation," as is believed in some quarters here, has led to some suspicion.

Belgrade Parley Seen

Negotiations between Budapest and Belgrade for conclusion of a "pact of eternal friendship" have now reached the point where it is felt that the two foreign ministers will meet—probably in Belgrade—in the very near future. But that this meeting should preclude further negotiations which Hungary, at the request of Berlin, is known to be making to entice Yugoslavia into the Axis, is not likely.

The Tribune de Geneve, intimates that the impression is gaining ground in Berlin that Yugoslavia will adhere to the pact before Bulgaria does. This is possible for two reasons: First, Russia's strong intimation she did not thoroughly approve such adherence, and secondly, Bulgaria's disinclination to become the battleground for a conflict between the Axis and Turkey.

As for the rumored peregrinations of the head of the Yugoslav government, nothing certain is known. Some foreign dispatches announced that Yugoslav Premier Cvetkovitc was in Berlin over the week-end, while others claimed it was Foreign Minister Cincar-Markovitc. There may well have been no Yugoslav statesman in the German capital over the week-end at all. But one thing is certain, namely, that active contact has been maintained during the last few days between Berlin and Belgrade.

Resistance Planned

However, Yugoslav adherence to the tripartite pact, it is felt, would lead to internal conflict. The military, which opposes any rapprochement with the Axis, has been discreetly making preparations to resist any invasion or trans-shipment of foreign troops through Yugoslavia.

Were Hungary to extend her demands for territorial expansion at the expense of Yugo-Slavia immediately, and were that country backed by Germany's military might, the northern provinces of Slovenia and Croatia would almost certainly be invaded; and this fact has strengthened the position of the partisans of political expediency.

In any case, the Axis gesture in letting Hungary do its negotiating with Yugo-Slovia was a particularly clever move, and one which, it is felt, bears watching.

Studio May Give 'Oomph' in Salary

who has been on a "salary strike" for four months, may be about ready to go back to work at more than double or almost triple her present pay. She walked out on Warner Brothers, demanded her salary of $600 a week be raised to $2,000. A friend said that the redheaded film actress might announce a settlement of the dispute at a party at her Hollywood home to which newspapermen have been invited to "drop in." The friend said Ann would return to work for $1,500 a week with permission to make one "outside picture" a year which was the exact substance used by the ascended masters in precipitating all material needs," Mrs. Schall testified. "She said the masters could precipitate clothes, money, automobiles—anything.

"She said she could even keep spots off her clothing by calling in the ascended masters."

Judge Leon R. Yankwich, presiding at the trial, cautioned United States Attorney Norman Neukom against making statements in his opening address to the jury which the Government would not be able to prove.

"You might as well delve into other religious beliefs, such as Mormonism," the judge said at one point. "They believe that Joseph Smith found certain tablets of gold, and that an angel gave him glasses to read and interpret inscriptions thereon. How can you disprove things like that?"

"Well, if Joseph Smith had used that for fraudulent purposes, we would have indicted him, too," Neukom replied.

Hemingway Novel To Be Reviewed

Ernest Hemingway's novel of the civil war in Spain, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," will be reviewed by the Rev. Joseph R. Slavin, O. P., of Catholic University, tonight at 8:30 before the Critics Forum-Catholic Thought on Best Sellers, at the Mayflower Hotel. The forum, at which James E. Colliflower, president of the Washington Board of Trade, will preside, will conclude the organization's fall season.

One of similar forums in 20 cities, the local movement was inaugurated here last winter by the Rev. Dr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. He has been assisted by the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, assistant pastor. Father Slavin is an author and lecturer who spent some time in Spain during the civil war.

Montgomery Unit Gives British $789

A total of $789.65 has been spent to date by the Montgomery County branch of Bundles for Britain, Mrs. E. Brooke Lee, president, announced last night.

The branch formed October 7, has purchased through the New York office, air-raid shelter cots to the value of $300 and wool for knitting garments, $489.95. It has sent 14 cartons of cleaned and mended clothing weighing 800 pounds and two barrels of good used shoes to England. Mrs. Lee announced that there is an urgent need for more warm clothing.

France, Axis May Resume Talks Soon

By Charles S. Foltz, Jr.

Associated Press Staff Writer

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 4.—A conference between statesmen of the Rome-Berlin axis and France to seek a "post-armistice but pre-peace" settlement was reported imminent in diplomatic quarters here tonight.

Pierre Laval, vice premier of France, was expected to meet both Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop of Germany and Foreign Minister Ciano of Italy this week or early next week, possibly in Munich, to smooth out points of friction.

Italian reverses in the war with Greece were reported to be one of the main reasons for the conference at this time. Italian demands on the French Empire have been one of the main barriers to closer cooperation between the Vichy government and the Axis, while German attempts to persuade Italy to lower those demands were unsuccessful until the Greek war began, editors in Berlin and Rome were informed.

Berlin sources were evasive regarding recurring inquiries about Laval's reported visit, but said:

"There is no question that German-French talks will continue, but no dates have been fixed."

Informed French sources described Germany as willing to let France retain the greater part of her African empire except the former German colonies and small areas i.e Djibouti, with a possible joint Italian-French protectorate over Tunisia.

Until the Greek war started, however, Italy was adamant on its demand for all Tunisia and on other points of territorial cession.

Now, both Germans and French believe Italians might be inclined to lower their demands upon France and look to the British African Empire and Egypt as their main field for territorial gains.

Unofficial reports from Vichy declared that Laval's proposed trip to Berlin last week was postponed on Premier Petain's expressed order.

Today, however, news reached Switzerland that Petain gave an interview in a Paris weekly newspaper in which he was quoted as saying Laval would "soon" go to Germany to continue efforts toward closer collaboration.

Sidelights of the War

British Seamen on Way to U. S. for Ships

By the Associated Press

An Eastern Canadian Port, Dec. 4. British merchant seamen several hundred strong reached here today bound for United States ports to take over vessels obtained by Britain to bolster her submarine-depleted shipping.

Also arriving were Royal Navy men to man destroyers traded to Britain for U. S. defense bases in the Western Atlantic; some Royal Air Force officers who will become flying instructors in Canada; a number of flying students, and civilian officials coming to North America on various governmental duties.

R. A. F. Uses Cannon Against Nazi Planes

London, Dec. 4 (AP).—Royal Air Force fighter planes equipped with cannon now are engaged in the effort to beat back German air raiders, it was disclosed today.

The process of fitting the heavier armament has been under way for some time, informed sources said, but has been kept secret. . . . . .

In the early stages of the battle of Britain, Hurricanes and Spitfires were armed with eight machine guns which took a heavy toll of Nazi attackers seeking control of the skies.

Then Germany strengthened the armor of her planes to make them less vulnerable, and she succeeded in reducing losses among bombers and their escorts.

As a counter measure, the R. A. F. then decided to fit cannon to its fighters to provide them with a longer range and greater destructive power.

At the same time, reports here suggested the United States-developed Bell Airacobra fighter may be made available to Britain. It is fitted with a 37-millimeter, long-barrel-type cannon.

Carol's Life Reported In 'Some Jeopardy'

London (Thursday), Dec. 5 (INS).—Reuters (British) News Agency early today quoted reports from the Spanish frontier that the life of former King Carol of Rumania was in "some jeopardy."

Three members of the Iron Guard, avowed enemies of the former monarch, are secretly en route to Spain where Carol sought refuge following his abdication, according to the Reuters report.

Haifa Survivors To Stay in Palestine

London, Dec. 4 (AP).—G. H. Hall, undersecretary of state for the colonies, announced today the British government's decision that illegal immigrants reaching Palestine would be sent to a British colony for the duration of the war.

The government decided as "an exceptional act of mercy," Hall added, to permit survivors from the refugee steamship Patria, which sank in Haifa Harbor after an explosion last week, to remain in Palestine.

Helgoland Arrives Safely in Hamburg

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 4 (AP).—A message indicating that the 2,927-ton German freighter Helgoland, which sailed from Puerto Colombia October 29 without bothering about the formality of clearance papers had arrived safely in Hamburg, Germany, was received here today.

The message was from a German who left here aboard the Helgoland. He merely reported to his wife here his arrival in Hamburg. (New York shipping circles received reports November 15 that Helgoland was sunk by British warships in the Caribbean.)

Keep False Teeth Purified Says Dr. Sherwin

Don't brush your false teeth or dental plates—you can't purify them that way—you can't even clean them properly that way.

Midlands Bombed By Night Raiders

School Hit, Fires Started But Are Easily Extinguished

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Dec. 5.—The German air force smashed at the Midlands—both eastern and western sections—last night with explosive and fire bombs, and in at least two towns in that area there were casualties.

In a town in the western Midlands a number of houses and a church and police station were damaged, but the raid there was comparatively short.

Fires sprang up early in the raid, but none was serious and all were put out. An undetermined number of people were trapped in basement shelters in the destruction of homes.

Raiders were reported over the eastern Midlands for nearly four hours attacking singly and at intervals. They began as usual by scattering incendiaries over the center of a town in that section to light the way for the high explosives that followed.

There was damage to both houses and stores, but in the aggregate it was described as light.

Antiaircraft guns were active all through the Midlands area.

Raiders were reported over Southwest England and Wales.

London, too, did not escape, although the all clear sounded at midnight.

Bombs struck an occupied school in one district of the city, a school for incurable children was destroyed, as were a number of houses.

Adverse weather was credited with blunting the effectiveness of afternoon raids. An East Anglican town was attacked twice by low flying Junkers but damage was said to be negligible.

Effectiveness of Tuesday night's raid on Birmingham was minimized by a ministry of home security communique which said clouds hid key targets.

Red Cross to Ship Food Packages To War Prisoners

The American Red Cross will begin a "prisoners-of-war package service" before the New Year, with shipment of 5,000 packages of food for prisoners in camps on the continent of Europe, officials announced yesterday.

Standard parcels of food will comprise the first shipment. Purchased at a cost of $2.75 each, they will contain evaporated milk, oatmeal, cheese, sardines, oleomargarine, dried fruit, corned beef, orange juice, sugar, cigarettes and vitamized beverage cases requiring only the addition of water.

The first allottment of packages will be carried on an American ship to Lisbon, Portugal. Later shipments will include clothing.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, through its delegates stationed in belligerent nations, guarantees safe delivery of these packages to individual prisoners, it was stated.

29th Division Officers to Take Refresher Course

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Division, and four of his ranking officers will leave Saturday for a two weeks special refresher course at Fort Benning, Ga., before induction into Federal service.

Officers who will accompany Gen. Reckord are Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, commanding the Fifty-eighth brigade, Maryland National Guard; Brig. Gen. William H. Sands, commanding the Fifty-fourth Artillery brigade, Maryland and Virginia; Brig. Gen. George M. Alexander, commanding the Ninety-first brigade, Virginia, and Col. John C. Cutchins, of Richmond, chief of staff of the division. They will arrive at Fort Benning Sunday.

The course will begin Monday morning and will continue for two weeks. The Twenty-ninth Division includes National Guardsmen from the District, Virginia, Maryland and one artillery regiment from Pennsylvania.

Telephone Stations Increase 90,500

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Telephones in service in the principal telephone subsidiaries of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. increased about 90,500 in November, the company announced today.

This compared with gains of 101,400 in the preceding month and 80,900 in November, 1939. At the end of November, 1940, there were about 17,372,700 telephones in the Bell System.

Bristol Rushes Repair of Air Raid Damage

Hundreds of Factories Still Run; Only 5,000 Reported Homeless

By H. Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

Bristol, England, Dec. 4.—Emergency workers assisted today in restoring Bristol's transportation system in order to keep industries operating despite the double dose of fire and high-explosive bombs suffered by this western port and manufacturing city.

By this morning, the worst of the transport damage from last Monday night's raid by 300 German bombers had been repaired.

It is impossible yet to get even a semiofficial estimate of the damage, except the comment that it is considerably less than might have been expected "as many of the plants hit were small."

Aside from the battered section of the city, Bristol's main problem is getting workmen to the factories and reestablishing telephones, electricity and similar services.

Commerce Continues

Alongside the wharves today, ships appeared to be loading and unloading without difficulty. From a hill overlooking the valley of the Avon I saw smoke pouring from hundreds of factories still operating.

(Besides being an important manufacturing center, Bristol is a port through which Britain receives many of its vital supplies from the United States.)

Out of a population of 420,000, none of whom has been evacuated from the city, only 5,000-odd remain homeless as a result of recent raids.

Shopping Areas Hard Hit

Sections hit hardest by the recent raids were popular shopping districts near the residential areas and two slum sections.

Otherwise, Bristol presents a picture similar to that of London, with individual buildings wrecked and many bomb-pocked structures surrounding them.

From 3,000 to 4,000 who have reported being bombed out of their jobs, are expected to be transferred to war industries elsewhere.

Raids Have Cut Ruhr's Coal Output 50%, British Say

Assert Nazis Can't Use French Arms Plants for Lack of Fuel; Berlin's Rail Facilities Reported Hard Hit

London, Dec. 4.—The air ministry said today it understood that British raids on communications in the Ruhr Valley had cut off half of Germany's mined coal supply, forcing French factories which the Germans want to use for the making of war materials to lie idle for lack of fuel.

The Ruhr region is highly important for its mines and vast industrial establishments. The ministry, in speaking of the results of the continuous night attacks of the R. A. F., merely said "it has been reported," but quoted no authority for the reports.

In the wake of this statement, the ministry declared the R. A. F. last night started explosions and fires in Mannheim and Ludwigshaven, on the upper Rhine.

"Other targets included a blast furnace plant at Essen and the port of Dunkerque," the ministry said.

In daylight operations yesterday airdromes in Northern France were bombed, it declared.

The Ministry's news service credited the R. A. F. with "severely" damaging some of Berlin's great railway terminal stations, and described railways and oil plants as two of the weakest units in the German military and industrial organization.

Berlin, it continued, "is not being attacked merely because it is the capital of Germany, but because it is, among other things, a very important railway center."

German oil plants are "very suitable" targets for British bombers, the news service said.

The service stated that hits had been made on Leuna, where one of Germany's largest synthetic plants is situated, and that oil reserves in many other areas had been destroyed.

At Stettin, north of Berlin, it declared, cisterns of aviation gasoline blazed for three days, and while Germany admitted two had been destroyed "it is now known that many were burned."

Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, said today Germany now was using more oil than she was producing because Royal Air Force bombers had attacked 90 per cent of her refineries and 80 per cent of her oil plants.

Dalton said stocks of oil in Axis-dominated territory were smaller now than at the beginning of the war.

Dalton termed "nonsense" suggestions in the British press that the Royal Air Force bomb Rumanian oil wells from which Germany draws supplies. The oil at its Rumanian sources was in the crude state and not highly inflammable, he said, adding that it was better to wait until Germany had spent effort in transporting it to the Reich and refining it and then bomb the combustible product.

15,000 Properties Ordered Sold For Back Taxes

City officials yesterday advertised about 15,000 properties delinquent in realty taxes for the annual tax deed sale on January 7. Officials reported that more than $500,000 in delinquent taxes was involved.

Any person whose property has been advertised for sale may redeem it before January 7 by paying back taxes plus the normal penalty, plus a fee of 50 cents for the advertisement of the legal notice.

If the tax bills are paid by a professional tax broker, the property owner is given two years in which to redeem his property, but thereafter would have to negotiate with the broker to clear the title to his holdings. If the property is not bought at the sale it will be bid in by the District government.

Reds Test Ideas In N.Y. Colleges Prexy Says

'Sounding Boards,' Brooklyn School's President Asserts

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 4.—The president of one of the Nation's largest colleges testified at a public hearing today that the Communist Party "deliberately uses" colleges in New York City as "sounding boards for its activities."

Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, 39-year-old head of Brooklyn College—an institution of 14,000 students—told a joint legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the schools that an organized effort was made "to intimidate me—a most unsuccessful one, but certainly an organized one."

As the hearing adjourned until next month to allow for further investigation, the committee authorized its counsel to start contempt proceedings against 25 members or former members of the school system who allegedly refused to testify in private hearings before the committee.

Gideonse's charges followed testimony from two witnesses who named 12 teachers—nine of them at Brooklyn College—as active workers in the Communist Party, both on and off the campus. Ten of the 12 denied they were Communists.

Dr. Gideonese said he was convinced that the "overwhelming majority" of students and faculty was anti-Communist and that a "very small minority" sought to "exploit the future of the college for their own ulterior motives."

"I made up my mind before I took office (in July, 1939) that I was not going to be neutral about subversive activities and I made this crystal clear at the outset," he continued.

Last spring about 300 students took part in a "telephone picket" of his house after a student election in which the so-called "Communist minority" was defeated—a group numbering 3 per cent of the student body, he said.

BLAME YOUR LIVER IF—

If your liver doesn't secrete 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So you see how important it is to keep bile flowing freely! And what finer aid could one desire than Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for treating his patients for constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets are unsurpassed in effectiveness because they stimulate liver bile to help digest fatty foods, they tone up muscular intestinal action, at the same time help elimination. Being purely vegetable, Olive Tablets are wonderful! Test their supreme goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All drugstores.

'New' Army to Have More Men With Guns

War Department Figures Curtail Servicing Troops and Place Greater Power in the Front Lines

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The 1,400,000-man Army to be in uniform by next summer will have a larger proportion of fighting troops and comparatively fewer nonfighters than were in the A. E. F.

Figures disclosed by the War Department yesterday of the new setup revealed that the endeavor of military commanders over the centuries—getting "more men with guns into the fighting lines"—is being accomplished.

There will be a considerably larger proportion of artillerymen, air fighters, tankmen and cavalrymen in the 1941 Army than in the World War force, the data shows, and much fewer of the servicing troops — quartermaster, engineer, medical, ordnance, etc. Infantry will undergo a proportionate reduction from 1918, but the other fighting arms make up the difference. Then 33.5 per cent of the troops were doughboys, compared with 29 per cent under the schedule today —approximately 406,000 soldiers.

Cavalrymen Tripled

This increase in the fighting over the nonfighting troops represents the most notable change over the 1918 Army. Other shifts in types of soldiers were to be expected, though some surprises are found.

For example, the proportion of cavalrymen has tripled since the World War, from 1 per cent to 2.9 while the Air Corps has only increased from 6.9 to 12.8 per cent. This despite the great advance of air power and the general belief that mechanization in warfare has doomed the horse.

There are several reasons for this situation. The number of Air Corps men is expected to increase for next summer's total of about 180,000, when deliveries of planes mount and new squadrons can be organized. Also the Western front in 1918 presented little opportunity for Cavalry, while the 40,000-odd troopers which are planned may be very useful in case of trouble in many parts of the Western Hemisphere. Infantry divisions and Army corps, moreover, now contain reconnaissance units composed of both horse and mechanized Cavalry troops.

Greatest increase among the branches of the Army over 1918 will be in the Coast Artillery, which then formed 4.6 per cent of the troops, and next June will be 13.1 per cent or about 183,000 men. This is due, of course, to the great expansion of antiaircraft units which form a large part of the branch.

More Field Artillery

The armored force by next summer will comprise 2.2 per cent of the Army or about 30,800 men, compared with the World War Tank Corps, which amounted to only one-half of 1 per cent of the total force.

Field artillerymen will total approximately 197,000 men, or 14.1 per cent of the total. This is an increase over the World War percentage of 13.4. The proportion of Engineer troops will be less than half that in 1918, with only 6.1 per cent of the Army scheduled to be assigned to this branch, as compared with 13.5 per cent 22 years ago.

Likewise the Quartermaster Corps will be only 6.1 per cent of the total, compared with 11.3 per cent in the World War. The latter figure includes the Motor Transport Corps, then a separate branch. The medical department will have 7.6 per cent of the total, compared with 10.3 in 1918.

One explanation of the great decrease in the proportion in Engineer and Quartermaster troops is that modern construction and transportation methods require fewer men, and then, it will be recalled, the so-called "labor battalions" of stevedores, road gangs and constructors were under those branches.

U. S. to Train Fire Fighters For Defense

Taking a lesson from Great Britain's hard-won experience, the Federal Government yesterday acted to organize the Nation's firefighters for defense.

The Defense Commission, through its director ofo State and local cooperation, Frank Bane, announced the appointment of an advisory committee to explore the entire field of firefighting and fire prevention as it affects national defense. This, officials said, covers a wide range—from protection and cleanup operations in connection with air raids, to extension of facilities for safeguarding munitions industries in time of peace.

Six experts in this field were named to the committee, together with representatives of the Army, Navy and Department of Agriculture. The group will hold its first meeting here today.

This development featured a series of moves designed to speed forward the Government program for "total defense." Others included:

Col. R. L. Maxwell, administrator of export control, announced that 41 additional types of machine tools will be banned from export after December 10, except upon Government license, in an effort to relieve shortages in this field, one of the "bottlenecks" of the defense program. He emphasized that the action was not an embargo but simply placed the export of the equipment under Government control.

Plans to speed up and decentralize arms production by "farming out" work to idle facilities in "ghost towns" were outlined by an official of the Defense Commission. Morris L. Cooke, consultant to Labor Commissioner Hillman, said a survey had disclosed the existence of plant facilities and skilled labor in communities not now producing arms, which could be tied into a program by small sub-contracts.

Secretary of Commerce Jones estimated that the RFC to date, had made national defense loans to business totaling $250,000,000 to $300,000,000, while its subsidiaries had made allotments and commitments totaling $500,000,000 for the purchase of war reserves of rubber, tin, manganese and other strategic materials. About $175,000,000 of the loans were for plant expansion.

Secretary of the Navy Knox left on an inspection tour of Caribbean defenses and a visit with the Atlantic patrol, operating near Puerto Rico.

Members of the new advisory committee on fire fighting and prevention include: Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston, chairman; Commissioner John J. McElligott, of the New York Fire Department; H. A. Friede, superintendent of fire alarms for the District of Columbia; George J. Richardson, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Fire Fighters, Washington, D. C.; Chief W. H. Palmer, Charlotte, N. C., president of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, and Isaac S. George, executive director of the Maryland council of defense and resources.

Will Favor Britain

Informed persons said the extension of the control over machine tool exports would undoubtedly react in favor of Great Britain and nations of the Western Hemisphere, which could be permitted exports not ruled necessary to our own defense needs.

In appealing for cooperation of local communities in developing the "farming out" plan for arms production, Cooke said this method had been highly developed in England. There known as "bits and pieces," it consists of parcelling out the fabrication of parts of equipment or even one or two operations in the fabrication of such parts.

Gov. Stelle Calls for 10,000 Volunteers For Reserve Militia to Replace Illinois Guard

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3 (AP).—Gov. John Stelle today called for 10,000 volunteers to join a State reserve militia to replace National Guardsmen being mobilized for Federal service.

STEELE

Volunteers between the ages of 18 and 45, including those registered for Selective Service, will be asked to join the militia for terms of two years.

The Thirty-third Division, Illinois National Guard, will leave soon for Camp Peay, Tenn., for a year of Army training.

Knox Off for Panama, May Meet President

Miami, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Knox left Miami today in a four-motored naval seaplane, en route to the Panama Canal Zone and a possible meeting with President Roosevelt, who is on a Caribbean cruise.

The Secretary left a few minutes after he reached Miami from Washington by plane. He expected to make a refueling stop in Key West.

His defense inspection trip, he said, had no direct connection with the President's voyage aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa, started yesterday from Miami. Knox said he may meet the President before returning to Washington.

U. S. 'Awakened at Last,' Patterson Asserts

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today that the people of the United States had "at last awakened from our beautiful dream of universal disarmament" to face the "cold, hard reality that that neighborhood we are living in is a tough neighborhood . . . where military weakness is taken by the aggressors as nothing more than an invitation to invade, conquer and loot."

Speaking before the fall rally of the South Carolina Department of the American Legion, Patterson said that "scarcely a year ago, some of our people told us that we did not need military strength, that it was enogh if we gave no offense, and they asked us to look at Norway, defenseless, inoffensive, and safe.

"We have looked at Norway, to say nothing of Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France, and the sight tells us that our freedom, our existence as a Nation depends on the strength of our right arm. And if the worst should come, let it not be our cities that are bombed, our country laid waste."

End of Jurisdictional Disputes Is Urged

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Steps to prevent jurisdictional disputes between rival labor unions in national defense industries were recommended today in a report to the National Association of Manufacturers by its employment relations committee.

The report also urged that when disputes between employers and employes arise in such industries mediation be sought before either a strike or lockout occurs.

Other suggestions dealt with wage policies, conservation of the skilled labor supply and Federal labor laws. The report will be informally submitted at the association's convention next week.

7 Ships Sunk, Germans Claim

bombs. In each attack, it is stated, between 100 and 600 tons of bombs were dropped on each objective.

This, German quarters state, should be adequate proof that German raids are not diminishing in vigor as a result of approaching winter weather or of a decrease in supplies of munitions. On the contrary, it is stated here, the attacks are constantly increasing and all hopes that the German air force is expending its energy will prove vain.

During the daylight hours of Tuesday, German reports say, London was attacked several times. Birmingham and London were attacked with strong forces, Birmingham suffering particularly. More than 30 large fires were observed in that city, German reports add.

Berlin Reports Martinique Riots

Berlin, Dec. 4 (INS).—Serious disorders were reported in Paris advices tonight to have broken out in the French Caribbean Island of Martinique and its chief city, Fort De France, because of a bread shortage attributed to the failure of flour shipments to arrive from the United States.

(Reuters news agency in London quoted the official German agency, DNB, as stating disorders occurred in "various places" in Martinique and that hungry crowds had stormed bakery shops in efforts to seize bread. The authorities, according to this dispatch, were compelled to call troops to disburse the famished mob and restore order.

Paper Says Hitler To Borrow Armies

will involve participation of their armies and the free use of their territories and transport facilities."

(The newspaper did not say which direction the offensive was to take, but the implication seemed clear that it referred to the German drive which is expected to descend through Bulgaria or Yugoslavia into Greece, Turkey and the Middle East—aimed eventually at Suez; possibly to be coordinated with a German thrust through Spain at Gibraltar.)

Curentul also forecast an Axis League of Nations at Vienna—in which the Axis would make and pursue its own decisions without referring them to satellite states (such as Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia).

Increased railroad, highway and pipeline construction to speed up delivery of oil to Germany was foreseen in informed circles as the immediate result of the signing of the Rumanian-German trade treaty in Berlin today.

Announcement of the treaty coincided with Rumania's expropriation of all oil pipelines, reservoirs, pumping stations and the land on which they are situated in a decree that would include the Romano Americano properties owned by Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

The chief bottleneck in deliveries of oil to Germany has been the lack of adequate transportation facilities and in recent months, Rumanian oil production has been curtailed 20 per cent by the capping of wells because surpluses could not be shipped to Germany, Italy or Rumania's Balkan neighbors.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Greeks Use Indian Tactics To Capture Mountain Top

Wait for Mist to Shield Activity, Snipe at Italians From Behind Trees in Cautious Advance Maneuver

By Daniel DeLuce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Salonika, Greece, Dec. 4.—Two Greek army sergeants who never saw an American Indian told today how they copied the classic tactics of the redskins to capture a fortified mountain peak from surprised Italian artillery companies.

One sergeant, a 21-year-old Salonika clerk, chuckled in his hospital bed despite a throbbing wound as he told of the capture of the peak in the Koritza-Pogradetz sector with a force of 40 men which faced a heavily armed, numerically superior force.

"They had us under range of their machine-guns," he said, "and it would have been suicide to attack when they could see us and know where to fire.

Use Mist as "Secret Weapon"

"We waited until the mist swirled up around the Italian positions. Then we hid in the mist—we used it as a secret weapon, like your American Indians we've heard about.

"When we charged the last few feet with our bayonets, the Italians raised their hands. We took a number of prisoners and, of course, their guns.

"This wound I got was nothing. I want to go back to the front again."

The other sergeant, a 25-year-old Peleponnesian fisherman, was equally cheerful, but his fighting days are over. Surgeons had to amputate his left foot because of wounds.

"I took 30 men up the peak near the Morova mountain, and we literally crawled through scrubby pine woods in order to approach the Italian guns, he related.

Snipe From Behind Trees

"The enemy sent out scouting parties and from behind tree trunks we picked them off one by one.

"They laid down a barrage, but we kept edging forward. I divided my men and we came on guns from two sides.

"There were not many of us left when the fight was over and then 100 Italians rushed over from nearby positions. I was wounded, and they took me prisoner, but I crawled away from their camp during the night.

"The next two days I lay under cover of brush in a ravine. Then our forces completely routed the enemy and I was found and brought to the hospital.

"The Italian privates are afraid of our bayonets and our determination. Only Italian officers resist hard."

Dies Will Issue 4 More Papers on Subversive Forces

Chairman Dies (Democrat), Texas, announced yesterday that four more "papers" dealing with subversive forces would be issued by the House Committee on Un-American Activities before its authority expires on January 3.

"One of them is a crackerjack on the Italians," Dies said. "Another will be on general propaganda by all agents."

He declined to identify the other two. Recent "white" and "red" papers of the committee have dealt with alleged German and Russian activities in the United States.

One of the new papers, Dies said, would include information on the "unwitting subsidizing of German propaganda" by the Postoffice Department.

He explained that under an international treaty, the United States is obliged to distribute free in the United States material mailed and stamped in Germany.

Thornett Named Personnel Officer

Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday was designated as personnel officer for the municipal government, to succeed the late Maj. Daniel J. Donovan. He will receive no additional pay for this position.

Notables at Rotary Luncheon

GUESTS—Louis J. Alber, friend of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint, shown with L. Bert Nye (right), president of the District Rotary Club, at yesterday's luncheon in the Willard Hotel

Embattled Britain, led by Winston Churchill, "will win the war for the democratic peoples of the world," Louis J. Alber, writer and lecturer, yesterday told the Rotary Club of Washington.

"Nothing can down Churchill," he said at a Willard Hotel luncheon, "and the British are like him.. They can be killed, but not conquered."

Clear-Cut Personality

Alber, who managed Churchill's last lecture tour in this country, asserted the British prime minister has the "ability to see the important thing in any problem and then to move swiftly to do whatever important thing needs to be done."

Recalling his close relationship with Churchill during the nine-week tour nine years ago, Alber said "Churchill's characteristics are sharply defined and clearcut."

"There are no fuzzy edges in his makeup," Alber continued. "We may not like his characteristics, but they are readily recognized."

In a reference to the British prime minister's interesting career, Alber pointed out he "was born to high adventure and has something of the swashbuckler under his refinement, culture and education."

His Faults Aren't "Blemishes"

"Churchill's faults," he explained, "are not blemishes, but part and parcel of his entire makeup. He is a person with a marvelous personality, tremendous persistence and in no sense is a plaster saint."

Honor guests included Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, and Lorenzo W. Martin, correspondent of the Louisville Times. The Rev. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Church, gave the invocation. L. Bert Nye, president, presided.

Experts Defend King Leopold For Surrender

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Dec. 4.—The surrender of King Leopold of the Belgians last May 28 was not only justified by the military situation, but was the only possible thing that King Leopold could have done, a number of military, naval and diplomatic observers wrote in a booklet on the Belgian campaign published today.

The 85-page booklet, with four maps, is published by the Belgian-American Education Foundation, with headquarters here. Herbert Hoover is chairman of the foundation and wrote the introduction.

The booklet includes brief articles by Paul van Zeeland, former prime minister of Belgium, and Frans van Cauwelaert, president of the Belgian Chamber of Deputies; a memorandum of a talk with Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, British liaison officer with King Leopold; a summary of the operations of the Belgian army by Maj. Gen. F. F. O. Michiels, chief of the Belgian general staff; statements by four former American Ambassadors to Belgium and by Lieut Col. Robert Duncan Brown and Capt. John A. Gade, U. S. N., then American military and naval attaches to Belgium.

Defended by Col. Brown

The terse comment of Col. Brown compresses into a few sentences the theme of the pamphlet:

"The Belgian King's capitulation on May 28 was the only thing that King Leopold could do. Those who say otherwise didn't see the fighting and they didn't see the German air force. I saw both."

The picture presented in the pamphlet is, in general, one of a gallant struggle against hopeless odds. No attempt is made by any of the writers to explain the early forcing by the Germans of the Albert Canal-Liege line, nor the rapid passage of the Germans through the thickly-wooded difficult Ardennes forests.

The perilous situation in which the Belgian army and the French and British forces in Belgium found themselves after the break-through on the French Ninth Army front at Sedan is, however, clearly portrayed.

What followed was a rapidly mounting crescendo of catastrophe—40,000 casualties in two days; inadequate liaison between the Allied armies; complete German mastery of the air; unremitting air attacks upon armies and civilians constantly constricted into a smaller and smaller space; shortage of water; complete lack of ammunition for some guns; inadequate food and supplies; exhausted men, and finally, in the last days of the battle of the Channel ports, or the Battle of Flanders, as the campaign has been called.

Reynaud's Attack Hit

A number of the statements criticize former French Premier Reynaud for his attack upon King Leopold and the Belgian army and offer the memoranda presented in the book as history's preliminary vindication of the Belgian King.

Hoover quotes M. Reynaud's radio speech of May 28, which announced the Belgian surrender; and declares that the former premier's assertion that "King Leopold III, without a word to the French and British soldiers, . . . laid down his arms," is "absolutely untrue, both in fact and in its implication.

Ominously Vague Italian Bulletins Imply Reverses

Civilians, Reading Between the Lines, Realize Seriousness of the Situation; Rome Asserts Successful Torpedoing of British Ships

By Herbert L. Matthews
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Dec. 4.—Today's Italian war bulletin gives a picture of an avalanche of Greek attacks in Albania, which are being met with dogged resistance, and counterattacks to retake lost positions.

Even though the communiques give no details and have committed no withdrawals since Koritza, all thoughtful Italians who have been reading these bulletins have to realize that the Italian situation is, to say the least, extremely difficult.

Day after day the bulletins have told of Greek attacks and Italian counterattacks, which is a thoroughly clear way of saying that the Italians are entirely on the defensive and have no established line.

Once again the bulletin speaks of heavy Greek artillery fire, so it must be assumed that the artillery support is playing a large part in what the Greeks are doing. The only positive claims which the Italian communiques are making concern their air force, which keeps bombing Greek positions. In a fight yesterday, it is asserted six enemy planes were shot down and three Italian machines lost.

Class of 1921 Called up

The class of 1921 started to join the armed forces today. This is a normal levy which would take place even if Italy were not at war.

Once they are in line and trained they will add something like 250,000 men to an army which Premier Mussolini recently announced totaled 1,000,000 soldiers.

The strain of the Greek conflict has doubtless necessitated calling up a certain number of replacements, particularly in the technical fields. But the authorities agree that the Italians have more than enough manpower for their present purposes.

By the Associated Press

Rome, Dec. 4.—The Italian high command announced today that torpedo-launching Fascist planes slipped over the Greek Islands of Crete and torpedoed two British cruisers in Suda Bay, Britain's new eastern Mediterranean "Gibraltar," as reprisal for the British raid on Taranto early this month.

Coupled with this feat, today's communique said an Italian submarine on the prowl in the Atlantic torpedoed a third British ship—a destroyer—on December 1. It failed to say whether any of the ships were sunk or when the cruisers were hit.

The raid on the Crete base, established by the British when they went to the aid of Greece, was similar to the attack by British torpedo planes on Taranto Harbor November 11, the Italians declared. Premier Mussolini acknowledged three of his warships were damaged, one of them extensively, at Taranto but insisted the British lied when they reported the crippling of half of Italy's six battleships and four other war vessels.

Gnat Tanks' Pass Army Test, 3,000 Ordered

80-Inch Midget Cars Capable of 60 M. P. H. Over Rough Terrain

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Dec. 4.—Try aquaplaning on a washboard over cobblestones some time and you'll get a rough idea of how it feels to ride in one of the Army's new "gnat-tanks"—the 80-inch-long reconnaisance-combat car developed with the idea of "gettin' there fustest with the mostest men."

Already, the War Department has ordered 3,000 of the tiny, rough, tough and mean-looking "midgets" capable of speeds up to 60 miles an hour over terrain which makes a plowed field look like a bowling alley.

Today, at the Camp Holabird Quartermaster Corps Depot, where transportation officers test all of the Army's motorized equipment before it can be approved, they "gave the works" to a new model "gnat" over the specially-devised torture course.

Two models, by other manufacturers, already have passed the gruelling 5,000-mile performance test and a few are in service. Capt. E. L. Moseley, Holabird's chief test officer, watched the latest work out for two hours and announced succinctly, "It'll do."

Designed somewhat as a land counterpart of the Navy's "mosquito boats," the "gnat tank" (nicknamed the "bug" by testing officers) is expected to be invaluable for scouting activities and for speedy transportation of men, antitank guns and ammunition.

They will carry two automatic-rifle men, in addition to the driver, and a machine gun. The four-wheel drive, powered by a 45-horsepower engine, plus tractor-tread tires, give the midgets traction in virtually any type of terrain.

The model tested today negotiated a 60 per cent incline from a standing start, roared through ice and mud in a testing "lake," dipped up and down in holes approximating shell craters, and rocketed over a corduroy road built of concrete slaps.

Dr. Hill Is Dead; Eye Specialist

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Dr. Emory Hill, Richmond eye specialist, died at his home here today after a brief illness. He was 57 years old. He received his A. B. degree from Columbia University and was graduated from the Medical College of Virginia in 1907.

Since 1929 he had been professor of ophthalmology at the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Hill was born September 8, 1883, at Scottsville, a son of James Christian Hill and Mrs. Mary Emory Lamb Hill.

Surviving are his wife, the former Julia Duval Hawes, of Charlottesville; two sons, Walker Hawes Hill and James Christian Hill; two sisters and two nieces.

Town Hall Topic

The weekly discussion of the Town Hall of the Air Group, sponsored by the Jewish Community Center, will be held at 9 p. m. today at the Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest.

Dr. Charles Pergler, dean of National University, will discuss the evening's topic, "Must America and Japan Clash?" Joseph M. Tuckman is director of the program.

Journalist to Speak

William Schlamm, European journalist and author of the recent book, "The Second War of Independence," will speak at 1 p. m. Saturday at the annual luncheon of the Teachers Union of Washington in the Mayflower Hotel.

Tomorrow the question of Federal aid will be discussed by a panel of witnesses, including Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

On Monday members of the National Defense Commission will be heard and on Tuesday, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will testify. The hearing will close Wednesday with testimony by Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard.

Club Would Put a Stop To Stop-Sign Violations

Vigorous enforcement of the stop sign regulation in the District was demanded yesterday by the Keystone Automobile Club after a survey which revealed that "stop sign violation obviously has become habitual." The practice of pausing instead of coming to a full stop at protected intersections was labeled "The direct cause of many accidents."

George I. Keneipp, Keystone manager, said "Keystone's city-wide survey proves conclusively that this regulation is being flagrantly disregarded."

'Floradora' on Tonight

A play of the "gay nineties" era, "Floradora," by Leslie Stuart, will be presented by the Columbia Light Opera Company at 8:15 p. m. today in the Roosevelt High School Auditorium, Thirteenth and Allison Streets Northwest.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Colbert and Milland Excel Themselves in Palace Hit

THE GAYEST, most impudent and, perforce, the most entertaining of the current celluloid comedy-dramas having a tinge of the European shambles to lend them body, opens this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater.

BELL

Like "Escape", which it follows at Thirteenth and F, "Arise, My Love" concerns itself primarily with the capricious escapades of two young Americans on important individual missions abroad, utilizing the distant clouds of war only as background for a romance that occasionally approaches close to the fringes of impetuous Gallic boudoir farce. It is vivacious, humorous and daringly delightful, eventually attaining a dramatic climax that is immensely moving. It is as fine a vehicle for her exhilarating talents as Claudette Colbert ever has had and by far Ray Milland's best.

Mr. Milland is about to be extinguished by a Franco firing squad, on a charge of treason for having flown a Republican plane in the Spanish Civil War, when he is mysteriously reprieved by an adoring and anguished "wife," whom he has never seen or even heard of up to the moment of his salvation. That she turns out to be just another energetic newspaper gal, on the trail of a headline story to cable back to her papers, in no way impedes the impulsive ardors of a handsome young daredevil with a Pinkerton eye for feminine charm. So they make their escape to France in a stolen plane and go in enthusiastically for an evening or two of "Paris in the spring" and all that champagne-and-gardenia sort of thing—he, of course, to dash immediately off to threatened Poland and she to Berlin to shoulder the job of scooping the world on the sinister purposes of the High Command. They wind up first A. W. O. L. in the Compiegne Forest, as the world bursts into flame, and a little later on the torpedoed Athenia, where they are jarred out of their personal idyll and awakened to the precarious state of the fool's paradise in which they live and the importance of their jobs.

You will not believe the highly spiced spontaneity of the piece until you have seen and heard it for yourself.

It is to the everlasting credit of Benjamin Glazer and John S. Toldy, who wrote the story, and Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder, who adapted it to the cameras and sound track, that they kept a sharper eye out for the aromatic qualities of their fable than for its power as "propaganda". "Arise, My Love" preaches nothing to its audience beyond how to enjoy an enormously pleasant two hours in the theater. Patches on the noses of her too ardent admirers after their futile woolngs are more eloquent of Augusta's social code than miles of footage devoted to its minute particularization. The boudoir scene, in which Augusta is in quest of a photograph of her hero for the papers back in the States and his aspirations lie in other possessive directions, is the cinema's supreme demonstration of its ability to cope innocuously with the delicate implications of double entendre. Mr. Hays must have been out of town that day!

As already intimated, Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland are perfectly cast in the roles of the star reporter, with an infinite capacity for doing the wrong thing at the right time, and the intrepid young aviator, who forgets about the war. Both are completely in their element and perform with an enthusiasm that is contagious. Walter Abel, as the manager of the European news service, driven to distraction by Augusta's inopportune abstractions, like his costars, has his most productive recent opportunity in his present assignment and acquires his quota of nose patches along with Mr. Milland. A place even has been found for Cliff Nazzarro and his bewildering double-talk in the role of the photographer who is in on that provocative bedroom sequence. Dennis O'Keefe, Dick Purcell, George Zucco and Frank Puglia are among others who find their chores to their liking.

The new bill at the Palace is not without its lesser attractions. The "Crime Does Not Pay" series divulges a new chapter in retributive justice in an item called "Women in Hiding," dedicated to surreptitious motherhood, and a little vicarious globe-trotting is supplied by "Beautiful Bali." The picturized news events is the only other auxiliary of a feature that ranks at the top among current releases.

Prelude to the Picture's Spiciest Scene

CLIFF NAZZARRO, RAY MILLAND, CLAUDETTE COLBERT

As they will be seen in the boudoir sequence in "Arise, My Love," one of the most pungent intervals of double entendre ever to find its way to the screen. This excitingly entertaining Paramount production opens its first Washington engagement on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater this morning

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Dec. 4.

"Second Chorus," starring Fred Astaire and Paulette Goddard, is one of those unexpected pictures like "the little girl with the curl." Picture proves again that Fred is in a class by himself. Paulette sure has what it takes and that's plenty. Her dance with Fred reveals the fact she can do anything once she makes up her mind to it. But where did she get those clothes? Paulette has wonderful taste. After this I suggest she just wear her own duds. Burgess Meredith's comedy was reminiscent of W. C. Fields, which isn't bad—ever.

HOPPER

Charlie Butterworth will have every producer in town ringing his phone. And Artie Shaw was—Artie Shaw. He makes sweet music with his clarinet, if you like hot licks, but Artie's dead-pan personality is not for the screen. Cinematographer Sparkuhl was in top form. Need I say more?

Remember Florence Bates' fine performance in "Rebecca?" Well, bless her heart, she was the first to send in her $5 subscription for the Junior Symphony Orchestra—with it, a note: "It's a privilege—because I've always maintained you cannot live by bread alone."

Do you remember "Forever" by Mildred Cram? Well, she's just written "Kingdom of Innocence," which is even better, and two studios are already interested in it. If Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier care to make another picture, it will be wonderful for them.

Sorry someone gave me the wrong dope on Barry Brannen and Pat Stillman, Yuma-ing. They're both still in circulation.

There's a new publicity scheme in town. Leters and telegrams were received by prominent stars who were told they'd get international breaks in magaziznes and roto sections for only $36. Some grabbed it.

I remember a good one years ago which came from a Hollywood iron company, saying they'd make an iron seat with your name on it which would be placed on a prominent corner of Hollywood Boulevard for $58. I'm sorry I didn't join that one. For many years those same seats reposed at every street corner—until a few years ago when souvenir hunters in the still of the night gathered them up and drove them off in trucks.

A few remained, one on the corner of Vine Street, with Lon Chaney's name on it, which is such a landmark that whenever it's stolen, another is put in its place. The present one was donated by his son—to replace the second one stolen about a year ago.

Director Clarence Brown has fallen in love again. No, don't look for a divorce. The object of his affections is Adeline de Walt Reynolds, who, before coming to work each morning, prepares luncheon for herself and Clarence, and he eats with her on the set instead of in the commissary.

Columbia

Only the other day in these pages Joan Crawford was quoted as saying she would like to make a picture with Tyrone Power, adding something very complimentary about the gentleman's looks. Well, Joan, Ty wouldn't have had much time to play lover to you in "The Mark of Zorro," which returns this morning to the Columbia.

He's a very busy chap as Zorro, being two vastly different people to cover up his charities for the sufferers from a reign of terror in Spanish California. He acts the dilettante to shield his daring exploits in behalf of the underprivileged. To be sure, he does have a girl friend (and girl is the word, as she's played by Linda Darnell), but he's an energetic chap and has even taken time to grow a mustache for atmosphere. So you see, Joan, in "The Mark of Zorro," he wouldn't have time to stop for you to admire his "beautiful" looks!

It's a perfectly logical portrayal Power gives to this part Douglas Fairbanks, sr., created so memorably two decades ago. Rouben Mamoulian has directed with the pace traditional to such a yarn and Basil Rathbone is given welcome opportunity to display his fencing prowess as well as his accomplished sneer. Eugene Pallette is amusing as a latter day Friar Tuck. Further names on the cast sheet include Gale Sondergaard, J. Edward Bromberg, Montagu Love and Janet Beecher. It's a 20th Century-Fox production.

Gold Rush Hazards

Second in the series of exciting action films starring Tim Holt for RKO Radio, "The Fargo Kid" is a thrilling story of adventure and peril in the gold fields of the Old West. Ray Whitley, Emmett Lynn and Jane Drummond head the supporting cast.

All Around Arnold

Edward Arnold, now in "Meet John Doe," worked as a newsboy, bell hop, janitor's helper, insurance salesman and grocery clerk before becoming an actor.

Says He Crossed Desert in a Boat

Joe Barry claims he crossed a desert in a boat.

When Warner Bros.' "High Sierra" troupe was on location in the Owens Valley, location man Barry pointed across the alkaline sands and said:

"I used to go across there in a boat."

When listeners clamored for an explanation, he continued:

"I first came on location here in 1913. In those days you had to take a steamboat to make the trip. The dry valley you see now was once a river. It was diverted for the city of Los Angeles water supply."

Metropolitan

Don't miss "The Letter." Don't miss it, that is, if you value the ability of the once lowly flickers to define human characters with the incisiveness that makes you think: "How true! How true!"

To be sure, the W. Somerset Maugham story, which reopens this morning at the Metropolitan after a week at the Earle, is both familiar to story and film fanciers alike and is not adhered to with the most complete faith. But so searingly is jealous woman's soul laid open, so relentlessly does William Wyler keep his camera on the surface of his figures that their inner thoughts gradually become clear, unmistakable.

"The Letter" is that chilling story of a respectable lady of quality, wife to a prosperous Singapore planter, who has been carrying on a clandestine affair with a neighboring bachelor. Her name is Leslie Crosbie and she becomes jealous of his attentions to a native woman. In a cold fury, she shoots him. To the world, she appears the gallant defender of her husband's honor, only gradually is the truth allowed to slip through to her lawyer and ultimately her husbnad.

In a role which Katharine Cornell created on the stage and the late and ever-remembered Jeanne Eagles performed on the screen, Bette Davis does her finest acting since "Of Human Bondage," Mr. Maugham's other notable film. Ever a scoffer at the much-lauded talents of Miss Davis (with the exception of her early, unaffected roles), this writer must bow to her here for her restrained and artful black magic. James Stephenson as her lawyer gives one of the year's performances, while Herbert Marshall, Gale Sondergaard and Sen Yung have the other pivotal roles.

Yes, "The Letter" is a remarkable achievement of atmosphere and character delineation, despite even the unhappy fact that Hollywood's "moral code" has demanded an eye-for-an-eye ending in place of Maugham's truer solution and has insisted on legal wedlock for the murdered man and the Eurasian woman he kept. To Director Wyler, cheers for his ability to produce cold sweat in the treacherous sunlight of Singapore. R. L. C.

Seamstresses Work Week on One Gown

A half dozen needle-and-thread experts have finished work on an elaborate gown for Mary Martin, putting together some 50,000 flesh-colored beads.

Miss Martin will wear the gown, which wears 18 pounds, as she sings "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" for Paramount's "Love Thy Neighbor." This is the song she was sniging on Broadway when she was handed a screen contract. Designed by Edith Head, the gown kept six seamstresses busy for a week.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Pittsburgh, Dec. 4 (INS).—Harold Lloyd couldn't stand being just the boss any longer. All the time they were making "A Girl, A Guy and A Gob" I heard reports about how they all but tied up Producer Lloyd to keep him from stepping in front of the cameras. So I can't say I'm surprised to hear that the bespectacled comedian will star himself in his next, "My Favorite Spy." The story, by W. Coates Webster, is an original and, because of the mystery-spy angle, a beeg secret. Harold would like to shoot it with the same degree of secrecy Frank Capra maintained about "Meet John Doe."

PARSONS

So far, there's no release announced for the Lloyd film. This is surprising since his last was for RKO and I understood they had first call on his pictures. In the meantime, the new opus gets under way within the next 90 days. This is unusual speed for Harold, who used to take as much time as Charlie Chaplin getting ready.

Testing authors of books to play their own heroes in the movies seems the latest thing. Warners made a great to-do about testing Hartzell Spence for his own novel, "One Foot in Heaven." Now Twentieth Century-Fox is testing Stephen Longstreet to play his own Wolf-of-Wall-Street hero in "The Golden Touch," which they just bought from the galley proofs. Considering that Longstreet is almost as well known as a theater guild actor as he is as a writer, Twentieth may crop up with a new star along with their newest story purchase. I understand "The Golden Touch" is a dynamic yarn about a ruthless industrialist, who learns the error of his ways. Kenneth MacGowan will produce.

After a lot of "He Will" and "He Won't" talk, Gary Cooper will definitely do "Sergeant York" at Warners and checks in January 2. The deal was signed yesterday by Jack Warner and Sam Goldwyn and one of the most important clauses in the contract is that Sam gets Bette Davis when he wants her for "The Little Foxes." Well, it's a happy ending to a long drawn-out discussion. Warners get Gary, Sam gets Bette—and, maybe, on account of being a good boy, Gary may get to do "For Whom the Bell Tolls" at Para—but don't breathe that I mentioned that again.

Brenda Joyce, who was rushed to the Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh after injuring her arm backstage, is much better. In fact, she is so well that we are bringing her home with us on the train. Brenda made such a hit in the hospital that everyone has been accusing her of getting first-hand information from the nurses for her next picture, "Private Nurse." This is not, however, a publicity stunt as some of the papers hinted. Brenda really hurt her arm and needs medical treatment—but thank goodness, it's nothing really serious.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Is RKO peeved about the surprise Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz elopement? Hear that Lucille promised everybody there would be no wedding bells when she went east. Anyway, the studio is ignoring her pleas to spend Christmas with the groom and is bringing her back immediately for "How to Meet a Man"; Gene Autry swears he got it from a recruits in San Diego: When Movie Director Woody Van Dyke reviews his battalion and wants the company to "halt" he yells "cut" instead; Bette Davis' favorite dinner partner these evenings is her old friend, Edmund Goulding. They've been Christmas shopping together.

Reports from New York are that Simone Simon will marry that big department store official before returning to the coast; Rudy Vallee's father, who celebrates his seventy-second birthday at a party at Leone's Thursday has asked Rudy not to bring a gal friend because Rudy and his girl friends always steal the thunder; Alex Korda says that nothing in the world could take him away from Merle Oberon at Christmas. They were parted last year, with Alex in Lisbon and Merle here—so he isn't leaving for London with the first print of "Lady Hamilton" until late in January; the Chester Morrises are already back from their honeymoon. He starts in "The Return of Boston Blackie" Friday.

The impromptu party that gathered accidentally at the Florentine Gardens last night had all eyes on their table. First, John Barrymore, Sally Allen, Errol Flynn and Johnny Myers came in. Later they were joined by Rex St. Cyr, who brought along Lady Furness, Gloria Vanderbilt and Antonio Moreno; the Andrew sisters run around Universal in American-flag formation. One wears a red sweater, one a white and the other a blue; Fred Astaire lost 15 pounds making "Second Chorus" and his doctor insists he put it back on again; hear it's a big week for Hollywood previews again. I'll be so glad to get home I won't mind doing two a day.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Fans Requested To Send Pictures

Barabar Stanwyck finds herself in the unusual position of having to ask her fans to send her some pictures of herself.

Barbara, who is now in Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe," is having the scripts and scene stills of her past pictures bound in leather volumes. But she lacks pictures from "Ladies of Leisure," "Baby Face" and "Mexicali Rose."

Miss Stanwyck will appreciate these and other old pictures of herself.

Stewart Prefers Beans 'Just Plain'

As puzzling as it may sound, James Stewart discovered that the reason he never liked chili beans was because they were chili beans.

On the restaurant set of "Come Live With Me," in which Stewart costars with Hedy Lamarr, the script called for the actor to order a bowl of chili and eat it. The beans were dished up and Stewart dug in, somewhat reluctantly. The reluctance gradually disappeared, however, and Stewart ordered a second.

"Now this is the way I like it," he commented. "Why can't you buy chili that tastes like this?"

"That's easy," commented the chef in attendance on the set. "Don't ask for chili. Ask for just plain boiled red beans. That's what you've been eating."

Coffee Pot Gable's, Pouring Hedy's

Hedy Lamarr, who was never a coffee drinker before working in "Comrade X," now insists upon coffee every lunch hour, because the informal get-togethers of cast and crew are "fun."

Clark Gable visited the set of her new picture, "Come Live With Me," in which James Stewart is her co-star, and presented her with the huge coffee pot purchased during the making of "Comrade X."

She will now be permitted to use it for two films in a row, her current assignment and the forthcoming picture, "Ziegfeld Girl." It will then revert back to Gable for use during his next film.

Judges And Cases

The Police Court Committee of the District Bar Association, in recommending that a fifth judge be added to the court, has shown what at first consideration appears to be a staggering case load on the present four judges. The committee calls attention to the 57,385 cases disposed of in 1939—an average of 55 cases per judge per day. A great majority of the cases, however, fall into large categories of quickly disposable charges. There were 15,061 intoxication cases; 3,018 of disorderly conduct; 638 of soliciting alms, and 408 of vagrancy. Traffic charges classified in the clerk's report as "Miscellaneous (Illegal Parking, etc.)" amounted to 13,623, and "Speed, First Offense," 8,349. When it is observed that these crimes alone account for 40,997 of the 57,385 total, the burden seems much lighter.

Whether the remaining 16,388 cases were of such a nature that the judges couldn't handle them efficiently is a question for legal minds. However, it would be interesting to see an attempt to install in Police Court a system like that used in Municipal Court since September 1. Under this regime, sponsored by a committee of the Bar Association, each judge notifies the clerk of the central assignment judge when he finishes his day's docket. If there are cases awaiting trial in other courts, he goes to work on them. The cardinal principles of the system are that each court starts its day promptly, the work is distributed as equally as possible, and no judge goes home, as a rule, until all the daily dockets are cleared.

It is true that there is a greater uniformity among the civil cases handled by Municipal Court than among the offenses dealt with in Police Court. But each judge in Police Court is familiar with the work of all branches, and the ability to transfer cases is manifest in the fact that some already are disposed of in that way. Undoubtedly another judge would help materially, but until it has been demonstrated that the Municipal Court system won't work in Police Court, the public can't be sure that an addition to the judiciary is the most immediate of the District's unfulfilled necessities.

The Navy Reports

The report of Admiral Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, sheds further light on the problem of personnel for the Navy which Admiral Stark, chief of Naval Operations, stressed in his resume of fleet activities for 1940. To prepare for the 70 per cent expansion in warship strength, the Navy estimates it is necessary to keep aboard ship 115 per cent of complement—defined as the number needed to meet the demands of battle. On July 1 the 145,000 men provided for by Congress permitted the Navy to operate at 87 per cent of complement, after making up crews for 44 newly commissioned and 94 recommissioned vessels. Legislation for the current fiscal year allows 191,000 men.

Congress is expected to vote funds to increase this number early in 1941. It is important to remember, in this connection, that a simple enlargement of personnel will not necessarily close the gap between the present 92 per cent of complement and the desired 115 per cent, for ships which will come into commission in that time must be manned.

Some Congressional action is needed also to provide more officers. Already understaffed in 1940, the Navy had to officer new ships and detail officers to train recruits. Even the induction of reserves and retired personnel has not filled necessities. One measure advocated is an increase in authorized appointments to the Naval Academy.

Admiral Stark's report reveals that, in line with the prospective expansion, there was a general tightening in the naval organization during the year. The Naval Reserve Policy Division was established to facilitate training of the reserve and provide for speedier mobilization in time of war. The Procurement Planning Section worked with the Army and Navy Munitions Board to formulate a program for reserve stocks of strategic materials, and the War Procurement Planning Section maintained contact with the Defense Advisory Commission.

The reference made by Admiral Stark to additional naval bases, though calling attention to the fact that this matter is under consideration, does not outline a specific program. Although he mentioned Guam, he did not definitely revive his advocacy of improvements there or say what form they might take. The public's reaction may determine Congress' attitude toward the controversial matter if the Navy brings it forward in 1941.

Wanted: A Coordinator

It has often been said that a country never has the commonsense to learn from another country's experience. Equally true, and much more heinous, is it that we never learn from our own experience. An illustration is a setup for our Defense Commission which flies in the face of the experience which we acquired by trial and error in the World War. In that emergency we "growed" into coordination. But at present, despite our eloquent wartime background, we have none, not even for the job, as urgent as it is necessary, of aircraft production.

A coordinator would be provided, of course, as soon as President Roosevelt appointed a chairman of the Defense Commission. At present the commission is headless. Of course, it reports to the President, but the President, obviously, has too much to do to coordinate defense, and, anyway, is now at sea on an inspection trip at a time when the problems facing the Defense Commission are immense. Each member is thus left to do his or her own work, and the work, to a large extent, remains departmentalized. Only a chairman could knit it together.

The need for such an appointment is patent from the very nature of the task. This is to fuse on a voluntary basis the multitudinous and often conflicting elements in our economic body for quick and effective defense. Departmentalization in the defense setup simply recognizes the problem as one of particular production instead of as one of organizing and unifying general production. The two ends are as different as chalk and cheese.

There are those who argue that a change isn't necessary because the present emergency isn't as urgent as war. In our opinion the urgency is even greater. For the quicker and bigger we arm, the less likelihood there is of war. For this reason the defense program, as even the cryptic Mr. Kennedy has said, warrants a "crusade." However, even some who feel this way somehow think that we can "grow" into coordination. For instance, it is said that if such and such a person in the Defense Commission (the current talk is of Donald M. Nelson at his subsidiary post with the Priorities Board) does a good job, then he may evolve into a sort of informal coordinator. In other words, they are waiting, Micawber-like, for something to grow which could be done by simple edict. Yet they call this an emergency.

But it is World War experience all over again. Congress, when war came, delegated powers to the Executive for the purpose of insuring speedy and effective armament. President Wilson went to work tentatively by appointing a Council on National Defense composed of his Cabinet, and an Advisory Commission responsible to that Council. The Advisory Commission was the core of the war effort. Out of it spawned a variety of boards, but there was no coordination, not even in purchasing. A contemporary writer, for instance, said that the Navy Department, which happened to have an effective procurement office, "grabbed everything."

Out of this chaos, out of a host of boards working at cross purposes, there arose the War Industries Board, under Bernard M. Baruch. This eventually became an executive agency. This eventually replaced the law of supply and demand with administrative control over the country's economic machinery. Not that it became authoritarian a la Hitler. The board won the enthusiastic cooperation of the business community, for its weapon was intelligent and patriotic persuasion. Of course, in the wartime circumstances, as today, there was always compulsion in the locker in case neither patriotism nor persuasion won over a manufacturer to the board's wishes. Newton D. Baker, however, always insisted that, in view of the general cooperation, the board should be called the "leader" and not the "boss" of American business.

The frequency with which this experience has been cited since the country began to arm itself is testimony to its success. And yet we persist in ignoring the experience. We are beginning where President Wilson began, and are running into, as he ran into, all the problems in delays and conflict of authority out of which coordination at last rescued the war-time armament program.

Friend Of Washington

Washington's debt of gratitude to Senator William H. King, who will soon retire as head of the Senate District Committee, was fully acknowledged at the dinner given in his honor by the Northwest Citizens' Council on Tuesday night. Thousands of District residents who were unable to attend the dinner will doubtless add to this tribute in their own way. For Senator King has been a consistent friend of the District in circles where friendly understanding is of the greatest importance.

Senator King has not always seen eye to eye with citizen groups sponsoring local reforms, but he has taken the leadership in putting through Congress a considerable volume of progressive local legislation. Both as Senator and committee chairman, he has been a hard worker, and he has followed in practice his precept that committees handling local bills should be forums for the people of Washington. In considerable measure, too, the policies of the committee under Mr. King's direction have conformed to the wishes of the community, when those wishes could be ascertained.

Whether or not the Senator's conscientious work in behalf of the Capital City was a factor in his defeat in the Utah primaries, he has the satisfaction of having fulfilled his assignment with distinction and understanding. Washington will be fortunate if, in the next Congress, he is replaced by a chairman of equal energy and devotion to the welfare of this disfranchised community.

Reshuffle In The House

Reapportionment of the seats in the House of Representatives is always an interesting index to population trends in the United States. Unless Congress blocks normal changes, retrogression in any area is certain to be reflected in a loss of House seats by States in that region. Similarly an influx of population induced by prosperous conditions in any bloc of States will give them greater voting rights in the House. It is a happy circumstance that such reapportionment now follows automatically upon completion of the decennial census.

Until 1810 the rapidly growing States were given additional representation by adding to the membership of the House, excepting only the apportionment which followed the 1840 census. By 1910, however, the membership of the House had reached the unwieldy number of 435, and Congress rightly decided that it should not be further increased. States failing to keep pace with the growth of the Nation have since had to give up seats in the House to the more rapidly developing States. The reluctance of Congress to order such adjustments accounted for its failure to bring about a reapportionment between 1910 and 1930.

The 1940 reapportionment shows a continuation of the general trend of national growth that was evident in 1930. California will gain three seats, and one additional seat will go to each of seven States: Arizona, Florida, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee and Michigan. Of these States, only Tennessee is in the interior of the United States. All the rest are coastal or border States. As in the '20's, most of the United States' growth in the last decade has taken place in the coastal areas.

Population losses are recorded for the two Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Except for the Dakotas, which have only two Representatives apiece, these States will lose one Representative each. Other losers are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Arkansas, Ohio, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania—most of them interior States. The severe losses of the "dust bowl" are especially noticeable but not surprising.

Capital cities fared particularly well in the decade from 1930 to 1940. All the State capitals, except Boston and Frankfort, show population gains, and Austin, Tex., increased its inhabitants by about 57 per cent. In numbers, however, the influx of 176,000 persons into Washington is by far the most striking gain recorded for any city in the American galaxy of capitals. Indeed, Washington now has a larger population than any one of 12 different States, including the Dakotas and all of the Rocky Mountain States except Colorado.

A reapportionment based solely on democratic principles would have given the District two seats in the House. Each year the continued growth of the Nation's Capital makes its anomalous position in our system of government the more untenable. The House will never be fully representative of the American people until this unwarranted discrimination is removed by a constitutional amendment.

THE FEET OF TIME . . .

The feet of Time
Go thundering by
Under a strange
And changing sky.
And he who hears
The unending chase
May never pause
Or seek the trace
Of beast or rider:
For who discerns
The print of fire
Where Arcturus burns?

He who hears
Time's fevered flight
Knows his enemy
Not by sight,
Not by touch
But by the pause
In his heart's own rhythm:
The fear that draws
Blood from a wound
Not yet laid bare,
But whose implacable
Sign is there,

Circling nearer
With every breath,
Wearing the name
And shape of Death.

Way To Produce

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is no doubt that the procurement of more war materials and the capable, systematic and scientific intelligence to use them mean the difference in the strong safeguard of democracy.

Speed of production, to my way of thinking, depends upon efficiency, skill, facilities, proper equipment, and the willingness to work. It is an internal teamwork, harmony, smooth operation, and enthusiasm in every factory and concern in the country where the engineers and other workers expend their noblest efforts for progress and the maintenance of freedom.

Production is never an outside job, never a political pressure, nor an effective machination in the sense that it is made of commanding words. Official statement from Washington does not produce goods if the concern to which it is directed lacks right equipment and skilled labor. This is like asking a cook to bring in more rolls right away while the oven is cold and he has no dough. It is a matter of adequate preparation and readiness.

On the higher bracket, all that the Government can do is to make contracts and specifications of the supplies and war materials required, as well as to help financially on the expansion of factories where the deals are made. All that the President can insure to bring forth resources for the Nation's use is to inspire confidence, unity, interest, sacrifice, and patriotism among the people.

For the people who had given him full trust during election likewise need his inspiration and encouragement in the supreme struggle to keep democracy alive and unshakable in the New World. Only when the President and the people harmonize and work hard together can production and national defense be a more dependable instrument for the preservation of liberty and peace.

SYLVESTER SATURDAY.

Dies Committee

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read some criticism recently of the work of Mr. Martin Dies in his investigation of un-American activities, and I would like to express my views on the matter. I think his committee has done and is doing a splendid work. He has furnished the proper governmental departments information that it would have been impossible for them to get otherwise. The appropriation for his work has been, in my opinion, very wisely spent, and his committee should be kept active, at least as long as our boys are being trained for the defense of our country. They need his protection.

I note that Congressman Dickstein accuses Mr. Dies of "ballyhoo." I think the American people know that a danger exposed to the public frequently disappears in the face of public information. It is the hope of this reader that the Department of Justice, to which has been transferred the Bureau of Immigration, will work in harmony with this committee. A READER.
Washington, Dec. 3.

Discusses The "Red" Scare

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to add my protest to those appearing in the Post of November 30 against the further financing of Martin Dies in his witch hunting activities. What unpredictable quirk in the collective judgment of Capitol Hill caused this man to emerge as their chosen representative, one can only conjecture, one can never know.

First, he airs state secrets which should be, and are being handled by the FBI in this froth whipped up on the silent and steady course of the waters beneath, he airs his activities in the press and gives out the impression that nothing is being done by the constituted authorities. So intoxicated has he become over his recent backing by the State Department, that he even denounces the efforts and work of the FBI and says to the people, in effect: Look at me! I'm the only one that ever does anything. Turn it all over to me! For this he has the following of those who think something - ought - to - be-done in the open with fanfare.

Second, and most potent of all arguments: he is again making use of the Communist wolf cry. It is still, after all the bloodshed and horror that have been invoked in its name, the most effective wolf of our modern times. By its skillful use, Mussolini received the first carte blanche granted by two great democracies to go ahead in Ethiopia. Hitler was permitted to rearm, to fortify the Rhineland, take Austria, then Memel. All this in the early stages of his world conquest because both England and France feared Russia and communism so much, that they built up the dictators to fight it.

To say that fear of communism is a phobia is too mild. It is an obsession in the public mind of the world. It is an obsession so great and tenacious, that even when Hitler formed the anti-commintern pact, used it as long as it suited his designs, then abandoned it and entered into a pact with Russia itself, the trained-seal mind of the democratic world still saw only Moscow as the world's number 1 menace. It was Hitler's perfect smoke screen for his conquests. So effective was it that even after the downfall of France, the leaders were still using this wolf cry.

It is high time for us Americans to think as against giving ourselves up to orgies of emotion produced by agitators. The Dies method is to keep the Red menace to the fore in everybody's mind. He has done some Nazi witch hunting to be sure, in passing, so to speak just as students do sometimes let their studies interfere with their regular college work.

Personally I hold no brief for communism. I am an American and a patriot. As such I urge my countrymen to enlighten themselves on recent European history by reading some of the many excellent books on the subject now available. For those who would like to see for themselves the disastrous effect on all modern history of the wolf cry of communism, skillfully manipulated, I suggest "Europe on the Eve," Schuman, and "J'accuse," Simone.

We all become super-patriots in time of peril and witch hunters in time of actual war. In full knowledge of all that has happened in the world from abject fear of communism we might be inclined to start our hunt with those who work themselves into a frenzy over communism the while Russia remains calm and all Europe burns.

Replies to Arguments

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "The Three Arguments" advanced by Paul C. Lentz in The Post of December 3 so clearly ignore the truth and attempt to use a smokescreen of Germanophile propaganda, that my answer is the suggestion that the articles by Walter Lippmann and Alsop and Kintner in the same edition be read.

No man who is strong because of the rectitude of his position, nor country either, needs to be afraid of the truth and I believe what we need is more of truth and less of un-American propaganda.

If in our town, we desire law and order, we all know well that we must either enforce it ourselves or combine to appoint police to do the job for us. It is as much one citizen's duty to make his contribution to such police force as it is another's. If we really want international law and order, and no country can hope for prosperity without it, there is no escaping our responsibility. When an international gangster starts out on a rampage against all of the rights of humanity, the largest and most wealthy white populated country of our world cannot shirk for long its duty.

Just as we recognize that a citizen on the other side of town is as much entitled to police protection as is our neighbor next door, or as we are ourselves, so we cannot disassociate ourselves from our responsibility for the maintenance of law and order among people whom the accident of birth has caused to be the first victims of the international bandit. If he is not stopped, our turn will surely come.

It was no blunder when we of the 1914-1919 generation fought the same fight and regained Belgium's and France's liberty. The terrible blunder came when our "We are not our brother's keeper" politicians preached the devil's gospel of "isolationism" and prevented our support of attempts to perpetuate the peace which had been purchased so dearly. Their names will certainly not go down in history as benefactors of mankind nor as men with the vision to recognize the true interests of America.

Proposed Underpass

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of the fact that the City of Washington is a voteless city, a city that pays more taxes than any one of 13 States, and also the most generous in charity gifts, giving more than any city of its size in the United States, would it not be an act of justice to the citizens whose patronage has made your worthy newspaper what it is today to conduct a "poll" on outstanding questions which are so arbitrarily decided against their protests?

Such a poll regarding the Scott Circle underpass would be interesting and enlightening, giving the thinking, intelligent taxpayers and citizens an opportunity to express their sentiments. I live at Scott Circle and I have checked on the traffic at all hours, and I agree with hosts of automobilists, bus and taxi drivers who have expressed their opinion that an underpass is not needed at Scott Circle, but intelligent traffic regulation such as they have in large cities.

THE WASHINGTON correspondents who write daily human interest stories about the great, and whose columns must open with Congressmen or better, seem never at a loss for something exciting or thrilling to tell those not fortunate enough to be in the know concerning the doings at the Nation's Capital. Millions were enraptured the other day to read the following concerning a member of the Cabinet:

"Wednesday at 1 o'clock I saw the Secretary walking to lunch. He turned opposite the White House on the way up Sixteenth Street. At cross streets he paused at the curb to look right and left before hurrying across.

"The route he was taking was the shortest possible between his office and his apartment. It is his custom to walk home when the weather is fine for lunch, and then back to his office for exercise. He prefers home eating to that of club or restaurant."

Several thoughts suggest themselves concerning the rather extraordinary living and feeding habits of the esteemed Secretary. Fifty or a hundred years from now biographers who use the psychoanalytic approach will find significant and revelatory material in these queer antics, so painstakingly set down by the observant correspondent.

In the first place it will be noted that the Secretary went to lunch at 1 o'clock, thus indicating a strain of rugged individualism and a refusal to conform to custom. Still more significant is the statement that the Secretary walked from office to home by the shortest route. Here again we find the typical behavior deviate who, because of some inner compulsion, finds it impossible to conform to the prevailing custom of choosing the longest route in going from one place to another.

Then, again, note that the Secretary, on coming to a street intersection, did not walk into and through automobiles as the ordinary man does. Not at all. He "paused at the curb to look right and left before hurrying across." His defense mechanism in failing to look in back of him to see if any automobiles were sneaking up on him on the sidewalk is a pitifully futile gesture designed to conceal an inferiority complex presupposing a congenital inability to adjust himself to his surroundings. Indeed, it is unlikely he would be able to adjust himself even if he had no surroundings. Men who have had their surroundings entirely removed react in just this manner.

Nor will it come as a surprise to the initiated that the Secretary looked only to the right and left before crossing the street, ignoring completely nor'-nor'-right-by-right and nor'-nor'-left-by-left. And then, what normal reason could the Secretary have had for hurrying? He must have known that, if he had only dawdled a bit in the center of the street, many drivers paying high income taxes who recognized him would have been glad to caress him with their cars. Does he gratefully accept this golden opportunity like the ordinary man? He does not. He hurries! Obviously the Secretary is fleeing from something lurking in his own subconscious, some shameful fixation which has for years lain buried under tons of sand and gravel. Undoubtedly a thorough psyching would do the Secretary a world of good.

"It is his custom to walk home when the weather is fine for lunch." Observe that the Secretary does not walk home for lunch when the weather is fine. He walks home when the weather is fine for lunch. One can literally see him glancing anxiously at the skies a dozen times during the forenoon and asking the old retainer who has served so many secretaries: "Jerry, how's the weather for lunch?" and his dismay when Jerry shakes his head ominously and mutters "I'm afraid the scrambled eggs won't be running very good today, sir."

Note, also, that the Secretary "walks home for lunch and back for exercise." With the self-deception of the psychoneurotic personality, he doubtless convinces himself that exercise simply hibernates on his way home, and then emerges the moment he starts the return journey. But exercise cannot be suppressed in this manner without its taking a terrible revenge, and the Secretary will wake up too late to find that he is twice as strong as he thinks he is.

Perhaps the most telltale sentence of all, however, is the one which indicates that the Secretary "prefers home eating to that of club or restaurant." The Secretary's "preference" will not deceive psychoanalysts. Quite obviously he cannot afford outside eating. When coupled with the fact that the Secretary walks on the same side of the street, without crossing back and forth several times, retracing his steps occasionally, and once in a while wading through streams in order to cover his trail, the aberrations comprehended in his actions may, even with the maximum of conservatism, be said to have become lifted out of the realm of the inhibited.

And, while we are on the subject, do not lose sight of the fact that the reporter followed the Secretary halfway home.

Potent Democracy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If one man is born with a wooden spoon in his mouth and another with a silver spoon, and still another with a gold spoon, can it be truthfully held that all three men are born equal?

For a state to declare that all men are born equal does not make that state democratic, but a state which makes laws preventing man from being unjust to men is a potent democracy. HARRY DANIELS.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Noblesse Oblige

MR. MARK SULLIVAN thinks "it is of high importance to everybody" that Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy should tell the world whether he believes that "democracy is finished in England" and whether "after the war England is going to have what Mr. Kennedy is said to have called national socialism." This, if you examine it, is a good deal to ask of any man. For on the question of whether democracy is finished in England the answer would depend on what Mr. Kennedy chooses to mean by democracy. And on the second question, what kind of social order there is to be in England after the war, the answer will depend on a prophetic knowledge of the course of the war and all its vast consequences—a knowledge which no human being can conceivably possess.

TO ASK Mr. Kennedy to say whether England is still a democracy is to invite him to start a quarrel about words. For there will be those who will say that Great Britain is a country where Parliament meets while the bombs are falling, where the ministers of the crown report continually to Parliament, where the government can be criticized in the press and on the platform, where elections are held, where the courts are sitting, where conscientious objectors are respected, and that never in the history of the world has there been such a demonstration of the vitality of a democracy. If then someone chooses to retort that this embattled democracy has given to its responsible government extraordinary powers over industry and over the life of the people in war time, that will be true. And if someone then chooses to say that democracy is "finished" because it is making these extraordinary sacrifices to save itself from destruction, he is of course entitled to his opinion, and even in England, where democracy is supposed to be finished, his opinion will be published.

But he should be wary of such opinions: for there will be many who will ask, as a young English airman asked me the other day in honest bewilderment, whether Americans thought democracy was lawful government responsible to and removable by the representatives of the people or whether they, too, like "the old gang at home" thought democracy was just another name for business as usual even when the life of the nation was at stake. For, said this young man who has passed through Eton and Oxford to the Royal Air Force, "I must tell you frankly, and I hope you won't think me too rude, that I and my friends in England do not feel there is much to be said for the kind of democracy we had in England until Dunkirk, when they carried on business as usual and got us unprepared into this bloody mess."

MR. SULLIVAN'S second question, whether England is going to be a socialist country after the war, is like asking Joe Louis to describe how he is going to fight his next five prize fights. For Joe Louis, now that he has become an orator, as well as a pugilist, would have to reply that until he knew whether he was going to knock out the next contender or be himself knocked out, it was pretty foolish to ask him what he was going to do about his subsequent opponents; indeed until his next fight was over and he knew the result, he would not even know who his next opponent was going to be. Yet Mr. Kennedy is expected to know what the British people will be doing after the war has been fought and the peace made and the reconstruction begun. If Mr. Kennedy knows that, he is not an ex-Ambassador. He is the Delphic oracle, the Sibyl of Cumae, Nostradamus, Walter Winchell, the reader of the riddle of the Sphinx, and several fortune-tellers, crystalgazers, mind readers, and racetrack tipsters all rolled into one.

It would, indeed, be interesting to know what England will be like when the war is over. If only we knew that, we should know practically everything that anyone needs to know. We should know the outcome of a hundred unfought battles, the course of campaigns as yet undecided which will extend from China to Iceland, the chances of unanticipated victory and the effects of unforeseeable defeats upon 20 nations all reacting one upon the other. We should know how people will feel and what they will think about events that they have not yet experienced and cannot foresee. We should not be men sweating and struggling in the present but gods to whom nothing is a mystery.

BUT SINCE WE are not gods, the only answer to Mr. Sullivan's question is that the future of English society, and of every other society on earth, will be shaped by the survivors of the war in the circumstances which will prevail as this long and unpredictable war proceeds. No one can say more, and no one who has grasped the complexity and the duration of this immense historic crisis will imagine that he can say more.

For the question implies that the future is predestined, which is just exactly what all the ideologues would have us believe. But in fact the future hangs in the balance; it hangs upon the valor and the fortitude, the lucidity and the genius, the invention and the work, the weapons and the sacrifice,—the convictions and the conscience of peoples and their leaders.

THE SURVIVORS of this struggle are as yet unknown. For in each country those who are in command will survive if they succeed; and if they fail, they will fall away and others will replace them. No one can know whether the postwar England will be shaped by the businessmen who ruled Britain when Mr. Kennedy first went to London, or by the men who have ruled it since Dunkirk, or by the young men who have saved England from destruction and may yet establish her as the liberator of Europe. In an ordeal of this sort all the men who pretend to leadership and the representatives of every class which aspires to authority are tested,—are retained or rejected, survive or perish,—not by their promises and theories but by their deeds and the consequences.

For that reason a question like that put to Mr. Kennedy is a poor question. For it fails to see that the businessmen, who are alarmed by the question, can maintain their position in the society of the future only by demonstrating that they can do what the democracies need to have done, that they can contribute to its survival an indispensable strength. This contribution will not be made by frightened and nervous men who let themselves be perturbed by rumors, guesses, and half-baked opinions. No one can preserve the historic order of business in the English-speaking world by spreading alarm among businessmen. To do this is a great disservice to everyone—the businessmen first of all. For what businessmen will need in the trials through which our whole Western society is passing is a dedication to its security and dauntless courage and that chivalry which is always and everywhere the sign of men who are fit to govern in the station to which they are called.

Questions For Barkley

By Mark Sullivan

Congress' Due

THE WALTER-LOGAN bill is now before the President, for signature or veto.

The recent discussions of the Walter-Logan bill in this column have omitted any allusion to its merit. As to the merit of any bill there are two aspects. The first is the objective, the principle involved, the end sought. As to this, there is no question. Even the opponents of the bill admit that some such measure is is needed.

The second aspect of the merit of any bill is its method, whether it is well adapted to the end sought, whether any of its details are objectionable. As to this, there can be no doubt the Walter-Logan bill as it stands contains defects. The bill as it stands is criticized by persons who believe most strongly in its objective. (The reason for some of these defects will appear later herein.)

But the merit of the Walter-Logan bill is apart from, and is a superficial thing, compared to the deeper question involved. So far as the Walter-Logan bill illustrates this deeper question, it could be the X bill or the Y bill.

THE DEEPER question is the world-wide conflict between two ideals and systems. One is government by legislative bodies composed of representatives elected by the people. The other is, government by one-man dictatorships, who supplant legislative bodies.

In this conflict, legislative government is losing, tragically. Today there is not one first-rank legislative body left on the continent of Europe, or Asia, or Africa. Even that mother of legislative bodies and of representative government, the British Parliament, is today operating under self-imposed limitations.

The solitary first-rank, freely functioning legislative government left in the world today is the Congress of the United States. The men who compose the present Congress of the United States have a sacred responsibility to the whole world. They are the custodians and trustees of the institution of legislative government by representatives of the people. They are also in a poignant sense its physicians, for the institution, in the world as a whole, is upon a sick bed.

IN THIS condition, it is hardy necessary to say that Congress should carry on its function, show its vitality, in such a way as to meet the country's needs, preserve the people's regard and confidence. It is failure in this respect that has led to the death of legislative bodies abroad, has caused the people to turn toward one-man governments.

By this test consider the history of the Walter-Logan bill. It has been before this Congress during substantially the whole of its existence, now nearly two years. The House lived up to its function completely, debated the bill for three days, and on April 18 last passed it by 282 to 97.

The Senate, however, is a different story. When the Walter-Logan bill first came up a year and a half ago, June 13, 1939, Senate Leader Barkley asked that it be postponed, giving as his reason that the President had asked the Attorney General to appoint a commission to consider the subject matter of the bill. The bill came up again July 19, 1939, and was passed without a roll call, with no voice dissenting. The next day Leader Barkley explained that he had been out of the Senate and asked that the bill be reconsidered. This the friends of the bill granted, upon Senator Barkleys' assurance, as expressed by himself, "that the measure be taken up at some date early in the next session."

"EARLY IN THE next session" was last January. But the bill was not taken up. Again and again, over a period of eight months, when friends of the bill sought to bring it up, Leader Barkley asked and secured postponement. Finally, last September, Leader Barkley under pressure agreed that he would not oppose having the bill come up after the election—by that time, he said, the Administration's commission would have reported.

November 25 the bill came up. This was the time for Senator Barkley and other opponents of the measure to debate it, to bring forward their objections, to propose amendments, to perfect the measure. But this Senator Barkley did not do. He said the Administration's commission was not yet ready to report. Once more, for perhaps the tenth time, Leader Barkley asked for delay—until next January.

BUT THE FRIENDS of the bill knew that next January would be a new Congress. The passage of the bill by the House last April would be null. It would be necessary to begin all over in both houses. Friends of the bill insisted on action.

Thereupon, Senator Barkley said, "I shall not discuss the merits of the Walter-Logan bill," and asked for a vote at once. Thus the bill was passed, in a form which would give the President justification for vetoing it if he chooses. He has been opposed to the bill throughout.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, is the leader of the upper branch of the one first-rank legislative body that remains freely functioning in the world today. Mr. Barkley might properly ask himself some questions. Has he, throughout his course on the Walter-Logan bill, been loyal to the legislative body that wanted the bill, or to the administrative branch of government that did not want it? Has he acted in the spirit of his trusteeship for the institution of legislative government everywhere?

The Mystery Of Jules Romains

JULES ROMAINS' "Seven Mysteries of Europe" (Knopf, $2.50) is a mysterious book. It raises far more questions than it answers.

The seven mysteries which give M. Romains his title are "the mystery of Daladier," "the mystery of Gamelin," "the mystery of Leopold III" (of Belgium), "the English mystery," "the Nazi mystery," the "mystery of Ribbentrop and Co." and "who saved Fascism?" In each of these mysterious chapters, however, M. Romains presents chiefly the mystery of Jules Romains. We knew him as a long-winded novelist; in this mysterious story he appears as the super-politician of Europe.

At the end of the last World War, Romains explains, he, having "a very practical imagination," decided not to let himself be as futile as had been Zola and Anatole France in other crises. "I would try to have some control over actions which usually remain secret," he says; and 15 years later, he adds, realizing that "the masses were more and more difficult to reach," he decided "to establish contacts with their masters." Five years later still he was one day discussing "a vast plan" which was known only to one of the sovereigns of Europe, to this sovereign's man of confidence, and to Romains himself, when "the King's Man" stopped short "and exclaimed with a strange laugh: 'You know, your position is absolutely unique in Europe and even in the world. I can't think of any other like it.'"

The reader at this point is likely to remark to himself that possibly the psychiatrics, students of delusions of grandeur, might have thought of others like it.

IT SEEMS THAT Jules Romains was the man who made Yvon Delbos France's minister of war. It seems that it was Romains who told Prime Minister Daladier how to run France. He prints here, indeed, the text of a letter he wrote Daladier in 1938; and to some readers it may seem that it might have been boiled down to these words: "Dear M. Daladier: Be a dictator." It seems that he was as closely in touch with Georges Bonnet, whom some anti-Fascists have termed the evil genius of the France that surrendered, as with Yvon Delbos. Bonne', says M. Romains, is a man "most unfairly criticized"; on him, he says, "I can bestow nothing but praise." It seems that Daladier's fault was that though "he had all the power of dictatorship . . . in his soul he was still a democrat."

We learn other strange things: that Gamelin took Romains into his confidence and sent him to the Maginot Line, apparently in order that he might look about and tell the general what was wrong with it . . . and that he did . . . and that Gamelin neglected his recommendations. . . . It seems that in October, 1939, the French government, military and civil, uniting to honor him, sent Romains on a secret mission to Belgium to maintain the peace of the world, a mission never hitherto revealed; that Romains had in Brussels powers superior to those of the French Ambassador, and that accordingly he negotiated, through "the King's Man," with the King, and almost succeeded, but that Daladier, possibly jealous of Romain's success, failed to carry out the plan. . . . It seems, too, that "the King's Man," so mysterious in the early chapters of this mysterious book, was Henri de Man—the man to whom Leopold III, when he surrendered to Germany, first turned for a capitulationist Prime Minister.

In England, M. Romains performed his functions as a superstatesman; he lunched with Harold Nicolson and reported the conversation to the ambassador, who was startled. M. Laval felt, as he says the purely praiseworthy Bonnet repeatedly put it, that "the English are terrible."

M. Romains was the leader of what he calls "the July 9 movement" in France, a movement which in 1934 united various groups, including avowed Fascists, in a program for "reforming" France. He says that senators came to ask him to authorize them to act in his behalf; proposals were made to start newspapers which he would control; bankers offered him vast funds; ministers and generals sought his advice, and men said to him, "If France is some day to have a dictator, naturally he'll be an intellectual—a writer."

OTTO ABETZ, who was in 1940 to become the first German Ambassador to German-occupied Paris and high commissioner for occupied France, sought Romains out and they became good friends. "I had a liking for the man," he says. "It would have taken a hard heart to suspect him of lying. It was as though I was listening to a German translation of my own past dreams."

It was Abetz who arranged for Romain's triumphnt reception in Berlin late in 1934. The police gave him special protection. When he lectured he was greeted with "Wagnerian fanfares." "You know," one of his hosts told him, "no private individual has ever been received like this in Berlin." Baldur von Schirach arranged for the youth leaders of almost all Germany to carry back to their followers the message on "Germanism and Latinity" which Romains had preached. Goebbels took a personal interest in the translation of his books. The Ufa produced a Romains film. On his return to Paris Romains acted as intermediary between Ribbentrop and Laval.

Laval, apparently, did not entirely appreciate Romains. Once, when Romains met him in a lobby in Geneva and told him he was acting wrongly, Laval turned to a friend and said, "Well, well, I feel almost like going back to Paris, h'm? Jules Romains could take my place."

Jules Romains evidently thought he could have done so to advantage. At this point, to be sure, he was urging Laval to be firm against Mussolini. The Romains-Men of Good Will policy apparently applied to Germany more than to Italy or England.

"Seven Mysteries of Europe" is, as I said at the beginning of this column, a mysterious book, and its central mystery is the character of M. Romains. M. Romains, apparently, did not intend his book to be taken as fantasy, though that might be one of the easier solutions of the mystery. To elaborate others might violate the laws of libel.

The Saloon Beat

THE REINSTATEMENT of the New York Times correspondent in Rome, whence he had been expelled for offensive interpretation of the news, has given rise to a hope that a similar adjustment may be made between Mr. Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, and the press ministry of the Stork Club. It may be recalled that the press ministry of the Stork Club recently canceled Mr. Ross' visa, pointed to the frontier and told him not to come back. This action involved a serious question of the freedom of the press, because the expulsion was ordered in retaliation for something which the editor had published about the dean of the gents'-room corps of journalists, an elite and temperamental group.

It appears that the journalists of this sensitive clan have become the successor of the late Harry Lehr, who was the social tyrant of New York 40 years ago. Mr. Lehr in his day, with an impatient toss of his lovely head, the merest shadow of a pout or a stamp of his pretty foot, could exclude from the haunts of polite society anyone who displeased him.

SINCE SOCIETY moved into the saloons, however, this arbitrary authority has gradually been assumed by the journalists of the saloon beat, and is exercised through their power to advertise or omit from their dispatches all mention of any place whose proprietor admits persons of whom they disapprove. Most proprietors believe that their economic life is in the hands of the journalists of the gents'-room corps, figuring that in return for frequent free mention in print they can well afford to subject their paying customers to intrusion at their tables and embarrassing publicity. On the other hand, if they do not receive free publicity they may have to fold up.

This attitude has produced a variety of results. Some customers are so eager for personal publicity that they welcome such attention, and others are so fearful of reprisal in the press that they submit, anyway. There is also a danger that a client who tells a journalist of the gents' room corps to get away from his table will be turned in to the management as an undesirable person and blackballed the next time he wants to impress an out-of-town customer with his entree to the best saloons.

THUS, FROM the status of more or less obsequious moocher in the days of the speakeasies, to be seated at a small and rickety table near the kitchen and buffeted by the swinging doors as the waiters went in and out, the journalist of this corps has now become himself a social celebrity of high degree. He commands the most prominent table, where he may be easily pointed out, and it would be dangerous in the extreme for a proprietor to decline to provide the best accommodations for a member of the corps, even though cash customers were lined up ten deep outside.

A few proprietors have taken the opposite view, and one of these has gone so far as to exclude practically the entire corps—by indirect methods, it is true, but with satisfactory results.

The method in this case was not to keep out the members of the corps but to treat them as gentlemen—which, of course, is a mortal affront to a gents'-room journalist. Forbidden to sit in the laps of the customers, to ask them questions of an intimate, personal nature and to spread notebooks conspicuously on the main table, the journalist of this special corps immediately becomes aware that his celebrity has been impugned and automatically bars himself by refusing to return to a place where such indignity awaits him.

THE RESULT is that in a short time the entire corps drops away, and the proprietor is able to pass the word that his customers are free from molestation. Rather oddly, notwithstanding the publicity boycott, saloons observing this policy have been known to prosper greatly.

Holding that an important principle is at stake, Mr. Ross has refused to apply for a new visa for the Stork Club, although it is understood that the press minister has relented and would meet him half way. Indeed, Mr. Ross has said he is delighted to know that wherever he goes all members of the corps will abruptly leave. He has thought some of hiring out as a social exterminator whose very presence in a saloon is guaranteed to eliminate gents'-room journalists.

Capital Parade

Mr. Kennedy and Appeasement

LET THERE BE NO mistake about it. When Joseph P. Kennedy grandiloquently announced he was laying down his office to fight for the cause of peace, he really meant he was going to peddle appeasement all across the United States.

His former associates at the State Department, now visibly relieved to be his associates no longer, are firmly convinced of it. More than one of his closest friends and warmest customary defenders admit that it is so. His record speaks for itself. And despite his loud assertions to the contrary, he has half confessed as much himself. Indeed, he seems to have been at it already. For it must be more than a coincidence that wherever Kennedy has gone in the country since his return from London, there have been sudden crops of defeatist rumors and appeasement talk.

By following his announced plan of seeking out leading men and telling them his story, Kennedy may have a great effect on public opinion. His self-appraisal was revealed in his remarkable assertion, "I know more about Europe than anybody else in this country." Before his statements are taken at quite so bullish a valuation, however, it will be well to investigate the Kennedy record above-mentioned.

ONE OF HIS proudest boasts, made more than once since his return to this country, is that he did not succumb to the "blandishments" of the English. Undoubtedly he escaped the effect of the blandishments from such men as Winston Churchill and Ernest Bevin—the men who are now leading Britain's gallant battle for survival. Possibly Churchill and Bevin did not waste their compliments on our Ambassador, since he cast his lot from the start with the men who prepared Britain's disaster—Montagu Norman and Sir Horace Wilson, Neville Chamberlain, Sir John Simon and their cronies.

Of course, it was only to be expected that Kennedy's closest associates in London should be the chief appeasers. Theirs was the mentality of the City of London. Kennedy's mind had been formed when he was making his fortune by speculation on the stock exchange. It mattered little to Kennedy if Churchill and Bevin accused his heroes of thinking with their pocketbooks instead of their minds. He swallowed their theories of European politics whole, without a gulp.

KENNEDY MAY now deny that he so readily swallowed the appeasers' theories. Yet his own dispatches are the evidence to the contrary. In the period before the war, he constantly pressed on the President and the State Department the appeasement view. During the actual war crisis, he went so far as to hint pretty plainly that the President ought to bring pressure on Poland to succumb to Germany without struggle. After the war began he bombarded the department with repeated expressions of almost unalloyed defeatism. Sometimes these were too extreme to suit Kennedy himself, and he would then telephone the department and ask that his previous day's cable be read in the light of another dispatch. But unless his former associates are wilfully misrepresenting him, Kennedy's warning to the President that Britain was utterly worthless as an ally, sent a few weeks before his return, was fairly typical of his regular output.

Since Kennedy's return to this country, his course has been pretty difficult to follow. For example, at a luncheon with a number of extremely influential men in New York just after he landed, he was understood to say that "Britain is busted." Yet unless the President misheard him, or misquoted him to the Treasury, he warned the President while he was in Washington against being deceived into extending financial aid to Britain by any false British pleas of exhausted resources.

Again, although the Kennedy pattern appears to be a leading businessman, politician or publisher frightened into something approaching a fit, he has flatly denied being a defeatist. Fortunately, however, there is Kennedy's Boston interview to throw light on the situation.

IT WAS IN THIS remarkable interview, first printed in the Boston Globe, that Kennedy most fully admitted the public to his secret mind, covering Norman with grease, denouncing such British leaders as Ernest Bevin as the precursors of "National Socialism," and declaring frankly that Lindbergh "is not so crazy."

"The interview was written by Louis Lyons, a highly reputable reporter and one of Kennedy's oldest journalistic friends. It was read to Kennedy on the morning it was printed, when one of the Globe editors telephoned him for comment on the death of Neville Chamberlain. Kennedy offered no objections. It was again read to him the same afternoon, when British newspapers and news services requested permission to quote it. On this occasion, Kennedy was specifically asked to approve the quotations appearing in the interview, and willingly consented to do so. Yet a day or so later, after he found himself in trouble, he blandly repudiated the same interview he had twice heard and passed on, declaring it was not authorized and tended to misrepresent him. Under the circumstances, one wonders what weight to attach to Kennedy's subsequent loud disclaimers of defeatism and appeasement tendencies.

To date Kennedy's great "peace crusade" has been an indirect effort to sway public opinion, by off the record talks with influential individuals. Thus it is almost impossible for the Administration to deal with him, although certain State Department officials are now reported to be investigating his doings. Meanwhile it will be well to remember that as an adviser to the American people, Kennedy deserves about the same degree of respectful attention as would be accorded, say, to Sir Horace Wilson in London. He speaks from the same point of view. His judgments are the same. And all the evidence suggests his motives are similar.

The Indian Bulbul

Edward S. Lloyd, of Yonkers, a Wall Street broker, saw a bright green bird with a golden breast in his garden several times. Unable to identify it, he pursued a lengthy inquiry, and finally found it to be the Golden Fronted Green Bulbul of India. No record of any such bird being at large in this country, the bulbul has been caught and placed on exhibition in the Bronx Zoo as one of the major sensations of the year. Mr. Lloyd might have identified the bulbul at once, say we, if he had contacted John "Info" Kieran, king of the bird and bee men. But it is almost as hard to find John these days as it is to find a bulbul.

The Puzzle

Bulbul of India, gold-fronted or not,
How did you come to a Yonkers lot?
Bulbul, so greenish, except in one place,
What are you doing so far from your base?

Bulbul from Delhi, graceful and pretty,
How came you close to the Bronx and our city?
Bulbul of Indore—here is the joker—
Free, why the hell did you call on a broker?

"TO SWAP—A good rowboat (new, 16 feet) for a standard banjo or woodworking machinery. D. 477."

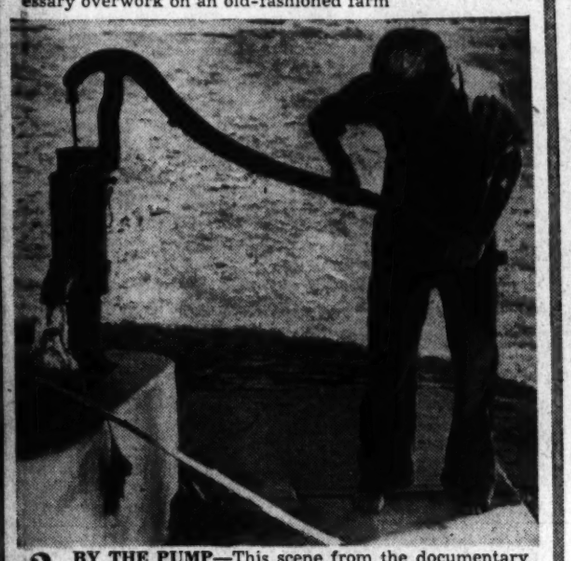
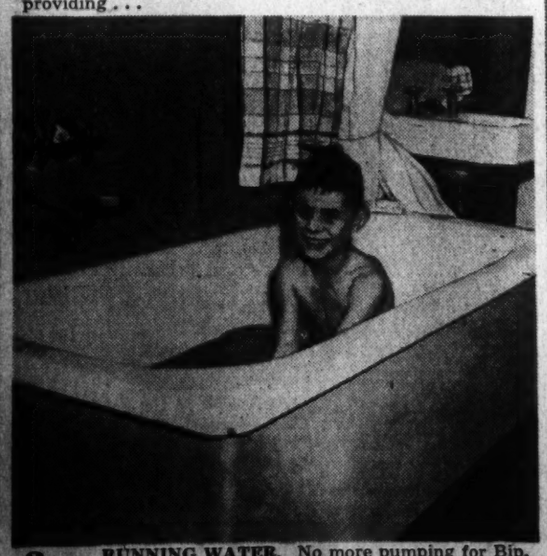
Power and The Land . . .

1. LIGHT IN THE DARK—"Power and the Land," the story of the William Parkinson family living near St. Clairsville in the picturesque rolling hills of Ohio, has been filmed for the Rural Electrification Administration. REA funds bring electricity to the Parkinson dairy and crop farm, put an end to drudgery and unnecessary overwork on an old-fashioned farm



2. BY THE PUMP—This scene from the documentary film shows Bip Parkinson, young son of Farmer Parkinson, drawing water by hand-pump. The power line put through to the Parkinson farm gave the Parkinsons electric lights, a refrigerator, a washing machine, motor-driven grindstone, a radio and an electric pump providing . . .



3. . . . RUNNING WATER. No more pumping for Bip. And he doesn't have to pour water by the bucket into this tub. The Parkinson family is typical of the 2,000 families served by one REA cooperative system in eastern Ohio. More than 600 similar projects have been organized since 1935

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The Parrot

I talk and talk:
To the elevator man, the trash man, the people I meet in halls, on the streetcars and buses:
About the weather yesterday, today and tomorrow, last year and the year before, and how this climate compares with all other climates.

I chatter and chatter:
To the grocer, the druggist, the saleswomen in stores, the beauticians, the dressmaker, the man at the bank window:
About this and that and what will I have and how much, and how is the weather out now and isn't it all too bad about what the headlines are saying?

I shout and shout:
To acquaintances, utterly strange women, and vaguely familiar ones at large gatherings:
About the decorations, the hors d'oeuvres, the antiques the weather, and how rushed we all are, and how we all ought to see more of each other.

I gabble and gabble:
With intimates, friends and enemies at chatty little luncheons and teas:
About the new styles and permanents, about who is getting a divorce and why, about who saw the new play and who hadn't, who read the latest book and who didn't, about how rushed we all are and what so-and-so said in his column.

I babble and babble:
To the man on my left, to the one on my right, to the one across the table and to the one standing by the punch bowl:
About his golf, and his business and his health and what he likes on the radio and the editorial page, and what he thinks about the Redskins, about Roosevelt, about the war and about women.

I opine and declaim:
At club and committee meetings, at mass meetings, rallies, study classes and movements:
About amendments and by-laws, plans for the annual banquet and the State convention, who will be on the national ticket, how to make members pay dues, how to make nonmembers join, and how to "get all the women together."

I utter words upon words:
To all of my family, to relatives who call on the phone, to women who work in my kitchen.
About what we shall have for breakfast, luncheon and dinner; which radio program we'll hear, which movie we'll go to; whether we can afford this or that, and what to do about clothes, insurance and taxes and all the mechanics of living.

But I never commune:
With those friends, old or new—or those friends yet unknown, yet sighted afar—whose rivers of mind flow along with my own:
About remembrances of beauty seen, heard or felt; about the adventures of science, the onsweep of knowledge, about forces that sweep beyond our small, petty orbits; about tomorrow's horizon, its threats and its promise; about the gropings of man toward the gleam in the darkness.

New Game Helps Solve Yule Problem

You scratch your head. At least three lines of perplexity appear on your forehead. Then suddenly you break into laughter. Soon Aunt Mabel, Cousin Sue, little brother Bill, and the rest of the family join in the hilarious mood.

All this entertainment comes from a brand new game that has just been introduced in a local store in time to solve one of your Christmas shopping problems. This game, "Geometricks," consists of a series of 21 problems for making geometric designs with various sizes and shapes of cardboard pieces. It is fun when played alone or with a large group.

For Intimate Gifts

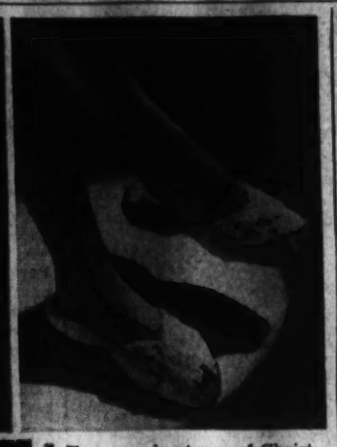
If this is the way you want to look Christmas morning, begin hinting now. To put you into the spirit, Rosemary Lane, of the films, wears a flesh-colored satin nightie, over all a powder-blue negligee. The pleated satin slippers are always a favorite gift for women. A variety of slippers are always a need. There are as many different styles and makes as there are fancies. As a gift, they are most welcome



Two popular types of Christmas bedroom slippers are shown above. Left—A chiffon suede scuffie for those who like them soft with eye appeal, feminine to the minute. With two broad bands crossing the instep, this style is simple enough to be practical for wear everywhere. Right—The child-like fancy of the nursery is transformed into a fat and furry slipper of lovable fabric similar to your constant childhood pet—the teddy bear

Stress Placed On Bigness In New Lamps

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Right now, lamps have blossomed forth in very new versions—so different that your old lamps are most certainly looking as "out" as a last year's hat. In the first place the new lamps are big—at least twice as big as they have been in seasons past. This alone would tend to make them more important decoratively, even if they were not more interesting in design than they've ever been. Metallic shades, black shades, novelty materials for shades—these are other trends. Eyelet embroidery, sequin trim, fur, velvet are among the startling innovations for shades. Stretched taffeta and satin are still seen and still smart. A petticoat of organdy over flowered chintz makes the prettiest of the informal shades. Taffeta skirt shades with corded shirring are effective for a fussier effect.

A recent fashion show of new lamps included many spectacular models. The star was a lamp with a base made of a handsome big brass samovar; the shade was covered in gold foil trimmed with interlaced loops of gold rings; the tray of the samovar was planted with greenery. Another lamp that stopped the passing eye had a massive carved post base and a shade of guess what—lapin fur spangled with ermine tails. An old brass coffee grinder made the base for a lamp which had a gold foil shade with an open-work design cut out in chevron motif.

Girl Scouts and Brownies Learn Self-Reliance, Says Mrs. Staton

GROWTH through responsibility—that's one lesson in child-rearing which mothers could learn from the Girl Scouts, believes Mrs. Adolphus Staton. She is raising a daughter of her own, is the leader of Brownie Troop 148 here and also helps train other Girl Scout leaders. "Discipline comes from the girls themselves rather than from their elders these days," she says. "For instance, if a troop plans an outdoor meal, the girls themselves make out the menu, decide how much to spend and how to raise the money. If one girl fails to do her share and causes someone to go hungry, naturally the rest are 'down' on her and she'll do better next time."

MRS. STATON

Another trend in scouting is the new emphasis on the interests of the girls themselves. "They used to wear and do what we wanted them to," Mrs. Staton says. "Drills were considered the thing, and we exploited the Scouts by putting them in parades. Now the drills have been replaced by square dancing, which is fun as well as good exercise. Knot-tying, which used to be one of the tests, has been put on a practical basis; a girl finds it's important to know how to tie up her blanket roll if she wants to keep her belongings intact on an overnight trip." The new informality apparently works, because Mrs. Staton says the current waiting list of prospective Scouts numbers about 1,500 Washington girls.

SAID-TO-BE-TRUE STORY—A young mother better versed in her profession than in child care was panic-stricken when her small daughter fell down the stairs. As the doctor examined the child, she wrung her hands pathetically and remarked, "Poor baby! This makes me feel so badly about throwing my law books at her yesterday."

DID YOU KNOW—that four children of Washington's only Governor still live in and near the city? Their father was Alexander Robey Shepherd, the "Maker of Washington" and one of the most colorful figures in local history, who held office from 1871 to 1874. His statue stands opposite the E Street entrance of the District Building, and an apartment house has been named for him. A son, Alexander Shepherd, lives in Alexandria; two daughters, Mrs. Edward A. Quintard and Mrs. Robert S. Wagner (resident secretary of the E Street Y. W. C. A.), live in Washington, and another, Mrs. Francis D. Merchant, makes her home in Kensington Park, Md. Mrs. Merchant, the family archivist, recently gave the Washingtoniana section of the Public Library two handsome volumes presented to her father at a public reception following his return from a stay in Mexico. "Father and mother were the only interesting ones in our family," she says; "the rest of us are just ordinary, everyday people."

Hair-Brushing Tip

You read a great deal about how to brush your hair, the experts usually claiming you should brush from the scalp out in long, sweeping strokes. Anna Neagle, movie star, also brushes the ends of her hair, round and round her fingers. She says this encourages the natural curl, offsets dryness, "polishes" her hair to the very ends.

New Handcrafts

Santa's going to be loaded with lots of gifts from California this year, for in that sunny land handcraftsmen dream up fantasies in pottery, glass, metal, plastics, wood. Eastern store buyers of novelties are now making buying trips to the West Coast as they once went to Europe in search of those little elegancies that make everyday life more gracious.

Lovely Chin Is Just Matter Of Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE are three things you can do to keep your chin lovely—or to make it lovelier. First of all and always, hold your head up. Next, use a cream to keep the skin soft. And, third, take just a little daily exercise to keep the tissues firm.

Posture is something you shouldn't have to give a thought—but probably you do have to. If you slump anywhere along the line, it affects the carriage of your head, which should be held square on your shoulders, with as straight a line as possible at the back of the neck, and a clear-cut right angle where the chin and throat meet.

Cream does not nourish the tissues. It does lubricate the skin—and that helps to keep away the lines. And along with the lubrication you get some massage, and that stimulates the circulation, thereby nourishing the tissues. So massage with cream is definitely in order, and knuckle massage is conceded to be the best because it allows for deep pressure without pulling the skin. Here's the way it is done:

Here's How to Do Knuckle Walk

Clench the fists and place the first and second joints of the fingers against the skin at the base of the throat. Then working the fingers separately, "walk" up the throat to the chin. Knead deeply under the chin, then, separating the hands, work along the under jawline toward the ears. This should be done with the cream on. Leave it on while you go on to exercise.

Here are three exercises which give returns out of proportion to the few seconds they take:

Stretch the neck as high as possible. Then, still stretching up with the throat, tip the head directly sideward and try to touch the ear to one shoulder. Come back to the erect position, stretch again, and try it on the other shoulder. Repeat three times, very slowly.

Stretch the neck and tense the throat muscles. Then turn the head slowly to one side, tip the chin high in air, and circle the head around to the other side. Circle the head back to center and rest, then repeat.

With throat exercises, it is necessary to relax the muscles slowly—and also to rest between exercises. Otherwise, you'll get dizzy! Begin an exercise by tensing the muscles, end it each time by letting the tension ebb away, then relaxing for a second.

Here is a final exercise, and one which is more strenuous:

Lie on the back on the bed with the head hanging limply over the side—just let the head dangle, with muscles of throat completely relaxed. Now, very slowly bring the head up until it is in line with the shoulders, chin and throat forming a right angle. Repeat slowly, three times.

Is Wife to Blame for Husband's Drinking? If So, How Has She Failed? Wed Six Years, Woman Tells Defeat in Work and Marriage During That Time

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college graduate, 33 years old, employed by the Government for the last ten years. Six years ago I married a divorced man and we now have a daughter one year old. Our income is small, my husband's salary being just about the same as mine.

Failure in my domestic affairs and failure in my work is causing me to assume a defeatist attitude. My husband has gone into a steady decline. He is becoming a chronic drunkard—his heavy drinking dating back to about the time we married. I knew he drank a little before we married, but I had no idea it would get such a hold on him—as most of our friends take occasional cocktails. I am beginning to wonder if I am in some way to blame.

We separated for a short period two years ago. Then he begged another chance and promised to do better, so we decided to try again. His promises were soon broken, but by that time we had our future child to consider, so we carried on. During this period, he left me alone many nights and was often drunkenly quarrelsome and insulting when at home.

After the baby's birth he really tried to give up drink, but without success. Now he is back to his old—and, I fear—permanent ways. His own mother is terrified of him—although he usually stops short of physical violence. The money he spends on his sprees—which occur three or four nights a week—is a constant source of argument. But he can be charming when sober; and he is, at times. This is the point that bothers me.

I have long since ceased to love him, but have I the right to deprive my daughter of her father? Should she be given a chance to know him and judge him for herself? Or should I get a job elsewhere and take her away—where she will never know him and be humiliated by him, as I have been?

Now, about my work: I work hard, and I do good work, but still I do not win promotions as fast as my co-workers. In my work, as in my marriage, it would see mthat I must be somehow at fault. But I cannot for the life of me figure out why I have fallen down on both jobs. Can you straighten me out? DAUNTED.

Husband Responsible For Cycle of Defeat

DEAR DAUNTED: Professional preferment usually is shown the worker who combines attractive appearance and pleasing personality with technical efficiency. If obliged to choose between (1) an employe who is outstanding in the performance of his job, but personally unattractive, and (2) another employe who "makes a good appearance" and "gets on well with people," yet is only a passable workman, the average personnel director will favor the latter when promotions are being dealt out.

I mention this prefatory to saying that I believe your marital troubles (of the last six years) account in large part for your failure to progress, professionally. Were it not for your statement that you "work hard and do good work," I should have said that your work itself probably suffers as a result of your home worries.

But if you are keeping your office output up to par and above—despite the terrific handicap of incessant domestic tension—without winning promotions, it must be that your overburdened manner and drab appearance are unfavorably assessed by your superiors. ("A faithful worker," one can imagine them rating you; "but not the person for that job—" when searching out the employe to shove ahead.)

In brief, you are being professionally penalized for your inescapable reaction to your husband's drunkenness. Your "failure at work" must be laid at his door. Also, he is primarily responsible for your alleged "failure" at home. Any wife who has ever contended with a drunken husband knows the absolute impossibility of building a tolerable marriage, or creating a peaceful home, with an alcoholic partner.

Indeed, I once heard a psychiatrist, lecturing on "Preparation for Marriage," warn his audience that no marriage can happily survive where there exists either a problem of chronic alcoholism, or of callous infidelity or of financial irresponsibility;—and the three weaknesses usually are interrelated.

Because your husband's heavy drinking dates back to "about the time" you were married, you wonder if you have unwittingly contributed to—or occasioned—his decline. You may set your mind at rest on that score. I herewith acquit you of that self-accusation. Most advanced research into the cause-and-cure of alcoholism indicates that alcoholism is an outward manifestation of inward distortion. It is a maladjusted person's attempted retreat-from-reality. All major causes of his alcoholism inhere in his own nature—in his mental processes and organic and nervous system. What "drives him to drink" would not comparably affect the healthy personality. Yet it is a drunkard's characteristic to blame other persons (usually some intimate), as well as conditions outside himself, for his demoralizing behavior.

I imagine it is no coincidence that your husband has been once divorced already. I daresay his first wife found him as non-cooperative, as inadequate to the character-testing responsibilities of marriage, as you have—even though his "escapism" may have taken some other form than alcoholism during those years.

Now that you have a child, your first duty is to her—if a choice must be made between your husband and her. And I think a choice must be made, inasmuch as his performance progressively disables you—her one socially responsible parent—to safeguard her welfare. So, if you have opportunity to remove both yourself and her from the sphere of his demoralizing influence, I think you would be wise to embrace it. It would be better for the child to grow up with a happy, sentimentalized memory version of her father's personality—then that she should be continuously subjected to his humiliating and distressing presence.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Many Parties Planned For Harriet Whitford

Will Be Wed to Edwin Graham Kintner, Jr., December 14, at Alexandria Home Of Frances Parkinson Keyes, the Author

By Hope Ridings Miller

A FLURRY OF PARTIES will swirl around Harriet Stearns Whitford before her marriage to Edwin Graham Kintner, jr., on Saturday, December 14. To mention but a few prenuptial fetes already on her calendar—three are Mrs. Alexander Heron's shower for her tomorrow afternoon, and Mrs. Emory A. Wheeler's dinner for her and Mr. Kintner at the Chevy Chase Club.

Hope Ridings Miller

Mrs. William Bradley Willard will honor the bride-elect at a luncheon next Tuesday, and Mrs. Jack Hayes will give a cocktail party for her and the prospective bridegroom on Friday afternoon. That evening, Miss Susan Kintner will honor the couple at a supper party.

A sizeable number of Capitalites found in their mailboxes yesterday morning invitations to the reception which will follow the wedding. Both events will take place at the Alexandria home of Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, the author, who has written more "best sellers" than you can count on both hands. (Her latest, incidentally, is "Fielding's Folly.") The wedding ceremony is set for 4:30 p. m. and the party afterward will go on the boards from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Miss Whitford will have as matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Burton Grant Wadsworth, of Danville, Va. Other attendants will include Miss Kintner, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Wheeler. Dr. V. William Weakley, of Philadelphia, will be best man, and Mr. Wadsworth and Jack Hayes will serve as ushers.

Miss Whitford is the daughter of Mrs. George Langdon Whitford, of Washington. Mr. Kintner's parents are Capt. Edwin Graham Kintner, U. S. N., and Mrs. Kintner. He and his bride will make their home in Baltimore.

Speaking of one forthcoming wedding reminds me of another. Willis J. Ballinger, economic adviser to the Federal Trade Commission, and Miss Helen Louise Whitehead, of Trenton, N. J., will walk down the aisle on Sunday, December 15. The ceremony will take place in the Episcopal Church, Princeton, and some top-flight Washingtonians will be among the witnesses.

Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas are planning to be there, and also Federal Trade Commissioner Charles H. March, Mrs. March and several others. A reception at the old Princeton Inn will follow the rites, and the couple will leave immediately afterward on a wedding trip—destination unrevealed. They will be back in Washington "very soon," according to the prospective bridegroom.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, is also the date Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies has set for her departure for New York, where she will spend the remainder of the winter at Hampshire House. Meanwhile, she will be feted at a number of parties, including the luncheon Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock will give for her next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leon Grosjean, who recently returned from a trip to California and are now back in New York, came down the past week-end for a brief visit with Mrs. Davies. They also spent a day with Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings at "Oakington," their Maryland home. Senator and Mrs. Tydings will come to Washington after January 1 to spend the remainder of the winter at a house they have taken on Massachusetts Avenue. Mrs. Davies' home will be occupied until May 15 by Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, who is now in New York for a few days, after closing her home in Newport.

ODDMENTS OF INTEREST: "How Good Is As Good As Gold," the title of a talk Prof. Edward C. Acheson will give today before the Twentieth Century Club. Back from a brief stay in New York are the Chilean Commercial Counselor and Senora de Campbell, who went to bid von voyage to their daughter, Senora de Butendieck, who sailed for her homeland on Saturday . . . At the Copley Plaza, Boston, are Rear Adm. and Mrs. Adolphus Staton, and Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Titus.

Mme. Piscator Is Entertained By Mrs. Guider

Group Gathered To Meet Director Of Repertory Club

Entertaining in her lovely home on Kalorama Circle yesterday afternoon Mrs. John William Guider gathered in a congenial group of ladies to meet Mme. Piscator, who is directing the work of the Washington Repertory Club.

A bright log fire greeted guests as they arrived in the midst of a cold wave. Mrs. Guider's home, a symphony of soft damask drapes, French wallpaper and pastel furniture, was filled with flowers. Huge urns with both calla lilies and Easter lilies were used in the drawing room. Ruby red roses adorned the dining room where the hostess's mother, Mrs. Frank Hogan, and Mrs. Joseph J. Cotter poured tea or coffee. Mrs. Cotter, who wore a teal blue ensemble, reported that her daughter, Margaret, had just returned from a trip to New York.

Mrs. Guider received, wearing a gold lame gown clipped with a rhinestone pin. Mme. Piscator wore a fetching feather hat and her simple black frock had two large brilliant inserts on the bodice. She said that for the first time in their lives she and her husband, Erwin Piscator, will be competing with each other. The famed director's new play, "King Lear," opens in New York on Sunday evening—the same night "D. C. Melody" makes its appearance here.

The tea table was filled with dainties. Tiny biscuits with ham vied with thick chocolate cake and cookies of all varieties.

Seen here and there were Mrs. Joseph A. Marr, with a smart leopard coat thrown over her pale green ensemble . . . Mrs. Albert Warner all in brown . . . Mrs. George Horning chatting with Mrs. Norman Frost . . . Mrs. Andrew W. Cruse sporting a sombrero . . . Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr., with a panel of silver cloth down her black frock . . . pretty Mrs. Frederick Towers chatting with Trudy Goth, who has a part in the forthcoming production . . . Mrs. John Selby, all in black . . . Mrs. Charles D. Hayes . . . Mrs. Douglas MacKenzie . . . Mrs. John J. Beatty, jr., conversing with Mrs. Duke Patrick.

Pickett-Sharpe Nuptials Held At Festooned St. Alban's

MRS. GORDON BLAIR SHARPE

Bride in Ivory Satin Given in Marriage by Her Brother; Mrs. Victor Knoop Matron of Honor; Couple Will Make Home in Washington

St. Albans Church last evening at 8 o'clock was the scene of a wedding of wide interest when Miss Dorothy Chandler Pickett, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Robertson Pickett became the bride of Gordon Blair Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Melvin Sharpe.

The Rev. Charles T. Warner officiated at the ceremony before an altar banked with palms and decorated with white lilies and snapdragons. Prior to the rites Miss Elizabeth Walls, of Philadelphia sang.

Given in marriage by her brother, Harry R. Pickett, the bride appeared in a gown of traditional ivory satin, with high neckline, trimmed with a wide collar of seed pearls. Long fitted sleeves, ending in points at the wrist; a bodice draped with a satin girdle, and a sweeping skirt falling into a fan-shaped train were further accents for the frock. A veil of illusion, falling from a tiara of seed pearls to the hem of the train, and a prayer book with a shower of valley lilies completed the picture.

Mrs. Knoop Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. Victor Knoop, matron of honor, wore rose velveteen, fashioned on princess lines with a heart-shaped neckline and short shirred sleeves. Her bouquet of pink roses matched her small hat, which was set off with a short veil. Bridesmaids were Miss Marie Jorolemon, Miss Helen Barnes, Miss Louise Menefee, and Miss Mary Chandler Robertson, of Portsmouth, Va. Their gowns of blue velveteen were made like that of the matron of honor, and they wore hats to match their bouquets of yellow roses.

C. Melvin Sharpe was best man for his son; and ushers included Malcom Sharpe, brother of the bridegroom; William Heath, Dr. M. R. Edmonston, Fred Shawn, Victor H. Knoop, and Ray E. Millard.

A reception at the Columbia Country Club followed the ceremony. The bride's mother, receiving the guests, wore a frock of white lame, with a hat of orchid feathers and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Sharpe, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in blue lame, worn with a toque of blue velvet petals and an orchid corsage.

To Make Home In Washington

When Mr. Sharpe and his bride left on their wedding trip, she was wearing a gray-beige wool with soldier blue accessories, and a blue coat with a lynx collar and matching accessories. The couple will live in Washington.

Out of town guests included Mrs. R. R. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Robertson, of Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. C. O. Robertson and Miss Florence B. Robertson, of Petersburg, Va.; Commander and Mrs. Robert Donohue, of New London, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Glenn, of Ardmore, Pa.; Mrs. Arthur Walls, Miss Mildred Hall, Harper Guinn and Mrs. Joseph Guinn, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. del Mar Fetes Mrs. Ogle At Luncheon

Mrs. Carlos del Mar was hostess at a luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Charlotte Ogle, who will return to her home in Fairfield, Conn., today after a visit with Mrs. John Allan Dougherty.

Also in the company were Lady Chalkley, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy; Mrs. P. H. Given, mother of the hostess; Mrs. Sara Farrar, Mrs. Kemper Williams, Mrs. Dougherty and Mrs. H. Chotard Eustis.

Others who have feted Mrs. Ogle during her stay here include Mrs. Charles Drake, who gave a small luncheon for her Monday, and Mrs. Louis Owsley, who was hostess at tea Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. del Mar will give a small dinner Monday for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flack, who will leave the following day for Spain. Mr. Flack has been assigned to our embassy there. Mrs. del Mar will go to Maryland this week-end to close her country place for the winter.

Morgenthaus Feted at Dinner

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., were guests of honor at a dinner given last night by ranking officials of the Treasury. The party took place at LeSalle Versailles and among the guests was Henry Morgenthau, sr., father of the Secretary and former Ambassador to Turkey.

Others present were the Undersecretary of the Terasury and Mrs. Daniel Bell, Assistant Secretaries Herbert Gaston and John L. Sullivan; Mrs. Gaston, Mrs. Sullivan, Edward H. Foley, General Counsel Harold N. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Young, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Pehle, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Klotz, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Forbush, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. McReynolds.

De Grubens Fete Joseph Flacks At Dinner Party

The Counselor of the Belgian Embassy and Baroness de Gruben entertained at a dinner party last evening for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flack who will leave next week for Madrid where he will serve as Counselor of the United States Embassy.

Among those attending the dinner were the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mrse. Wennerberg, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark and others.

Louise Engel Is Engaged

Mrs. Norman T. Engel announces the engagement of her daughter, Louise, to Edward M. Lee, of Williamsburg, Va.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the Madeira School and Vassar College. Mr. Lee is a graduate of William and Mary College and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Plans are being made for the wedding to take place this winter.

Miss McGeachy To Fill British Embassy Post

For the first time in its history, the British Embassy in Washington will have a woman representative. She is Miss Craig McGeachy, who is reported to have done distinguished work for the ministery of economic warfare.

Miss McGeachy will come to the United States as soon as Clipper accommodation across the Atlantic is possible. She is a Canadian and will make frequent trips to Ottawa from Washington.

It is understood that one of her major tasks will be to explain to the American people the requirements of the British blockade and to explain that the relief of populations of countries occupied by Germany is primarily Germany's responsibility.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal Eason Ingersoll have issued invitations to the tea at which they will present to society their daughter, Alice Jean Ingersoll, December 14. The party will take place at the Ingersoll home, 3009 Cathedral Avenue, from 4:30 to 7 p. m.

Miss Audrey Cowan, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cowan, will be guest of honor at a bridge-tea to be given by Miss Hannah Jane Boggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Boggs, December 10 at her home on Wyoming Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Detlow Marthinson entertained a small group at cocktails yesterday afternoon.

Commander and Mrs. Charles C. Windsor have returned to their apartment at the Wardman Park, after spending a few days in Philadelphia and New York.

Mrs. William Lawrence Breese, of Washington, has joined the winter colonists at Aiken, S. C.

Mrs. William vom Rath and Miss Eleanor vom Rath of Glen Cove, Long Island, who spent last season in Washington, will be at the Ritz Towers in New York this winter.

Mrs. Martin Mendelsohn has returned from a week's visit in Philadelphia and New York.

Mrs. David Baer has returned from visits to her daughters, Carol and Barbara Ann, who are students at Wellesley and Vassar, respectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherby are spending a week at the Alcazar Hotel in Cleveland.

Miss Jobe, Mr. Johnson Are Wed Here

In a quiet ceremony Miss Elizabeth Van Dyke Jobe became the bride of A. Geary Johnson yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The wedding took place at the home of her mother, Mrs. N. Peyton Green Jobe, on Ashmead place. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mrs. A. Geary Johnson. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, who had selected a violet crepe gown and a cluster of orchids for the occasion. The bride was gowned in a French blue wool traveling suit and a corsage of gardenias.

Capt. Gordon Sheen, U. S. Army, was best man. A small reception followed the ceremony. The couple will spend the winter in Florida.

About the Town

—with Dudley Harmon

THOUGH diplomatic entertaining on the erstwhile big and merry scale has all but disappeared, this winter is the gayest for debutantes in many. The schedule for the Christmas holidays is already jammed with parties, and there's hardly a night left which isn't taken up with dinners or a dance.

DUDLEY HARMON

Instead of the inevitable engraved white cardboard invitations, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., have sent out amusing printed ones, bright red lettering on gray paper, bidding friends to a country dance on Thursday evening, January 2, at Grasslands. Everybody is supposed to wear costume, so there will probably be a great assortment of whiskered hill billies and dairy maids.

• • • •

MISS FLATHER will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given December 23 by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., and Miss Nancy Glover, who came out last year. Now at Vassar College, Miss Flather made her debut officially last June at a tea at her parents' home. She is the third generation of her family to be born in Washington, which makes her that rare person, a genuine Cave dweller. Miss Flather hopes to be a writer some day and has a job on the daily newspaper at Vassar.

• • • •

THE Metropolitan Club, where young people are usually a missing quantity, will be the scene of the dance the Samuel Kauffmanns will give December 28 for their daughter, Jessie. During the holidays the girls who have been away at college come into their own, as far as the debutante spotlight is concerned, and there are several parties a day for them. Miss Barbara Beale, a freshman at Smith, will be presented at a tea that afternoon.

Before the dance Mr. and Mrs. Kauffmann will give a dinner for their daughter, also at the Metropolitan Club.

WIVES OF members of the Netherlands Legation have been sitting up until 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning lately sewing for the benefit bazaar which opened on Tuesday and will continue until Christmas. Aided by friends from the British Embassy and sympathetic Americans, they have stitched luncheon sets, bed jackets, pin cushions, and practically everything that is made with a needle.

Now the ladies believe that they are going to be in business long after the bazaar closes, for so many orders were taken at the opening for their work. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Walter Lippmann were among those who visited the shop at 1739 Connecticut Avenue to aid the cause of the Dutch sailors who will celebrate Christmas interned in this country.

• • • •

THE CHAIRMAN of the benefit, Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, was on hand to see that everything went smoothly. The Dicks are settled in their home on Massachusetts Avenue until late in the winter, anyway. Mr. Dick has just returned from spending the Masschusetts Thanksgiving at St. Paul's School with his sons. The Dicks usually go to Lake Forest for Christmas with his mother, but this year will remain in the Capital over the holiday.

Among those who have already helped the sailors by visiting the bazaar are Mrs. Elliot Wadsworth, Mme. Procope, Mme. de Kauffmann and Mrs. Uline Hill. The Counselor of the Legation and Countess Van Rechteren gave a party after the opening to celebrate her birthday.

Mrs. M. J. McGrath Is Hostess At Luncheon

Mrs. Mathew J. McGrath, wife of the chief of the examining division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, entertained yesterday at the second in a series of luncheons at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Guests were Mrs. Sam H. Husbands, Mrs. John K. McKee, Mrs. Smith Blair, Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, Mrs. George Williams, Mrs. Donald Lawrence, Mrs. W. J. Johnson and Mrs. Thomas H. Davis.

E. J. Swifts Announce Birth of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest John Swift announce the birth of a daughter December 3 at Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. Swift is the former Miss Helen Griffen, daughter of Mrs. Robert Griffen and the late Rear Admiral Griffen. Mr. Swift is in charge of Foreign Operations of the American Red Cross.

Maryville College Aide Addresses D. A. R. Group

Department of Student Help Discussed By Miss Clemmie Henry, Its Head, Before Committee on Approved Schools

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

The Department of Student Help of Maryville (Tenn.) College was described to members of the District Daughters of the American Revolution last night by Miss Clemmie J. Henry, who has been director of the department for 22 years. Miss Henry addressed a meeting of the Approved Schools of Committee of the D. A. R. at the chapter house, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue, at which many of the chapter members who are interested in school projects were guests.

Mrs. Arthur C. Houghton, chairman of the committee, presented Miss Henry, who is in Washington on her return from a speaking tour of the New England States in the interest of the college.

The Student Help Department gives aid to 600 of the 800 students enrolled in the institution, helping them to work their way, either partly or entirely, through school, said Miss Henry. For more than 35 years, the Daughters of the American Revolution have been giving support to the student loan project, which is one part of the plan. The District Daughters are interested particularly in the rotating loan fund now being built up, from which students may borrow an amount that will cover their needs, supplementing the money they earn on the campus.

Instead of waiting to repay the loan until they have finished school and have secured jobs, the students are encouraged to pay it back in small amounts, month by month, from their after-school earnings, said Miss Henry. In this way, instead of leaving school with a debt on their hands, many of them are able to pay back the entire amount by the time they are graduated, she said.

Despite the fact that so many of the students are working to help pay for their education at Maryville, first emphasis at the college is placed on scholastic standards, said Miss Henry. The institution offers a four-year accredited liberal arts course for an A. B. degree and the work assigned the students to enable them to pay their way is not permitted to interfere with their studies.

In addition to grades for class work, they also receive grades on the work by which they earn part of their tuition, Miss Henry explained. This employment record, together with that on their repayment of the loans, constitutes a recommendation acceptable to employers when they leave colleg to go into business.

Approximately $45,000 a year is loaned to students. They are encouraged to have some money when they enter college, as the burden of doing college work and at the same time handle an outside job is considered heavier than it should be the first year, Miss Henry continued. The working students are assigned duties on the campus, in the laboratories, library postoffice, dining halls, kitchens and so forth.

A project for the girls is the College Maid Shop, where 100 are employed, making uniforms for the nurses in the veterans' hospitals over the country. The shop also made the robes last season for the Westminster Choir at Princeton, said Miss Henry.

The students are paid in cash for their work and learn to handle their own money and budget their resources.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Houghton entertained at a small tea in honor of Miss Henry. Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent of the District D. A. R., and Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, State vice regent, were among the guests invited to meet her.

Mrs. Inoff Entertains Sisterhood Hostesses

Mrs. Joseph Inoff, of 5810 Fourth Street Northwest, entertained the hostesses for the honor luncheon of the Adas Israel Sisterhood yesterday afternoon.

The donor luncheon will be held at the Mayflower Hotel on December 9 at 12:30 p. m. A program has been arranged with Miss Helen Hadassah Levinthal as the speaker. An original dramatic presentation has been prepared by Mrs. Henry Gichner, program chairman for the sisterhood.

TURNING from needs in Europe to those in the Far East, Washingtonians will patronize the annual Christmas bazaar of the Washington Committee for Aid to China opening Saturday of this week at 1625 H Street, and continuing until the day before Christmas. The bazaar, which is the second to be sponsored by the committee, will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Dr. Mortimer Graves is chairman of the committee for which the sponsors are Mrs. Willson Compton, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, Dr. Wesley M. Gewehr, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris and Dr. and Mrs. Walter Lowdermilk.

Both American and Chinese women will serve as sales people. There will be a wide variety of articles for gifts—embroidered linens and silks, jewelry, chinaware, carvings, tea, ginger and Chinese preserves—and each one bought will help China, whose struggle against aggression goes on.

AUTHORS' PARTY—Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, of the Readers Book Shop, is trying to get in touch with all Washington authors to invite them to be present and have their books on display at authors' night program set for December 16 at the Book Shop with Mrs. Roosevelt present as guest of honor. There will be no guests excepting the authors themselves who will have opportunity to meet one another and learn about one another's books. The Book Shop is located at 814 Seventeenth Street and the program will be at 8:30. Dr. Smith is anxious that authors whom she has not reached get in touch with her.

BIG SISTERS MEET—Judge Fay Bentley, of the Juvenile Court, was a guest at this week's luncheon meeting of the Big Sisters of Florence Crittenton Home, at the residence of Mrs. James Councilor, 1701 Kalmia Road. After a brief business meeting Judge Bentley talked informally on the part the court has in the cases involving girls and their children who are cared for at the home.

QUOTA CLUB—The Quota Club of Montgomery County is already looking forward to March when it will be the hostess club for the Tenth District convention in Frederick, Md. The club, which resumed its activities September 1, under the presidency of Edith Bennett, held its November dinner meeting Tuesday night at the Kenwood Country Club.

BENEFIT LECTURE TONIGHT—The Goucher Club of Washington is sponsoring a lecture tonight at the Women's Club of Chevy Chase by Dr. Karl Evang on "What Happened in Norway During the German Invasion." Proceeds will be divided between Norwegian relief and the Goucher College scholarship fund. Mrs. J. Luther Neff is chairman of the scholarship committee.

POSTER CONTEST—Winners have been announced in the poster contest, conducted in connection with the Barney Neighborhood House Bazaar, held yesterday and Tuesday, at Wesley Hall, 1703 K Street. The children of the arts and crafts department of the settlement house competed. Posters were judged by Miss Marguerite Munn, Washington artist. William Layfield, 11, won first prize. Others went to Sylvia Hawke, 13; Patricia Boswell, 14; Christine Grigsby 10, and honorable mention to Betty Latwas, 12.

BAZAAR TODAY—This afternoon and evening the annual bazaar and turkey dinner will be held at the Women's City Club, 736 Jackson Place. Christmas gifts, including a doll with a complete wardrobe, made by Mrs. H. R. Richardson, will be on sale. The dinner will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock. Mrs. John M. Glover is chairman.

'Cousin Mary' Feted on Fifth Birthday on Air

"Cousin" Mary Mason, director of the WRC Home Forum, was honored with a luncheon yesterday in the Cosmos Room of the Carlton Hotel, given by the National Broadcasting Company in celebration of her fifth anniversary on the air.

There were 40 guests, her friends from the women's clubs, the radio and the press. Among them were Mrs. LaVerne Beales, first vice president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edgar Briant Merritt, radio chairman for the District Federation who has been on the air with "Cousin Mary" on several occasions; Mrs. J. Fred Essary, president of the Women's National Press Club; Miss Katharine Brooks, president of the Newspaper Women's Club; Ruby Black, past president of the club and author of the recent biography "Life of Eleanor Roosevelt," and Frances Northcross, who first presented Miss Mason to the Washington radio audience five years ago.

A three-tiered birthday cake was a center of interest, lighted with five candles and decorated in violets, her favorite flower. The birthday wish in which all of the guests shared, was that the same party of friends be with her to celebrate her tenth anniversary.

"Cousin Mary" is a native of Indiana, went to school in Lincoln, Nebr., where her family had moved, and for some years was on the Lincoln Daily Star. Later she married, went to Boston, and there wrote for the Political Review. During a stay in the Orient, she conducted volunteer classes in American cooking in Tokyo.

Her interest in radio began while she was recuperating from an operation. She became an ardent listener. As soon as she was out of the hospital she visited a New York studio to see how programs were staged. She was first invited to sing, then to stage programs and, five years ago N. B. C. sent her to Washington in her present capacity.

Mrs. Good Named For Soroptimist Club Presidency

Mrs. Lorraine Good has been nominated for the presidency of the Soroptimist Club to succeed Miss Mary Bourke, who has served for the past year. The ballots were mailed to the members this week and the election will take place December 11.

Other officers on the ticket are Miss Estelle Zirkin, first vice president; Mrs. Elinor Lee, second vice president; Mrs. Beulah Drake, recording secretary; Mrs. Ruth Baker, corresponding secretary; Miss Agnes Cady, treasurer; Miss Daisy Reed and Mrs. Florence Meara, directors.

The club had its regular luncheon at the Willard Hotel yesterday with Miss Augusta Uhl in charge of the program honoring new members.

Universalist Women Hold Bazaar Tonight

The annual Christmas bazaar and turkey dinner, under the auspices of the Women's Association of the Universalist National Memorial Church, will be held this evening. The bazaar will open at 3 p. m. and the turkey dinner will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The general chairman is Mrs. Francis W. Erdman. The committee for the dinner includes Mrs. M. E. Jansson, C. B. Bradnack, Lola Millard, Mrs. Dorothea Morris and Mrs. W. B. Pack.

D. C. Wellesley Club Hears Mrs. Church

Need for Broader Vision Stressed by Alumnae Association President

Colleges today must give their students stamina to face the times, Mrs. Ralph Church told members of the Washington Wellesley Club last night. Speaking as national president of the Wellesley Alumnae Association, she stressed the need for broader vision. "Whereas it is the function of an alumnae association to strengthen and maintain the college, we never grow by merely protecting our own interests," she said.

Mrs. Church presented other members of the national executive board, each of whom outlined her duties. Mrs. Donald F. Roberts is first vice president of the Alumnae Association; Mrs. George Brabson, secretary; Miss Sibyl Baker, treasurer, and Mrs. O. H. Williamson, of Baltimore, second vice president.

Miss Dorothy Sells, chairman of the club's war work committee, "interviewed" Mrs. S. Paul Johnston as to progress of the benefit performance of Maeterlinck's "Seven Wishes" to be given at the National Theater December 27. Mrs. Johnston, who is general chairman of the war relief benefit, announced that a transcription of Princess Elizabeth's address to the British children would be heard in the program, and that the Metropolitan Police Boys Club would send its well-known harmonica band. The audience will include children from local orphanages and settlement houses as well as young war refugees, all of whom will attend as the club's guests, she added.

Mrs. Bernard Chandler, president of the club, was chairman of the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. Spencer Gordon, 2305 California Street Northwest. Mrs. James Newell Blair, chairman of the refreshment committee, was assisted by Mrs. Walter D. Brookings, Mrs. Glen D. Gillett, Mrs. Harold B. Whitmore, Mrs. John B. Wilson, jr., and Mrs. Francis Hoague, all of Alexandria.

Mrs. Marvin On Program

The players of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women will present Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin in a program of Christmas plays and legends Sunday evening in the lounge of the A. A. U. W. clubhouse, for members and their friends.

Mrs. Marvin will open her program with the reading of the one-act play, "The Mistletoe." A buffet supper at 6:30 will precede the entertainment.

Members of the Players' Group, of which Mrs. Edwin M. Brown is leader, and members of the Arts Committee, of which Mrs. A. Remington Kellog is chairman, will be hostesses for this occasion. Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, president of the association, will preside.

The following members of these groups have been invited to serve as hostesses: Dr. Edith Louise Allen, Miss Eugenia Botkin, Miss Hazel A. Borned, Miss Erma Brown, Miss Beatrice Bulla, Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, Mrs. Victor K. Chestnut, Mrs. Ita D. Clarke, Miss Stella R. Clemence, Miss Anna Pearl Cooper, Mrs. Henry W. Draper, Dr. Alice C. Evans, Mrs. W. C. Report Tells Of Pennroad Stock 'Favors'

'Certain Individuals' Offered Shares at Price Reduction

By the Associated Press

A report of the Senate Railroad Finance Committee says that "certain favored individuals" were offered voting trust certificates in Pennroad Corporation at $15 a share at a time in 1929 when the stock was being sold at up to $22.25 on a "when-issued" basis on the New York Curb market.

The "private offering," the committee said in one of a series of reports to the Senate on its 1936-38 investigation of railroad financing, accompanied the formation of Pennroad by officers and directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

The committee said the trust certificates offered to the "favored" investors were to come from those which were to be offered to stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and not accepted.

H. H. Lee, president of Pennroad, wrote to the 17 directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the committee reported, and invited them to suggest persons to whom the special offering should be made.

"Director E. C. Felton, for example," the report said, "suggested that 5,000 shares be offered to Mr. Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co.; 5,000 shares to Mr. H. E. Lewis, also of the Bethlehem Steel Co., and 1,000 shares each to five other Bethlehem officials.

Derrance on List

"Mr. Felton also suggested Justice William I. Schaffer, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. He wrote: 'Judge Schaffer would like to have his name put down as a subscriber to 1,000 shares.'

"Eventually a list of 43 names was prepared and offers of stock were made in letters to them dated June 7 to June 12."

The report said that John T. Dorrance, a Pennsylvania director and head of the Campbell Soup Co., was on "the list" for 25,000 shares.

"Some 10,000 shares were offered to the Philadelphia National Co., an affiliate of the Philadelphia National Bank," the report continued, "at the suggestion of Pennsylvania Railroad Director Martin W. Clement.

"Subsequently another special list was prepared by Jay Cooke, a Pennroad director . . . Mr. Cooke suggested two lists of names, one list 'received through Charles D. Barney & Co., Philadelphia.'

"The Barney lists suggested some 40 names for a total of 213,300 shares. Among those listed were Mr. Fred J. Fisher, jr., General Motors Building, Detroit, 50,000 shares; Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, jr., General Motors Building, Detroit, 5,000 shares; Mr. Irving T. Bush, of the Bush Terminal Co., 5,000 shares; Charles D. Barney & Co., itself, 10,000 shares, and many others.

Allotments Reduced

"Because there were not enough shares to go around, none of the persons on the Barney lists was actually offered any shares.

"Indeed, the public subscription was so great that there were no shares left for those on the lists suggested by the directors. In order to supply them all it was necessary to procure 25,891 shares from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and to reduce the allotments drastically. Mr. Dorrance, for example, was allotted 6,000 shares instead of the 25,000 originally offered him; Mr. Charles F. Clement, 400 instead of 1,400; the Philadelphia National Co., 3,000 instead of 10,000; Judge Schaffer, 250 instead of 1,000."

At the time Lee wrote to ask for suggestions as to whom offering should be made, the committee said, the certificates were being sold at from $21.37 to $22.25. When Mr. Felton made his suggestions, the report added, the shares were selling at from $19.50 to $21.50.

Market prices at other times were not mentioned.

Crystal City Group Fights Zone Plan

Proposal Limiting Structures to 110 Feet Termed Hurt to Project

Approval by the zoning commission of a plan presented by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to limit future structures to 110 feet in height would make "impractical" the $15,000,000 projected Crystal City development, the commission was informed yesterday at a public hearing in the District Building.

James C. Wilkes, counsel for the owners of the Dean tract, Connecticut and Florida Avenues Northwest, site of the proposed development, requested the commission to defer action on the height proposal until after December 26. At that time the promoters of the project are scheduled to appear before the commission to argue for a change in zoning which would permit erection of 130-foot buildings on the tract. The zoning commission indicated after yesterday's hearing they would defer action on the park and planning commission's proposal.

Wilkes stated if the commission approves the petition "this would make the project impractical." The project originally called for buildings as high as 180 feet, but a special act of Congress, passed for the Masonic order permitting a 180-foot building, was interpreted by the corporation counsel as invalid for the promoters of Crystal City.

One spokesman revealed yesterday the commissioners may call for a general public hearing on the height proposal.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the planning body, appeared yesterday at the hearing to support the proposal stating the increased height of the buildings has resulted in expense to the city through street widenings and building of grade separations at congested points in the city.

In another case before the commission, involving a change of zoning along both sides of Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, between Twenty-second and Twentieth Streets, property owners argued pro and con for a proposal which would permit erection of eight-story apartment houses in the neignborhood.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the former Speaker of the House, appeared in favor of the proposal. She said she would not mind if the zoning were so changed as to permit shops. Others in favor of the change included Walter Bastian, who appeared on behalf of Mrs. Sumner Welles; Mrs. Ploulke Dewey and Gen. C. L. Corbin, who represented Miss Mary and Miss Nellie Patten, owners of the old mansion at Twenty-second and Q Streets Northwest.

Opposition to the change of zoning was expressed by the Dupont Circle Citizens Association; Miss Bessie J. Kibbey, 2025 Massachusetts Avenue; Mrs. David M. Lea, 2112 Massachusetts Avenue and Newell W. Ellison, 2232 Massachusetts Avenue. Opponents stated the change would cause deterioration of the neighborhood and would create a traffic problem near Dupont Circle.

The District Zoning Advisory Council is expected to oppose the change in zoning on Massachusetts Avenue. Robert O. Clouser, a member of the three-man council, however, will favor the change. The council approved repeal of the regulation, which permits buildings to rise to a height of 130 feet in the 110-foot height districts.

Engineering Commissioner David McCoach, jr., chairman of the commission, indicated at yesterday's hearing he still favored the 130-foot buildings, stating it might be possible to require the builders to include parking facilities in the taller buildings.

The section of the zoning code, which permits the 130-foot buildings, states buildings may rise to 130 feet in 110-foot districts provided such buildings face or abut a street or streets not less than 110 feet wide between building lines, and provided further, that above the 110-foot level all outside walls are set back 6 inches for each foot of height above this level.

Brookland

The Brookland area will "receive its share" of the new buses and street cars now in order, Riley E. Elgen, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, last night told members of the Brookland Citizens Association. The association held its regular meeting at the Masonic Hall, Twelfth and Monroe Streets Northeast.

Answering the association's request for a crosstown bus, Elgen said that no decision has been reached as yet.

The association reaffirmed its request for a public library in the area following a discussion of the subject. The Rev. Paul Schilling, new pastor of the Brookland Methodist Church, spoke briefly.

Friendship

Traffic lights will be installed at Wisconsin Avenue and Fessenden Street Northwest and at Wisconsin Avenue and Military Road Northwest the Friendship Citizens Association learned last night at its meeting held at the Janney School, Albermale Street and Wisconsin Avenue.

A resolution was adopted requesting a crosstown bus line running from the Northeast to the Northwest.

Several thousand persons patronized church dinners and bazars yesterday and last night, and many others will attend tonight—to aid Christmas charities, church building funds and other worthy causes.

While volunteer church workers were serving 2 tons of turkey to 3,500 persons at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church at Sixteenth Street and Park Road Northwest, Soladity women of St. Martin's Church served turkey in the school hall at 64 T Street Northeast. Both affairs will continue tonight, beginning at 5 p. m.

Over in another part of town, at Third and A Streets Southeast, parishoners of St. Mark's Episcopal Church—once the Pro-Cathedral of Washington—opened their annual bazaar and gobbler dinner, with W. Edward Frasier handling arrangements.

Members of the Chinese Community Church and Occidental supporters from local Protestant churches crowded the parish hall at 1011 L Street Northwest, to buy Chinese dolls, scrolls, jade, chinaware, embroidery and other articles at the annual Chinese bazaar. It continues today and tomorrow, with tea served from 2 to 10 p. m.

Women of Our Lady of Victory Parish served a real Italian dinner with all the trimmings in the parish hall at 4835 Conduit Road Northwest, proceeds to help build a new parochial school. Several members of the Redskins' football team will attend tonight.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Hamline Methodist Church sponsored a bazaar and turkey supper in the hall at Sixteenth and Allison Streets Northwest. It will continue tonight.

Deanwood Civic Association, Formed in 1906, One of Oldest

This is the sixty-seventh article in a series about associations of citizens in the District.

One of the oldest in the District, the Deanwood Civic Association was formed in 1906.

For the last 34 years, it has been serving the community bounded on the north by Division Avenue, on the west by Minnesota Avenue, on the east by Fiftieth Street Northwest, and on the south by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad tracks.

TOLLIVER

Better streets and street lights for the Deanwood neighborhood are the principal aims of the association, Patrick M. Tolliver, president, said yesterday. These and other improvements for the area are discussed at meetings held on the fourth Monday of each month in the Deanwood School, 1035 Whittingham Place Northeast.

Heading the association are President Tolliver, of 4909 Sheriff Road Northeast, and the secretary, Mrs. Josephine Hall, of 801 Forty-sixth Street Northeast. Committee chairmen include C. B. Connley, schools, and B. A. Brown, highways.

Accomplishments of the association last year, according to Mrs. Hall, included successful efforts to have Forty-sixth Street Northeast cut through from J Street to Sheriff Road, to have the curve on Sheriff Road above Forty-ninth Street straightened, and to have traffic police on duty to protect school children at noon.

Last year's drives which have been carried over into this season, involve improved bus service to downtown Washington and better sewerage facilities for the community, she added.

The association will sponsor a card tournament tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Deanwood School in connection with their current membership drive. Other informal meetings are held periodically to "promote the neighborhood spirit in the community."

Speakers from the Federation of Civic Associations, the Department of Education and the Health Department are often featured at meetings of the Deanwood association. The next regular meeting will be held December 23 at 8 p. m.

429 Selects To Bolster 3d Cavalry

Ft. Myer Unit Will Be Boosted To War Strength By Assignment

A total of 429 selectees will be stationed at Fort Myer, Va., in February to boost the Third Cavalry to war strength, it was learned yesterday.

The trainees, many of whom it is expected will be Washingtonians or residents of nearby Maryland and Virginia counties, will replace the Sixteenth Field Artillery troops soon to vacate the historic post for Fort Riley, Kans.

With the shifting of all but one battery of the artillery batalion, Fort Myer will become predominantly a cavalry post with the influx of the large contingent of prospective cavalrymen.

Meanwhile, Fort Meade officials announced four men who entered the Army at the local induction center are among 30 trainees who will be transferred today to the Fort Monroe, Va., Coast Artillery development center.

The Washington area inductees who are ordered to Fort Monroe are Edmund I. Oakes, jr., 6303 Ridgewood Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md.; Richard T. Goodwin, Arlington, Va.; Raymond C. Hance, Laurel, Md., and George S. Shegogue, of Hyattsville, Md.

The Fort Monroe detail raises to 32 the number of Washington area selectees who have received permanent duty assignments. Of 46 additional men now inducted, who are yet to receive marching orders, the larger proportion is expected to be transferred to the Chemical Warfare detachment at Edgewood Arsenal, Md.

The more than 400 trainees to take up stations at nearby Fort Myer in February will be trained as a unit, to be known as the First Squadron, in a prelude to the unit schooling system for all trainees, which will be inaugurated at replacement centers this spring.

The selectees will be trained as a rifle troop, including a light machine gun platoon. As such they will be incorporated as a unit into the Cavalry regiment, whose strength is to be raised to approximately 1,400 officers and men.

Crosstown Bus Line Urged Here

Three Civic Groups Request New Route; Noyes Again to Head 'Oldest Inhabitants'

Washingtonians' demands for a crosstown bus line connecting the Northwest and Northeast areas of the District were voiced last night by three civic associations at their regular meetings.

Requesting a new bus route were the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District, the Brookland Citizens Association and the Friendship Citizens Association.

Oldest Inhabitants

Theodore W. Noyes, editor in chief of the Evening Star was re-elected president of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District for the thirty-third consecutive year at a meeting of the organization held last night at the Old Union Engine House, Nineteenth and H Streets Northwest.

NOYES

John Claggett Proctor was re-elected first vice president. Other vice presidents reelected included Christian Heurich, Charles A. Langley, Fred A. Emery, Joseph I. Keefer, Dr. Hugh M. Smith, John B. Dickman, jr., Elra C. Palmer, Walter E. Allen, Jesse C. Suter, Anthony Denekas, L. E. Breuninger and Charles H. Bates.

John B. Dickman was reelected recording secretary, J. Eliot Wright, assistant recording secretary; James F. Duhamel, corresponding secretary; Harry A. Burr, marshal; John Clagett Poctor, chronicler; and Duhamel and Suter, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Orrin Davy was elected treasurer.

Plans were announced for the seventy-fifth annivesary dinner of the organization to be held at the Raleigh Hotel at 7 p. m. Saturday. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, will be the guest speaker.

Eaton Schools First Principal Lauded at Dedication Rites

MAINTENANCE FUNDS PRESENTED—Mrs. Phillip Sydney Smith, of the Board of Education, presents to Mrs. Lillian Godall, school principal, a check for $130 to help maintain the science room dedicated last night at the Eaton School

Friends, and former colleagues, and those who had entrusted their children to her care last night joined in tribute to Miss Josephine Burke, first principal of John Eaton Elementary School.

In dedicating a science museum, given to the grade school as a memorial to its deceased former head, Board of Education officials and parents of former students at the school praised Miss Burke as "a good and stanch friend."

But there were many other words of commendation for the woman who developed the Eaton School from 1910 to 1927 in the growing Cleveland Park community.

"A great community leader . . . the essence of fairness . . . a guide and philosopher . . . a loyal coworker" were among the words of the following speakers: Miss Bernadette Dore, principal of the Barnard School and one-time Eaton teacher; Henry W. Draper, supervising principal of the first division of public schools; Robert L. Haycock, first assistant superintendent of public schools; Mrs. Mitchell Carroll, former president, John Eaton School and Community Association; Mrs. Helen Essary, president, Women's National Press Club, and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, member of the Board of Education.

After the addresses the speakers and the audience adjourned to the new science museum and viewed the mineral slabs and scientific objects that ranged the room below a plaque bearing Miss Burke's name.

FELLOW WORKERS—"For helping out like this maybe I ought to ask for a salary, huh? Or would it be wrong to pick a bone with the Government?"

By Gerald G. Gross

Neither wind nor rain nor snow, nor even a teasing cat poking its head around a corner, can stay Kess, a handsome German shepherd dog, from the swift completion of his appointed rounds with H. F. Stanton, mailman and pal.

It's been that way for more than two years, Stanton explained yesterday, as he walked his mail route with Kess trotting at his heels.

"How did it start? Oh, I don't know," the postman said. "One day, as I began my rounds, the dog apparently decided to make the route with me and he's been doing it every day since."

Stanton serves mail on the fringe of the Glover Park section, above Mount Also Hospital. Kess' owner, Irwin S. Porter, an architect, lives at 2712 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest, which is just outside Stanton's territory.

When the postman steps off the street car at Wisconsin Avenue and Calvert Street at about 8 o'clock each morning, Kess either is there waiting for him or just up the street preparing to fall in for his self-appointed chore as walking companion.

Up Wisconsin Avenue, down Fulton Street, across Thirty-eighth Street—up, down and away they go. In most instances, Kess goes right up to the door with Postman Stanton. At a few addresses, however, he lags behind on the sidewalk.

Reason: Some householders don't care for dogs on the premises and have expressed themselves to Kess accordingly. He knows the addresses where his presence is unwelcome, and never has to be reminded.

The rounds are repeated in the afternoon, beginning around 1:30 p. m.

Kess is never late, morning or afternoon.

Stanton can't explain how the dog knows the time nor, for that matter, can Kess' master.

"He'll obey every command I give," said Porter, "except when the time comes for him to make the mail run. Then I can't do a thing with him."

Kess is about 5 years old and came to the Porter family several years ago as a gift to Porter's daughter, Katherine.

Diner's Always Right To These Waitresses

Sixteen young ladies, versed in the 1940 technique of appeasing irate restaurant customers, yesterday won diplomas certifying them waitresses par excellence at the convention of the Southeastern Regional Restaurant Convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

In a commencement address the waitresses heard Mrs. Sylvia Willgus, director of the Washington Hostess-Waitress Training School, tell that the technique in serving people varies with the times. She also offered words of advice as to keeping the diners happy.

Diploma winners were Misses Beth Bradshaw, Lottie Lewis, Ruby Rayner, Mary Rascano, Ann Maceta, Mattie Lee Puryear, Margaret Smith, Ruby Darhamina, Evelyn Roberts, Virginia Evelyn Ball, Georgia Mae Haupe, Audrey Nette Zerkel, Evelyn Gittings, Louise Staffer, Ona Roberts, and Pauline Masters.

Firemen Save Woman And Boy, 2

D. C. Man, 67, Dies Of Burns; 4 Families Routed in Other Capital Area Fires

The wife and 2-year-old son of a retired Army officer were rescued from their blazing home in Silver Spring, Md., early yesterday, while in Washington one man died of burns and flames routed four colored families.

Edward White and Harry Barrett, 25-year-old volunteer firemen of the Silver Spring company, carried Mrs. Gerald J. Sullivan and her son, Gerald, jr., to safety from the second story of their home at 811 Pershing Drive.

Lieut. Sullivan, who is head of the Sullivan School, 2138 Wyoming Avenue, led his two daughters, Catherine, 10, and Louise, 9, to safety when the family was awakened by the colored maid after she had been aroused by smoke in the basement.

Mrs. Sullivan and the youngest child were trapped by the flames before they could reach the downstairs.

Firemen battled the blaze for three hours before bringing it under control. Damage was estimated at $6,000 or $7,000.

Emergency Hospital yesterday reported the death of James W. Davis, 67-year-old patient at the Home for Incurables, 3720 Upton Street Northwest. Davis was burned Tuesday when he dropped a match on his clothing while lighting a cigarette.

Also in Washington, firemen responded to a two-alarm blaze at 1802 Fourteenth Street Northwest, where they rescued Mary E. Deans, colored, 33, and her daughter, Mary, 11. Privates J. H. Mattare and J. W. Grannan, No. 23 Engine, brought the mother and daughter down a ladder. The blaze originated in a barber shop on the first floor.

Another two-alarm blaze broke out early yesterday in a frame dwelling, occupied by three colored families, at 621-625 Morton Street Northwest. Leroy Jones, of the 623 address, was awakened by the smoke and sounded the alarm. Nora Daniels aroused her nine brothers and sisters and Theodore Braxton led his wife and ten children to safety.

Dodgers Get Owen for $75,000, 2 Players

Minimize Large-Scale Sale Report

Story Scalpers Had 6,000 CalledFantastic By Espey; One Agent Operates Downtown

By Al Hailey

Reports that a scalping gang has mysteriously obtained a block of 6,000 tickets to the Redskin-Chicago Bears championship game Sunday at Griffith Stadium were strongly denied yesterday by the Redskin management.

Fans who asked that their names be withheld have called Redskin offices insisting that they knew where two big-time scalping organizations were operating in nearby Maryland, and demanding to know how they obtained their tickets.

"These people either have a vivid imagination or are misinformed, for the reports are utterly false," General Manager Jack Espey said, adding:

"It's possible that several people in Maryland did obtain a few tickets for scalping purposes, but such a figure is fantastic."

Post Investigates

Investigation by The Post at the spots reported to be scalping in large numbers failed to reveal any business at all.

But in the District there was concrete evidence of scalping and because of District laws it's all legal.

The agent, who refused to say how many tickets he had, set up headquarters in a downtown drug store selling $2.20 bleacher seats for $5.50 and $3.50 lower stand seats for $6.60.

"So long, pal," was his greeting when asked to pose for a picture with his collection of tickets.

His ticket transactions were made legal by the fact that he had the foresight to obtain a license and is charging the regular 10 per cent Federal tax on all sales.

Espey ventured the opinion that the scalpers obtained what tickets they might have by "plants" in the long lines at Griffith Stadium.

Police Were Active

A large detachment of Metropolitan Police and 20 plainclothes detectives were on hand to try to head off attempts of fans to obtain any large number of tickets by getting into several different lines.

Several hundred persons attempting to buy tickets twice were warned away, Espey said.

"There were no large blocks of tickets sold except to legitimate groups such as the Reciprocity Club, where the members pooled their money and left the purchasing of their tickets in the hands of one man," Espey said. "But with scalpers planting several different purchasers in the lines, it's almost impossible to head them off."

The Redskins have been waging a fight all season to halt the age-old custom of scalping.

Espey announced last night that a crowd of 1,400 Chicago fans have purchased tickets and will leave tomorrow when the Bears entrain for Washington.

The Bears will arrive Saturday morning and workout at Griffith Stadium after the Redskins' morn-

Cubs Give 3 Players For Myers

Jim Gleeson Goes To World Champs; Pirates, Dodger Officials in Huddle

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Atlanta, Dec. 4.—The trading tempo of baseball's big winter meetings reached top speed today with completion of two major deals in the National League and the rumored near-closing of several others.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, continuing their fabulous spending in an effort to build up a pennant winner, acquired the coveted catcher, Mickey Owen, from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Catcher Gus Mancuso, Rookie Pitcher John Pintar and a "large amount" of money, variously estimated at $65,000 or $75,000.

Before this deal was two hours old the world champion Cincinnati Reds who had come to town telling everybody they weren't interested in the trade mart, gave up Billy Myers, their 30-year-old shortstop to the Chicago Cubs for outfielder Jim Gleeson, shortstop Bobby Mattick and an additional player to be named later. No cash was involved.

Trades Confuse

The net effect of these swaps was to confuse everybody at the thirty-ninth annual convention of the minor leagues and make the National League outlook for 1941 a charming uncertainty.

At the first glance it looked like the Dodgers benefitted most in their transaction with David Harum Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon getting the money they like so well, while the Reds and Cubs broke about even.

The money paid in the Owen deal goes on the same side of the Brooklyn ledger as the $150,000 they put out to get Outfielder Joe Medwick from the Cardinals and the $100,000 they gave the impoverished Phillies last month for Pitcher Kirby Higbe.

There were players given in addition to the cash in each instance and in spite of this tremendous outlay President Larry MacPhail, of the Dodgers, still was the most active bargainer in Atlanta tonight.

Hamlin to Pirates?

He was hidden away with President Benswanger and Manager Frank Frisch, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and was known to be striving to get an outfielder, of which the Pirates have seven. Pittsburgh wants a pitcher badly and may come out of the huddle with Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin, who is not one of the Dodgers' chosen people.

Brooklyn wanted Gleeson, but Cincinnati cooked that one. The Reds' one weakness last year was lack of hitting and Gleeson, 27 years old and just finished with his second campaign in the majors, batted .313 in 129 games last season besides playing fine defensive ball.

Myers, although he was the former captain of the Reds and a valued player, slumped to .201 in hitting in 1940 and played in only 90 games. His bad season had cooled off his popularity of the year before among fans in the Rhine-

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

If, as reported, the insanity rate rockets at this season of the year, well, no wonder. Football fans are blowing their toppers trying to justify comparative scores. It is a form of madness that begins as good clean fun and ends up in shock at the results obtained. Figures never lie more than when they're wrapped up in a comparative football score.

POVICH

You'd be surprised—we were—to learn that the best football team in the Nation isn't Minnesota or Stanford or Tennessee. It's a team that, theoretically, can beat Notre Dame by 103 points and Texas A. and M. by 47. There ain't no such team, you say? Oh, yes, there is, but you'd never guess it in a zillion years—unless you are a comparative score addict.

The team that figures to beat Notre Dame by 103 points, according to arithmetic, is—hold your hats—Maryland University. That is the evidence unearthed by Philip C. Harvey, of Hyattsville, Md., who seems to be a violent case. Do you follow him when he writes:

"Dear Mr. Povich: Now that the howl of football experts is fading out for a few days at least, Georgetown is headed for Florida, and the Redskins are on the spot, it seems to be a good time to present the evidence that Maryland has one of the most powerful teams in the country, and could easily wallop the proverbial pants off any team you care to mention. If you don't believe this astounding statement, just look at the evidence—presented in the form of the infallible (?) statistics of comparative scores.

"Maryland defeated Western Maryland, 6 to 0. Western Maryland played a scoreless tie with Bucknell. Therefore, Maryland could beat Bucknell, 6 to 0. Bucknell lost to Temple, 10 to 7. Therefore, the Terp squad could beat Temple, 3 to 0. Temple beat Michigan State, 21 to 19. So Maryland could defeat Michigan State, 5 to 0. On the same basis, here is what the scores predict for some other games:

"Michigan State 28, Purdue 7; so Maryland 18, Purdue 0.
Ohio State 17, Purdue 14; so Maryland 15, Ohio State 0.
Northwestern 6, Ohio State 3; so Maryland 12, Northwestern 0.
Northwestern 27, Wisconsin 7; so Maryland 32, Wisconsin 0
Wisconsin 13, Illinois 6; so Maryland 39, Illinois 0.
Michigan 28, Illinois 0; so Maryland 11, Michigan 0.
California 9, U. C. L. A. 7; so Maryland 54, U. C. L. A. 0.
Texas A. and M 7, U. C. L. A. 0; so Maryland 47, Texas A. and M. 0.
Texas A. and M. 21, T. C. U. 7; so Maryland 61, T. C. U. 0.
North Carolina 21, T. C. U. 7; so Maryland 47, North Carolina 0.
Tulane 14, North Carolina 13; so Maryland 46, Tulane 0.
Boston College 27, Tulane 7; so Maryland 26, Boston College 0.
Tulane 13, Clemson 0; so Maryland 59, Clemson 0.
Clemson 39, Wake Forest 0; so Maryland 98, Wake Forest 0.
Duke 23, Wake Forest 0; so Maryland 75, Duke 0.
Duke 41, Georgia Tech 7; so Maryland 109, Georgia Tech 0.
Notre Dame 28, Georgia Tech 20; so Maryland 103, Notre Dame 0.
Michigan 14, Penn 0; so Maryland 25, Penn 0.
BUT
Penn 51, Maryland 0; so Maryland 76, Maryland 0.

"So you see Maryland is really the power team of the year. Any team that can pile up 103 points on Notre Dame and end up by beating itself by 76 points has really got something. With evidence like this available, what is all this talk about Georgetown?

"There is only one thing that worries me. How would they fare against the Redskins? You figure that one out while I retire to my nice, quiet, padded cell to decide on the dates for next year's Thanksgiving Day games.

Very truly yours."

A Nebraska fan takes violent issue with this department on a recent Rose Bowl paragraph in which we sort of hinted very broadly that the Boston College-Tennessee Sugar Bowl game would be a better attraction than Stanford and Nebraska in the Rose Bowl. He stood up bravely for Nebraska, declaring that the Cornhuskers deserved the Rose Bowl invitation and required no apologies.

"Show me a team," he invited, "that over a long period of years has a better record than Nebraska."

We mentioned that Minnesota would probably qualify, and thought that would hold him. It didn't.

"I knew you would bring up Minnesota," he countered, "and I was waiting for that. Because I happened to play on a Nebraska team in 1908 that nosed out Minnesota, 101 to 0.

Albright Five Spoils Wilson's Debut, 73-47

D. C. Teachers Put Up Good Battle in First Half, Then Tire to Drop College Opener Here

Doc White's Wilson Teachers College courtmen, used to practicing and playing in the two-by-four Wilson gym, graduated to the larger confines of Tech High last night after giving Albright College a good battle in the first half, tired and lost, 73-47.

It was the season's opener for both teams and also the first collegiate game of the season here.

The visitors, with four members of the National Y. M. C. A. championship Reading team in the line-up, were led by Chin Rhoads, who posted 22 points for a good night's work and Dick Shollenberger, who averaged 20 points in 15 freshman games last year. He maintained his average in his varsity debut, with nine field goals and two fouls for 20 points.

Wilson led briefly in the first period but dropped behind at the quarter horn, 16-15. The score was close up to three minutes to play in the first half when Hal Ifshin, star forward of the hosts, left the game via the personal foul route and with him went Wilson's hopes.

Albright upped its margin to 33 to 27 at the half and took a 10-point advantage at the end of the third period, 51 to 41. The Pennsylvanians couldn't miss in the last preiod and scored 18 consecutive points before Wilson could hit the scoring column to put the game out of reach.

Ifshin scored 9 points before leaving the game, but his four fouls undoubtedly cost him scoring honors for Wilson. Ernie Cole and Charlie Clark scored 13 and 10 points, respecitvely, for the Owls, and Laake 8. The hosts caged 15 foul shots in all.

Ray Kent scored 11 points for Albright, and he, Shellenberger and Rhoads accounted for 53 points between them.

Georgetown Squad Elated Over Bowl Bid

Hoyas Resume Drills At Hilltop; Pick an All-Opponent Team

Georgetown University's football squads, still widly enthusiastic over its invitation to compete against Mississippi State in Miami's Orange Bowl on New Year's Day, yesterday resumed practice at the Hilltop.

Eighteen seniors and Coaches Jack Hagerty, Maurice Dubofsky and George Murtagh all were openly elated over Georgetown's first major bowl bid and were confident that the great team of 1940 would bounce back with one of its greatest games against Mississippi State.

"My greatest pleasure," Coach Jack Hagerty beamed prior to yesterday's workout, "is in the knowledge that these fine kids will get one more chance to show the world what a great squad we have. I'm happiest for the seniors, who deserve this chance, but all the other boys deserve their break, too."

The players themselves were grinning broadly over their good fortune and discussing loudly, and optimistically, the game that lies just ahead.

"This is one we've simply got to win," Quarterback Joe McFadden declared, "and all the boys feel the same way. We feel that we've already shown we are a good club, but here's our chance to prove we are a great one."

McFadden, incidentally, has been signally honored by opposing teams within the past two days, having been picked on the first All-Opponent elevens of both Boston College and Temple.

Allen Matuza and Augie Lio were picked along with McFadden on Boston College's first all opponent.

Georgetown players also were saluting All-American Augie Lio, who has made right guard on several first All-American and other second terms. Paramount News is the latest to award Lio and is featuring Augie, along with the other All-Americas, on local screens.

Prior to yesterday's spirited drill in sub-freezing weather the Hoyas gathered and selected their own All-Opponent team.

Gladchuk (Boston College), center.
C. Druis (Temple Univ.), right guard.
Watson (Temple Univ.), right tackle.
Piro (Syracuse University), right end.
O'Rourke (Boston College), Quarterback.
Tomasic (Temple University), fullback.

Asked regarding the outstanding player Georgetown had faced all season, Joe McFadden glared:

"Who, but O'Rourke?" was his rejoinder.

Shaughnessy Named Grid Coach of Year

'Miracle Man' Chosen Over Harry Hopkins; Success Achieved

By Jack Guenther
United Press Sports Writer

New York, Dec. 4.—No matter what rating system you use—Dickinson, Bulbertson or Dun & Bradstreet—the logical coach of the year of 1940 is Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford. Harry Hopkins comes close, true enough, but then he had a one-game schedule and championship material to work with.

Shaughnessy, of course, is the silver-thatched Cinderella boy who won a parole from Chicago when that institution decided to overemphasize education completely. Most of his new neighbors around Palo Alto believed at first his transfer merely was probationary, but now they are thinking of running him for Governor, and not on any Townsend ticket either. Definitely, the Indians' new medicine man has taking ways.

Takes Everything

To date he has taken everything in the area—the coast title, Santa Clara, S. F. U., the Rose Bowl bid and the imagination of the "Life-Begins-at-40" enthusiasts. About all that's left is Alcatraz and at last reports the guard was being doubled there. This may seem pretty much like miracle man stuff, but it really isn't. Shaughnessy always has been that way.

If ever you see him sit down at a piano, don't laugh. He may not know a fortissimo from a riposte nor a crescendo froma reverse parlay, but he wouldn't climb off his stool until he had transposed "Melody in F" into G minor while beating out boogie-woogie with his rhythm hand for emphasis.

He's been doing that sort of thing all his life. He started football that way. There he was, an innocent sophomore without previous experience, standing in Mufti on the sidelines watching Dr. H. L. Williams coach the Minnesota Varsity back in 1911. The closest he's ever been to a pigskin was during a visit to a luggage shop until Doc Williams spotted him and yelled.

It seems the doctor was shy one player, and young Shaughnessy was to fill the gap for a few minutes. He filled it for three years. The records don't report if he ever took time to doff his civvies in favor of a uniform, but they do state that he was first string end in 1911, tackle in 1912 and—just for purposes of confusion, probably—fullback in 1913.

It was the same with basketball.

Boston College Voted Lambert Memorial Trophy

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 4.—Boston College's undefeated and untied football team, today was voted the Lambert Memorial Trophy as the championship college team of the East.

Following in order in the voting of 65 experts were Fordham, Georgetown, Penn, Lafayette, Penn State and Cornell.

Seattle Rainiers Buy Buffalo's Les Scarsella

Seattle, Dec. 4 (AP).—Seattle baseball club officials reported the purchase for an undisclosed sum today of Les Scarsella, former Cincinnati and Boston National League first baseman, from the Buffalo club of the International League.

Hockey Eagles Beat Rivervale Skeeters, 4 to 2

Special Dispatch to The Post

River Vale, N. J., Dec. 4.—The Washington Eagles defeated the River Vale Skeeters here tonight, 4-2, in an exciting Eastern Amateur Hockey League Match.

Ross Knipfel, blond defenseman, and Goalie Gordie Hemming, who played with the Skeeters last season, turned in their best game of the season, thus far, to star with Wingman Paul Courteau.

The Eagles return to Washington this morning for a day's rest before meeting the New York Rovers at Riverside Stadium tomorrow night in a benefit for the Washington Post Christmas Fund.

Paul Courteau, swift skating wingman, sent the Eagles into a one-goal lead in the first period when he broke through after two and a half minutes of play to score on Goalie Paul Lessard unassisted.

Action was fast and furious but superb goalkeeping of both Gordie Hemming, a former Skeeter and

Tom Harmon Says:

By Bob Considine

This is the fourth of a series of interviews in which Tommy Harmon, of Michigan, America's No. 1 gridiron star, tells behind-the-scenes anecdotes about his outstanding games of the 1940 season.

"Frank Reagan is the finest back I ever played against," Tommy Harmon says, when he gets around to talking about the fiery football feud that was built up between Harmon and Reagan on the eve of the Michigan-Penn game.

"But I'm rating him off our 1939 game, not the 1940 game," he adds. "Reagan just had one of those bad days, in our game this year, that nothing could be done about. He could never get started. Of course we had him pretty well covered. We dressed up my room-mate, Marsh Stringer, to look like Reagan in our practice sessions before the game. We had him doing about everything Frank would do, and boy how we piled into him! We used to have to carry Stringer back to our house every night.

"Well, in the game itself, Reagan was slicing off his punts pretty badly. Our boys held him to a net gain of 10 yards for the afternoon. Every fellow has at least one bad day in his system, and that certainly was Reagan's.

"It got so bad after a time that we could hear him arguing with his linesmen. It's none of my business, but that seems like a bad idea to me. A ball runner needs those fellows too much." Experts agreed that the reason for Reagan's inferior punting was that he was trying to keep the ball away from Harmon."

Sixty thousand hysterical fans that day watched Harmon come through as few football players in history ever came through under pressure. Penn unquestionably had stalked him as keenly as Michigan gunned for Reagan. But in the first period Harmon got off a towering punt that hit Dutcher, Penn halfback, on the Penn 4-yard line. Kelto, Michigan tackle, fell on the

Maj. Brown Asks Nonticket Holders To Stay at Home

Superintendent of Police Maj. Ernest W. Brown yesterday requested that persons without tickets to Sunday's championship football game between the Redskins and the Chicago Bears stay away from Griffith Stadium.

In a release to newspapers and radio stations, Maj. Brown said he had received information that no more tickets are available to the contest.

"The tickets already sold will bring a record crowd, and to avoid congestion the public not holding tickets are requested not to come to the vicinity of the stadium, as admissions will not be available," Brown declared. "Their presence will add to the congestion and cause confusion.

"Your cooperation in this matter will be appreciated."

Landis Realizes Wish of Farm Near Mountain

Atlanta, Dec. 4.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, will get his wish tomorrow—a small Georgia farm within sight of the historic mountain for which he was named.

Two years ago, when the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues met in New Orleans, Landis told President Trammell Scott of the Southern Association:

"Some day I would like to retire to a little farm where I can look out and see Kennesaw Mountain."

Scott spoke to Mayor Blair of Marietta, Ga., not far from the mountain where bloody fighting took place in the War Between the States. Blair, in turn, spoke to his city council, and the body arranged to present to Landis a modest tract near Kennesaw Mountain.

So tomorrow, accompanied by Mayor William B. Hartsfield of Atlanta and Maj. Scott, Landis will go to Marietta to receive a deed in a brief ceremony at the City Park.

Commissioner Landis was named for the mountain by his father, a member of the Union forces, who lost his leg in hostilities nearby. The variation between the spelling of the name of the man and the mountain was due to errors in dispatches reaching the North after the battle.

Rovers Meet Eagles Tomorrow, Needy Families to Benefit

Percentage Of Receipts Go to Charity

Post Family Fund To Get 10 Per Cent Of Gross; Game Listed for 8:30 P. M.

Six of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League's first ten leading individual scorers will represent the New York Rover boys tomorrow night when they invade Riverside Stadium for a crucial match with the league leading Washington Eagles at 8:30 o'clock.

A capacity turnout of 4,500 is the prospect for this all-important match, which donates 10 per cent of its gross receipts to The Washington Post's Needy Family Fund.

Frank Dotten and Eddie Dartnell, of the Rovers, are tied for the Eastern League's individual scoring lead with 20 points each, while Washington's Norm Burns not only is second, with 16 points, but also leads the league in goals scored with 13 in statistics compiled through December 1 and released yesterday.

Bob Brownridge, Lude Check, Julian Sawchuck and Bill Tilson also are Rover boys included in the select circle of scorers. Paul Courteau, Russ Rossignol, Jack MacBeth and Len Burrage are bunched in a tie involving several players among the scoring leaders with nine points.

Burrage Leads in Assists

Even as the brilliant Burns leads in goals scored, Len Burrage, canny Eagle defenseman, paces the circuit in assists with eight.

Special musical features; enthusiastic fans equipped with cowbells and other noise-making implements, and surprise numbers to be offered prior to the match and between periods will enliven the competition itself tomorrow night.

The Rover Boys, who have pressed the Eagles in the runner-up position all season, were the first Eastern League team to dent the undefeated record of the Eagles after five consecutive victories this season. The Rovers nosed out Washington with a fine last period rally in New York, 4 to 3, after trailing virtually all the way at Madison Square Garden. In a return match at Riverside a similar last period rally barely fell short as Washington scored, 5 to 4.

The Rovers will bring back one of the most colorful goalies in Eastern League history in Johnny Fischer, an acrobatic net tender who wears a picturesque cap and whose unorthodox tactics do not detract from his efficiency.

Hemming May Play

Gordon Hemming, hard working and popular Washington goalie, is expected to be back on the job, although a late hour shift may find Les Colvin returned to the net. Jack MacBeth, promising young Washington wingman, is expected to have recovered from a muscle separation sufficiently to play.

John McTeer, colorful 223 pound Washington defenseman who recently had his suspension lifted following an altercation with Baltimore's Bob Dill, has rejoined the lineup at a time he is most needed. The big fellow, who is leading the Eastern League in penalties incurred with a total of 41 minutes in solitary confinement, is just about the only able bodied defenseman on the club. Ross Knipfel, Lenn Burrage and Jimmy McCurry are nursing minor ailments.

Tickets for tomorrow night's match are enjoying a brisk sale and are available at Riverside. Reservations may be made through Republic 2950.

100 Attend Langley Basketball Clinic

More than 100 attended the basketball clinic which was held last night at Langley Junior High School gym under the sponsorship of the District of Columbia Recreation Department, of which Richard Tennyson is director.

Coach Fod Cotton, of Catholic University, was the principle speaker and he spoke on defense fundamentals in basketball.

Feature of the clinic was the showing of the film, "Precision Basketball," produced by A. A. Schabinger, director of the Basketball Education Bureau, of Chicago. It was the first showing of the film in Washington, which depicted new changes in basketball. Schabinger flew in from Chicago to be here last night.

Orioles Work Overtime, Beat Rovers, 7-5

Ken Portes, Former Eagle, Adds Last Shot In Extra 10 Minutes

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Dec. 5.—The Baltimore Orioles won a free-scoring Eastern Amateur Hockey League game from the New York Rovers tonight with two goals in a 10-minute extra period.

The New Yorkers went down, 7-5.

Kreller tallied first, unaided, for the Rovers within two minutes of the opening face-off, but the Orioles came back to rack up four points.

New York scored twice in the second, and Baltimore got one. Dutton and Tilson evened the count in the third period in less than four minutes of play.

Partis made his third goal of the game at 2.16 of the overtime, and the Orioles beat off a stubborn Rover offensive. Dyte clinched the game with a long shot from his own territory.

The line-ups:

New York	Positions	Baltimore
Fischer	C.	Cervance
Perins	D.	Dyte
Sawchuck	D.	Moe
Trainor	C.	Piche
Wilson	W.	Ripley
Kreller	W.	Coughlin

Ice Palace Indoor Golf Range to Open Next Week

The new indoor golf driving range at the Ice Palace will be ready for use early next week and Lewis Worsham, Burning Tree professional, will give lessons.

Worsham will play in the Miami Open starting December 12-15, but will be available upon his return.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

For the first time in his 18-year career as University of Maryland basketball coach, Burton Shipley faces the season without a holdover regular for his starting lineup.

By graduation, he lost Pershing Mondorff, Milton Mulitz and Charlie Weidinger. The two players he expected to build his team around, All-Southern Conference forwards George DeWitt and Leon Vannais, quit school, while Mearle DuVall faces a knee operation this month and will be lost for the season.

Thus when the University of Richmond quintet invades for the Terp court opener December 14, the Maryland team that takes the floor will be composed of two senior substitutes from last year at forward and three sophomores at the other positions, one who is without even high school experience.

Twenty Games Carded

Shipley's not crying the blues, but at the sametime he hopes the students and alumni do not expect miracles against a 20-game schedule that includes such basketball powers as Clemson, Penn, Duke, Georgetown, George Washington, North Carolina's conference champs, Navy, Virginia and Washington and Lee, among others.

The starting line-up is fairly big and the boys are all home-State products. Gene Ochsenreiter and Arthur Woodwards, senior forwards, played at Rockville High; Irving Gordy, center, is an Eastern Shore product from the championship Cambridge team, while Joe Bauman, guard, played under Perry Wilkinson at Mount Rainier, and Robert Fetters, who didn't play high school ball, attended Baltimore Poly. Fetters is 6 foot 3 inches, Woodward and Gordy, 6-2; Bauman, 6-1½, and Ochsenreiter, the track man, is 5-11.

For reserves Shipley will depend chiefly on Jim (Pep) Wharton, who just missed earning his letter last year; Leo Mueller, senior football man who is out for basketball for the first time; Ashton Garrett, the third former Rockville High man on the squad; slow but willing Dick McHale, the lone D. C. high school graduate who was on the squad last year but didn't get in a game, and Leib McDonald, a junior from Sparks, Md., who wasn't out for basketball last year. He was cut from the freshman squad the previous season.

In addition George Jarmoska, another football player and the only Pennsylvanian on the squad, who reported Monday, will be carried with the team and the best one of several others who have survived all previous squad cuts.

Shipley has been busy with his duties as trainer to the football team until the first of this week, but Mondorff has been working with the squad and the head coach would slip up to Ritchie Coliseum for a glance at the squad every day.

The first team has possibilities. Gordy may solve the center problem as the good-looking youngster was quite a high school ball player. Ochsenreiter was a 20-point a game man while playing at Rockville, but as a reserve the last two years he hasn't shown much. The coach figures that knowing he is a regular may pull him out of his slump.

Needed Pair From Last Year

With Dewitt and Vannais back, particularly the former, one of the best high school players turned out here in years, Shipley figures he could equal his last year's record of 13 victories against 8 defeats, but without them he'll be lucky to hold his own with intra-State teams, who love to beat Maryland, and will be extremely fortunate to qualify for the Southern Conference tournament.

The boys might round into shape, Shipley will be pleasantly surprised if they do—but he's ready for anything.

December 14, University of Richmond; 17, Johns Hopkins; 18, Clemson (Baltimore); January 8, Pennsylvania (Philadelphia); 11, Duke; 14, Washington and Lee (Lexington); 17, Georgetown; 24, North Carolina; 31, Richmond (Richmond); February 1, Duke (Durham); 3, North Carolina (Chapel Hill); 5, Navy (Annapolis); 6, Virginia (Charlottesville); 8, Washington and Lee; 10, George Washington (Washington); 14, William and Mary; 15, Connecticut; 19, Rutgers; 21, Virginia Poly; 22, Washington College. Sanction Given Harmon to Play In Coast Game

Michigan Star Received $900 for Radio Talk; A. A. U. OK's Playing

By International News Service

Denver, Dec. 4.—Tom Harmon, star halfback of the University of Michigan whose amateur standing was under fire, tonight was assured of his participation in the Shrine's annual East-West charity game at San Francisco.

This assurance was given Harmon by Daniel J. Ferris, of New York, veteran secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, in a long-distance telephone call to Bill Coffman, head of the Shrine game. Ferris said that the East-West game is "such a worthy event" that the A. A. U. is willing to overlook the participation of "Tommy Harmon, the pro."

"We are willing to play along with you," Ferris Coffman. "Of course Harmon's acceptance of $900 for a radio performance is a clear case of capitalizing on his athletic fame and definitely makes him a professional."

Coffman told Ferris:

"Harmon is such a grand fellow, and he wants to give up his Christmas vacation to come to San Francisco and donate his services for the charity game."

Ferris said the A. A. U. would be willing to sanction the playing of the other All-Americans with Harmon.

Harmon, the year's No. 1 football star, obtained $900 for appearing on a recent radio program with Eddie Cantor.

Maryland Grid Situation May Be Settled Soon

2 Well Known Coaches Being Considered for Head-Mentor Job

By the Associated Press

What Maryland University intends to do about its football coaching setup depends upon negotiations now being conducted with two men, both well-known coaches at other institutions.

Sources close to Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university and himself coach of the squad for more than two decades, said today the "mystery" surrounding Maryland's gridiron future resolved into this situation:

If neither of the two "prospects" now being considered is available—no names are being mentioned here because of repercussions from last season's mixup with Harvard's Dick Harlow—Maryland may continue its experimental three-man coaching "board," used this season for the first time.

The Terrapins lost six games, won two and tied one this year, but were improving steadily at the close of the campaign.

Officially and privately, university officials responsible for hiring and firing Maryland coaches expressed belief the triumvirate idea can work satisfactorily if no better solution is found.

At the same time, it was pointed out that some definite and permanent plan was desirable because of Maryland's heavy schedules in 1941 and 1942—including a game with Duke next season and another with Michigan the year following.

Biggest factor in the coaching problem is finding the man to fit in with Maryland's "family-style" football setup, which emphasizes use of Maryland graduates as athletic assistants. It was made clear that Maryland would not take a "big-shot" coach who insists on bringing in his own staff of assistants.

Reports frequently have named Al Woods, now a member of the coaching board, as President Byrd's possible choice for head coach. Responsible sources here held this unlikely, however, not because of any criticism of Woods' ability, but rather on grounds university policy dictates otherwise at the present time.

For this same reason, it was held unlikely that either Jack Faber or Al Heagy, the other "board" members, would be given individual charge of the team. Under an outside coach, if one is named, Woods probably would become second in command.

'Y' Swim Team To Hold Dinner

The Y. M. C. A. 1941 swimming team, termed the best in the Y's history, will hold a dinner meeting tonight at 6:30 p. m. at the G Street building to elect a captain to succeed John Fielder.

Earle Weeks, Amateur Athletic Union swimming chairman; Joseph Aranoff and Dick Newby, also of the A. A. U.; Max Rote, of the Southeast Boys Club, and other well-known sports figures, will be guests. The team's first meet is here December 11, with the Baltimore Knights of Columbus.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Dec. 4.—Sportin' around:

Judge Landis has given Charles Adams until next Tuesday to clear out as owner of the Boston Bees. Adams' unforgivable sin, in Landis' eyes, is that he owns Suffolk Downs race track . . . Don't be too surprised if former Ambassador Joe Kennedy winds up with the team . . . If the Olympics were an example, and they apparently were, relations between North and South America will be set back 20 years by the good will Pan-American Olympics . . . We'd rather see Al Davis have the honk knocked out of him by a superior fighter than see him "barred for life" . . . Have you heard the one about the football game between heaven and hades? Heaven had all the all-Americas who ever lived, but the other place won. It had all the coaches. Oh, you heard it, eh?

CONSIDINE

Speaking of all-Americas, a strictly nonmythical one is now on duty and is playing a little at the Army's air base, Randolph Field. The flying cadet battalion at that Texas warplane nest includes Herb E. Smith, captain and all-America end with Texas A. and M. last year; Right Tackle Howard A. Stoecker, all-America tackle on two Rose Bowl teams while at U. S. C.; Right Guard William A. Sally, who played in the Rose Bowl with Duke and made a number of second all-America teams; Center Tom Cross, a former pro player of merit; Left Guard George Pfeiffer, captain and all-America guard with the 1938 U. C. L. A. squad; Left Tackle Paul Snow, Utah and Philadelphia Eagles tackle and punter; Left End J. R. Loehrke, mentioned on several second teams when he played for Wisconsin; Quarterback Frank Waskowitz, captain and star of the Washington team which played in the Rose Bowl in 1938; Halfbacks Charles Edwards, a triple-threater from the Citadel, and Elmer Tarbox, a high scorer with Texas Tech, both given honorary mentions with all-America teams, and A. W. Schroder, of South Dakota State, who ranked third in scoring in the country last year. The team is coached by Lieut. Claude F. Evans, of Rose Bowl fame, who was assistant coach at California last season. He is flying instructor of his aerial minded girl stars, as well as their coach.

Best rags-to-riches story in years is the ice follies. The original dough for the venture came from the $50 appearances which Oscar Johnson and Eddie Shipstad used to make between periods of hockey games. The first expedition was made in a broken-down bus, and the troupe, which had sewn its own costumes, had to duck out under an infantile paralysis quarantine in Tulsa. Now the thing grosses $1,000,000 a year . . . the 25,000-passenger Orange Bowl, one of the few PWA projects of this kind ever to pay for itself, is so clear of debt now that it will be given over to the Miami high schools. And a new Orange Bowl, two-decked and seating about 60,000, will arise . . . Minnesota trailed in five of its eight games this year and, according to Ted Husing, scored the touchdown that tied the score each time within five plays after the other side had gone ahead.

The sports writers are free-loading a little better this year. Between halves at pro football games this year in New York "Buttons," the midget, served steaming hot beef broth. At some of the Western Conference press boxes they are served cream of tomato soup . . . Polo Grounds regulars are welcoming the expected return of Gabby Hartnett, one of the few "outsiders" they always had a cheer for . . . What a magnificent day Davey O'Brien had, in his swan song! . . . If Joe Louis really fights once a month this coming year Mike Jacobs will have to spring Joe Palooka out of the Army to fight him by the time August comes around . . . Lawson Little, the golf champ, is suing a moving picture company for screening him without his full permission.

Bo Molenda, assistant coach of the football Giants, is at the minor league baseball meeting in Atlanta. He is an American Association umpire, and may become coach of the Detroit Lions . . . The East-West football game at San Francisco has made $600,000 for crippled children during its 14 years of existence . . . Bombs wiped out several English soccer classics this past season . . . Anyone remotely interested in skiing will be helped by Frank Elkins' "The Complete Ski Guide" . . . Dick McCann, of the sports section of the infantile paralysis fund, suggests that Lawson Little and Dick Champman, pro and amateur champions, respectively, play for that charity. McCann will soon announce an important addition to the fund's sports committee.

Charles Pearson Elected Dartmouth Captain

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 4 (AP).—Charles M. Pearson, of Madison, Minn., was unanimously elected captain of the 1941 Dartmouth varsity football team today by the Indians' lettermen.

Pearson has been Dartmouth's first-string center for the past two seasons and was captain of his freshman eleven. He was the regular center on last season's Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League's championship team and its second highest scorer.

D. C. Golfers Slighted as U. S. G. A. Announces Sites of Play

Major Events Located Far From District

Amateur Scheduled For Omaha; Open To Be at Ft. Worth; Publinx on Coast

Official dates and sites of all the five major 1941 golf championships of the U. S. G. A. were announced yesterday—and from the location it means District golfers will have a lot of traveling to do if they wish to keep up with national competition next year.

Two of the tournaments will be played in the Midwest—amateur and intercollegiates; the Open in the Southwest; the public links on the Pacific Coast and the women's in the Northeast.

The U. S. G. A. also announced the annual meeting will be held Saturday, January 11, 1941, in New York. The executive committee approved a recommendation from the women's committee to cut the maximum handicap acceptable for entry to the championship from eight strokes to six.

Details of the Major Tournaments

National Open—Colonial Country Club, Fort Worth, Tex., June 5, 6, 7. Entries close May 13, sectional qualifying rounds, May 26.

National Public Links—Indian Canyon Club, Spokane, Wash., July 14-19. Sectional qualifying rounds, June 27 to June 30. Entries close July 3.

National Intercollegiates — Ohio State U. Club, Columbus, Ohio. June 23-28.

National Amateur—Omaha Field Club, Omaha, Nebr., August 25-30. Entrise close August 1. Sectional qualifying rounds, August 14.

Women's National—The Country Club, Brookline, Mass. Entries close August 18. (Augst 12 for players without cleared handicaps.)

Guenther Lauds Shaughnessy

Shaughnessy never played until the cage squad was about to embark for the Illinois game and somebody failed to show up. The boys remembered how Shaughnessy had started his football career, so they just moved into his class room and grabbed him. When he reached Champagne he wasn't even permitted to practice a few minutes before the game because his mates were afraid he'd be so awkward as to give them away. So he didn't walk out until the starting whistle and then played throughout the game—doing a thoroughly workmanlike job on the Illinois forwards.

Football, Shaughnessy decided, was simple, so he started to coach. He went to Tulane and stayed until 1927, winning 58 and losing 27 games. In 1925 his team was invited to the Rose Bowl—by Stanford, incidentally—but the faculty turned down the bid and Alabama went west instead. From 1927 until 1933 he was at Loyola of the South, where he served apprenticeship in trying to win games without football players until he engaged in a similar task on a much bigger scale at Chicago.

Finally, after years of frustration, he reached Stanford for what looked like another round of the same. He took a group of boys who had won a single game the previous year and with them has won nine straight and developed the first undefeated and united squad on the coast in a number of seasons. He did it rather simply, too. Abandoning power tactics and adapting a system to fast and clever—if not too rugged—material. His case is unique in that his success has come without build-up or ballyhoo.

He was preceded at Stanford by no sudden influx of prep stars and he engaged in no widespread demotion of 1939 regulars. He merely imported a few assistants and borrowed a few plays from a team he used to watch on Sundays during his sentence at Chicago.

Golden Glove Aspirant Gets the Medico's Okay to Fight

Ray Brown, 17, 112-pounder, registers apprehension as Dr. William Greaney, examining physician for the District Boxing Commission, gives him the once-over in the Golden Gloves weighing-in ceremonise last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Ray, of Police Boys' Club No. 5, was one of the 82 successful novice aspirants. Three were turned down. Fights begin tomorrow night at Turner's Arena

Joey Archibald, Billy Banks Fight Dec. 16

Former Featherweight Champion Gets $750 Offer for 8-Rounder

Joey Archibald, former world's featherweight king, yesterday agreed to meet Billy Banks, Washington's up-and-coming young colored fighter, in a headline bout opening the enlarged Turner's Arena Monday night, December 16.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced that Al Weill, Archibald's manager, had agreed to a $750 figure or 30 per cent of the gate, with the stipulation that the match be for eight rounds.

The match marks Banks' first in a headline role, and either will make or break the 19-year-old colored boy as a featured fighter. Banks has won 31 out of 32 matches since quitting the Golden Gloves ranks less than two years ago. He is handled by Billy Edwards, one time fighter, who had the brown-skinned boy since his days as an amateur.

Banks' last fight at the arena saw him win over Tony Novello, of Paterson, N. J., an 8-round semi-windup. Archibald, his title taken away by the N. B. A. and by Baltimore's Harry Jeffra, is a married man these days, and is anxious to prove that he can come back and regain his crown. It was in Washington that he started his road to fame and the world's title.

The new arena will seat some 3,000, and the local promoters are predicting a crowd that large.

9 New Cage Coaches Among High Schools

By Bill Burnett

When Bethesda-Chevy Chase High entertains Hyattsville tomorrow afternoon the scholastic basketball season in this vicinity will be officially opened, and from all appearances there will be almost as large a turnover in coaches as in players.

Nine new cage mentors, as a matter of fact, will put in their appearance during the 1940-41 schedule. The influx will be mainly noticeable in the public high school system, where five teams will take the court under new leadership.

At Calvin Coolidge High, which opened its doors only this fall, the new—and first—coach is Julian Colangelo, last year's teacher at Anacostia. His novice team will play a full-sized schedule, but will not enter interhigh competition until next year.

Coaching changes in the interhigh series proper, which won't get under way until January 7, line up like this:

1—Phil Fox, last year's assistant to Cage Coach Jack Ray at Central, assigned as assitant to Grid Coach Mike Kelley at Eastern this season, takes over Johnny MacBride's head basketball post with the White Tide. MacBride will concentrate his efforts on the machine shop.

2—Dutch Usilaner, assistant to Tech's Artie Wondrack during the football season, fills the basketball job left vacant by Bruce Kessler's transfer to Woodrow Wilson to teach law.

3—Hardy Pierce, who has coached everything else during his career at Central, finally gets the basketball job there because of "Woody" Woodworth's desire to work with the cadets.

4—"Zip" Lehr, newcomer to the local scholastic ranks, takes over Anacostia's cage post, filling Colangelo's shoes.

The only other strictly local shift is "Horse" Holbrook's replacement of Orrel Mitchell at Gonzaga. But Washington-Lee High, over in Arlington, will have a new boss in Elwood Clements, who moves into Buck Richardson's spot; Georgetown Prep will have Augustine Coupe, former C. U. player, in place of Tommy Keating, and Mount Rainier will have Paul Pseiffer, last year's junior varsity mentor, instead of Perry Wilkinson, who retired from the field to sell real estate.

Otherwise the coaching staffs of local high schools remain the same. Herman Littman will continue at Roosevelt, Clifford Moore at Western, and Tony Kupka at Woodrow Wilson in the interhigh group.

82 Novice Class Boxers Are Approved

D. C. Golden Gloves Tournament Opens Tomorrow Night

After four and one-half hours of weighing in and physical examinations, 82 of 85 candidates in the District Golden Gloves' novice class last night were approved for the tournament just ahead as they appeared for final ceremonies at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Dr. William Greany, of the Boxing Commission, rejected three applicants.

Tomorrow night at Joe Turner's Arena at 8 o'clock these untried, but enthusiastic novices will inaugurate 1940-41 Golden Gloves activities with approximately 18 bouts. The tournament will continue on successive Friday nights through January 10, a five week stand.

It was predicted that last night that team honors in the novice class will find four clubs closely bunched, National Training School, St. Mary's of Alexandria, Merrick Club and Police Boys' Club.

Due to the late hour required in completing unfinished business final pairings for tomorrow night were not to be made until this morning.

Coach Reinhart Speaks At Basketball Clinic

George Washington University's coach, Bill Reinhart, was the principal speaker at the Virginia College baseketball clinic last night in the University of Richmond gymnasium.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

The national defense program is drawing heavily on the sport-fishing world for men to man the "little navy" and the Coast Guard. Probably because they are noted for their ability to take it in any kind of weather.

ACKERMAN

Many well known guides and mates will be missing from their docks in the Miami area this winter. David "Skeeter" Burton for one, is in navy blue. Liked everywhere he has captained sport-fishermen from Nova Scotia to Key West. During the past year it was the Neptune, the boat Phil Wylie used as a model in his "Crunch" stories in the Saturday Evening Post.

Gene McNeil, son and mate for Capt. Lloyd McNeil, on Miamian, and Arthur Kasehagen, Capt. Eddie Wall's mate on the Emergency II for many years, have entered as petty officers. It is safe to say however, that these men and the many others who have gone with them, will jump their ratings fast, for on small vessels they are at their very best.

The largest kingfish ever caught in the southern Florida area was taken by Mickey Harrison, trainer for the Corsicana Stable, off the entrance of Bakers Haulover. It weighed 68½ pounds, topping the tournament record by 6 full pounds.

Details of the catch are being examined by Tommy Aitken in order that it may be presented to the nInternational Game Fish Association for acceptance as a new United States coastal record for the species.

Another species of fish, the Lake Huron whitefish, is about to follow many others into that limbo of commercial extinction, and because of the usual reason. Oversight with nets too efficient.

In 1939 the American waters of Lake Huron yielded but 255,000 pounds, 46 per cent of the 1938 catch, which was only a little above an alltime low for this valuable foodfish.

According to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service: "The present decline in Lake Huron whitefish began with the introduction of the disastrously efficient deep trap net in 1929, which coincided with a pronounced upturn in the natural abundance of whitefish.

"The deep trap net, equipped with a cubical lifting crib or pot as great as 50 feet on a side, could be set in waters more than 120 feet in depth, and could be moved readily from place to place in order to fish wherever whitefish were more abundant. Prior to the introduction of these nets, whitefish were taken principally with inshore pound nets and with highly selective gill nets."

Hoyas Open Cage Season In Baltimore

G. U. Meets Loyola Tonight; Only Three Lost From Last Year

A Georgetown University basketball team that is vastly improved over last season, opens its 1940-41 season in Baltimore tonight when Loyola University is met in Loyola's gymnasium at 8:45 o'clock.

Only three players are lost from last season's quintet, namely Capt. John Schmitt, Francis Daly and Allen Matuza. Schmitt and Daly have been lost through graduation, while Matuza, working out for the football team in preparation for the Orange Bowl game against Mississippi State on January 1, definitely has retired from basketball.

Tonight's starting order will find Jim Giebel, formerly a center with St. John's College, of this city and stalwart of last season, pairing off with Jim Kiernan at a forward, and Bill Bornheimer, a 6 foot 4 inch sophomore, jumping center. The guard positions have been entrusted to Buddy O'Grady and the veteran, Irving Rizzi.

George Pajak, Georgetown's high point scorer last season and hero of an upset of Army prior to breaking an arm, will be held in reserve as will Charley Schmidli, Ken Engels and Ray Schmitt, sophomores, and Russ Miller, Don Martin, Dick Dieckelman and Fred Moore.

Coach Elmer Ripley, looking ahead to a good season, yesterday expressed confidence in the ability of his team to make a vastly improved showing over that of last season. Even so, Georgetown supplied two major upsets a year ago by defeating Army at West Point and favored George Washington University in the final game on its schedule.

Women Golfers In Meeting Today

Mrs. W. L. Weible will be installed as president of the District Women's Golf Association in the annual luncheon meeting and installation of officers today at Columbia Country Club. Mrs. Robert A. Lacey, who served in 1939 and 1940, is the retiring president.

More than 200 members of the association are expected to attend. Reports of all outgoing officers will be heard, as well as new business. Several schedule changes and varied methods of tournament play for next season will be discussed.

The luncheon will get underway at 12:30 p. m.

Friendship Eleven Host To Philadelphia Club

Friendship House gridders will entertain the Lamont A. C., of Philadelphia, Saturday night in Ballston Stadium, at 8 p. m. The locals played up there last year and the game completes a home-and-home series.

Ernie Dusek, Bockwinkle Rassle Tonight

Pair Meet at Arena In Feature of Weekly Wrestling Show

Ernie hasn't been seen in these parts for some four months, and his return is good news to followers of the man regarded as the meanest of the four Dusek "Rioteers."

This will be Ernie's first match with Bockwinkle, a lad who already has established himself as a headliner. Bockwinkle holds a victory over two of the Duseks, Emil and Joe.

Emil, incidentally, will wrestle Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, in the semiwindup. Emil held Lou Plummer to a draw last week.

Milo Steinborn, the Memphis "Strong Man," will display his prowess in a battle against Whitey Gorvo, the former Nevada cowhand.

In other bouts Paul Boesch, popular Californian, will seek his eleventh victory in 12 starts in a bout against husky Herbie Freeman, and Tommy Rae, of Boston, will square off against Lou Plummer.

First match is at 8:30 o'clock.

Redskins, Bears Game Should Be Toss-Up, Statistics Show

Teams Meet On Almost Equal Basis

Advantages for One Other's Disadvantage, Figures Show; Skins Hold Scanty Lead

Here we go again with statistics—this time with facts and figures allegedly proving that you might as well toss a coin when it comes to picking the winner of the Redskin-Chicago Bear game.

There's not enough difference between the Eastern and Western champions of the National Football League to get your teeth into.

Despite the fact that the Bears had a corner on the statistics in their 7-3 loss here, leading various characters to say—they outplayed the D. C. lads—the Redskins have a narrow edge in what counts—scoring.

If you like the Redskins to beat the Bears again and win the world's professional football championship, then you'd be interested in this:

In the 11-game season, Washington has had a total statistical advantage by six first downs, 486 yards passing and 70 yards in ground gained both in the air and rushing the ball, but—

The Bears have gained 416 yards more on the ground with their steam-roller running attack, they have five passers to the Redskins' two, 17 of their men are touchdown scorers to the Redskins' 11, but—

Washington has run back punts 91 yards more than Chicago, has been penalized 178 yards less, has thrown 73 more and completed 76 more passes, has scored eight more touchdown passes than George Halas' boys, but—

The Windy City wonders have intercepted nine more passes for 59 more yards than the Indians. They have an average 20 yards per pass completions to the 'Skins' 13. They have ran back kickoffs 57 yards more. They have scored five more touchdowns running. And what's more they have kicked twice as many field goals, but—

Washington has punted 66 times and averaged 45 yards to the Bears' 57 for a 45 average. Washington's individual stars held higher positions in all departments of play but field goals, but—

Whereas the Bears have Ray Nolting, Joe Maniaci, Solly Sherman, Bob Snyder, Bernie Masterson to run that ball from Chicago's "T" formation, the Redskins have only two men who have gained over 200 yards rushing the ball—Dick Todd and Jimmy Johnston. Whereas Sammy Baugh is tops in the passing world, the Bears go in for long heaves and Sid Luckman's 19-yard average gain per completion tops, overshadows Baugh's 12, but—

Both teams are all but even when it comes to the rushing averages. The Redskins have averaged 3.5 yards per run in 397 attempts, while the Bears have averaged 3.6 yards in 494, but—

Ladies' District League: No. 10

Ned Warner's Del Ray, Va., Pin Spillers

(Editor's note: This is the tenth and last of a series devoted to the Ladies' District League. The Ladies' District League is composed of the leading women duck pin bowlers of Washington and vicinity and many of them have high national ranking as recognized by the National Duck Pin Congress, whose headquarters are in Washington.)

CORINNE HAUSER: In Ladies' District League two years; also bowls in two other leagues; current average is 104; always trying and has fine competitive spirit; jolliest member of team and furnishes pep for all.

RITA FEEHAN: Bowls in GAO loop also; first year in Ladies' District League, where her average is 99; is single; considered a coming duckpin star with a bit more seasoning.

MARY ESTEN: Captain of the Del Rays; carries 108 average, which is highest on team; her fifth year in Ladies' District League; is a southpaw, but rolls a straight ball which is hard to understand; also in Ladies' Independent loop; is married; sits and "stews" when she isn't going well and worries for hours after a bad game; loves bowling and it is her major recreation.

ISABELLE RIEFENBERG: Comes of the well-known Kraus family of bowlers; is a top scorer in GAO Mixed League at Convention Hall; has been bowling a number of years and loves the game; steady and dependable; has average of 103.

GERTRUDE RASCH: Of course everyone calls her Trudy; first year in Ladies' District competition; rolls a fast ball; is blonde and single; average at present is 102, which she will increase; experts say she has making of a star.

Hockey Eagles Beat Rivervale Skeeters, 4 to 2

River Vale forged into a slim one-goal lead early in the second period only to be tied by the Washington Eagles. Percy Nichols, veteran Skeeter wingman, tallied in a little less than two minutes on a pass from Bill McGregor and "Swede" Mattson. Three minutes later Eddie May broke through and sent another goal past Hemming. Mattson and McGregor assisted as before.

Big Ross Knipfel, who was slightly injured in last night's match with Boston at Riverside, sent a scorcher waist high into the River Vale net to tie the game up 2-2 at 11:37 from just inside the blue line after taking a pass from Courteau.

Washington	Position	River Vale
Hemming	Goal	Lessard
Burrage	R.D.	Goodfellow
McCury	L.D.	Portland
Rossignol	Center	Mays
Germann	R.W.	Ablett
Courteau	L.W.	Goeffrey

Referee—Bill Chadwick. Linesman—John Wilken.

Second-period scoring—River Vale: Nichols (Mattson, McGregor), 1:48; Eddie May (Mattison, McGregor), 5:09. Washington—Knipfel (Courteau), 11:37. Penalty—Rossignol (minor).

Hoffman Back in Uniform

Bob Hoffman, rookie blocking back suffering from an injured knee, reported for his first taste of work since the game with the New York Giants two weeks ago, but he probably won't be able to play against the Bears.

Coach Ray Flaherty said he was well pleased with the physical and mental fitness of the squad and said that "if they're not in the right frame of mind now they never will be."

Charley Malone and Rookie Back Roy Zimmerman, failed to workout because of bad colds, but they'll be ready Sunday. Andy Farkas, National Football League scoring record holder, will be used late in the game. Andy, who made 11 touchdowns last year for his record, has played but 2½ minutes this season. Until the Giant game the powerful little fullback had been held out to give him time to fully recover from a knee operation performed last September.

Mancuso Traded For Mickey Owen

land City and his loss will be no major blow.

Manager Bill McKechnie said the shortstopping job was "wide open," but added, "You can just figure, though, that Eddie Joost is going to get a lot of consideration. Mattick played in 128 games and batted .218 for the Cubs in his first full year in the National League, but he was an erratic infielder. Some observers foresaw the Reds in a deal to get another shortstop since Joost is a frail youth who never has been able to perform long periods at a time.

The Cubs were elated with their end of the deal, Manager Jim Wilson feeling that Myers would benefit by the change and come back to his 1938 form when he hit .281 and performed marvels afield. If he plugs the Cubs' leak at short, Wilson feels he will have a contending club and with Lou Novikoff coming up, could afford to give up an outfielder.

Owen, central figure in the other deal, is 25 years old, a smart defensive player and the kind of aggressive worker that Manager Leo Durocher likes. He batted .265 last season. Mancuso is a veteran of 11 summers in the National League and got his start in 1930 with the Redbirds.

While the lobbies were buzzing with major league trade gossip, the National Association (minor leagues) held its first official session with business limited to the annual report of President William G. Bramham and appointment of committees.

Bramham took a firm stand against a proposed amendment that would split up $150,000 of the association's quarter of a million dollar reserve fund by distributing it back to the members. He said minor league baseball was now at its peak but that it should be kept financially ready to meet any emergency.

Ey's First 400 Set Is High At Ice Palace

Saylor and Payne Dominate Temple Minor Pin League

The happiest roller at the Ice Palace last night was Elwood Ey, Pohanka Service, who spilled the pins for the first 400 set of his bowling career, rolling a big 401 count for his quintet in the Washington Automotive meet. Ey passed some of his elation on to his teammates for they posted team highs of 585 and 1708. W. S. Burroughs, L. P. Steuart, had a 157 game but Ey got all the applause for his set which also helped take three straight games from McMahon Chevrolet.

TEMPLE MINOR

With the exception of Charley Saylor, I. C. E. quintet of the Temple Minor loop at Northeast Temple who won high individual game for the night with 156, the Eastern Pharmacy lads dominated the mapleways. Buddy Payne was best for his boys, taking high set laurels with a nice 373 set which helped his lads to a 629 game and 1686 set. The 629 game count came within two pins of tying the record for the season.

WILSON HIGH

Under the watchful eye of Jack Talbert of District League fame, and Ice Palace's assistant manager, the Woodrow Wilson High School boys inaugrated their season with R. Spalding and N. Harry, both of the Strikers, rolling a 114 game each with the former taking high set with a 314 count and sparking the team to top pinfalls of 434 and 1,179 for the three-game set. Edward Matthews, Markers, had near high game of 111.

TAKOMA

W. Parks and Buch McDonald, teammates on the Hyde Builders quintet in the Takoma Duckpin Association, rolled high game and set of 156-382, respectively, to lead their boys to team highs of 635-1,836.

INTERIOR

In the Letter Carrier's rolling at Brookland, Adams, Brightwood No. 1, and Fredericks, Central Office were best with the former taking high game with 140 as the latter came through with a 380 set to top the others. The Parcel Post boys carried all the big packages, getting team highs of 588 and 1714 to show the way.

INTERIOR

In the Interior Department's rolling at Penn Recreation the Grazing Secretary team took highs with 610-1755. Charley King, Survey, had high game of 150 with a 387 top set falling to the lot of Tolson Brown, Cartography.

Table Tennis Stars to Play Here Tuesday

Four Will Appear in Exhibition Listed For Heurich Gym

How much better table tennis can be played than the best played in Washington was seen yesterday in the quick veto of a suggestion that the local champion be matched against any one of the four stars who will appear in the exhibition at Heurich's gym next Tuesday night.

It was recommended, for instance, that some local player like Stanley Fields or Bobby Bensinger be permitted to take the other side of the table against Sol Schiff or Lou Pagliaro, featured performers of the quartet coming here.

"Nothing doing," was a local official's retort. "It wouldn't be much of a match in the first place and our local pride and joy might be extremely deflated in the second place.

"You don't see table tennis like that played by Schiff and Pagliaro very often. As a matter of fact, there'll probably be a wide difference between those two and Doug Cartland and Bernie Grimes who will accompany them here. Even though Cartland and Grimes are ranked seventh and ninth, nationally, they can't hold a candle to Paggy and Schiff. And if they can't, when they're only five or six notches below them in the national ratings, imagine what an unranked player would look like."

Incidentally, all four of the visiting stars will play each other during the evening. That means that each will play three matches or six singles matches in all. A doubles match between Schiff and Cartland and Pagliaro and Grimes will round out the program. Both pairs have been playing together for several years.

Tickets continue on sale at Spalding's, American Automobile Association and the Columbia Bowling Alleys.

CAN YOU NAME THESE IMMORTAL SCOTCH FIGURES?

1 A warrior who hid in a cave after losing six campaigns. There he watched a spider finally spin its web after six failures. Taking courage, he gave battle the seventh time—and won. He soon succeeded to the Scottish throne in 1315 at Ayr, 12 miles from Kilmarnock, home of Johnnie Walker. (Answer below.)

2 A leader in his walk of life for 120 years. Often to be seen in the company of kings and well known persons, yet a democratic spirit. All continents praise his rare qualities. In fact, he has been honoured with awards at Sydney, 1880; Paris, 1885; Melbourne, 1881, and at Adelaide, 1887. (Answer below.)

LET'S GET DOWN TO ACTUAL FACTS!
ABOUT THE NEW DRIVES

Oldsmobile's "no clutch" Hydra-Matic Drive has proved such a sensational success that many manufacturers have brought out new devices for 1941—with similar sounding names and with claims to similar advantages. There are new kinds of shifts, new kinds of transmissions, new clutch systems, new controls, new "drives." What these devices really do, in comparison with Hydra-Matic Drive, is shown in the chart below. Check their accomplishments carefully. You'll find that this fact remains:

Just one kind of drive is completely automatic . . . has no clutch pedal at all . . . and never requires any manual shifting, even for quick acceleration. That is the original Hydra-Matic Drive, built and backed by General Motors, introduced by Oldsmobile and now proved by millions of miles of driving in the hands of nearly fifty thousand owners!

Names of the various devices that are compared with Hydra-Matic Drive in the chart below will be gladly furnished upon inquiry at our showrooms. Come in for complete information.

Dulie, $45.40 Shot, Takes Skyline 'Cap at Charles Town

Mrs. Miller's Centerville Runs Second

Royal Business, Favorite, Is Fifth; 4,000 Fans Brave Cold to See Races

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 4.—Dulie, owned by C. M. Feltner, of Berryville, Va., was on the front end of an upset finish in the Skyline Handicap featuring a frigid day at the races for some 4,000 customers. Developing a burst of speed that left his rivals up the stretch, Dulie came on to win by two lengths in the battle over the mile and a sixteenth course.

Mrs. M. Miller's Centerville, carrying 100 pounds, was second, three parts of a length in front of D. Henderson's Lackawanna. Royal Business, returning to this track under her old colors of Col. Ewart Johnston, disappointed the favorite players. She got her head in front and then folded so completely that she finished in fifth position.

Dulie made her backers forget the cold by paying a $45.40 mutuel. The time of 1:46, four-fifths of a second over the track record, proved that his victory was not a fluke.

Here Goes Breaks Track Record

A track record was broken in the fifth race. Mrs. D. A. Buckley's Here Goes moved over the 6½-furlong route in time of 1:19, one-fifth second under the mark set by Royal Cross, one of the five horses behind him today. Beaming Lady was second and Walter Light was third.

Jockey Mike Sarno, who rode Royal Cross, was accepting his first mount of the meeting and it proved his last one for ten days. He was suspended for that period for rough riding and blocking Walter Light, one of the well-played horses in the field.

Jockey Willie Kelly, popular rider on the Maryland half-millers last summer, opened the program with a victory on Last Bet, a $3.60 favorite. The 2-year-old son of Balko came to the wire in front of Bright Ann and Relious. Last Bet was clocked in 0:50 for the 4½ furlongs, a second over the track record held by Irene's Bob.

Double Pays $151.60

A chosen few collected $151.60 on the daily double. The large price was the work of Lucky Ducky, an old mare from River Downs. She drove home in advance of Quick Vine and Mike's Grace to win the second race. Her individual mutuel was $23.20.

Kelley came back to ride his second winner in the third race and put the finishing touches on the double. He climbed aboard Way Out and booted the mare along. Hi-Blaze and Ravenhurst followed the daughter of Sir Walter to the wire. Way Out paid $8.80.

Detroit Owner Confers With Army Officials for Game

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Dec. 4.—Fred Mandel, jr., owner of the Detroit Lions of the National Professional Football League, conferred today with Army officers from Camp Beauregard, La., on the possibility of his club meeting the Green Bay Packers in a game at Baton Rouge, La., on December 28.

Lieut. Col. F. C. Standiford, adjutant of the Thirty-second Division, and Capt. Edward Burlingame, camp recreation director, arrived in Detroit by airplane this morning.

"If they can show me that our expenses will be met I see no reason why the game can't be played," Mandel said. "I understand the Packers are receptive to the proposal and they would have less trouble rounding up their players than we would because many of their boys live in Green Bay. I didn't know that a game was even planned until today."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKY DUCKY, $23.20, $12.00, $5.80; QUICK VINE, $4.20, $3.00; MIKE'S GRACE, $4.00.

LUCKY DUCKY, steadied while following close in pursuit of MIKE'S GRACE, responded when placed to punishment and won going away. QUICK VINE saved ground, came out for racing room and came willingly in final stages. MIKE'S GRACE set good pace, but weakened in final test. MERAB saved ground, but could not better position while strongly handled.

THIRD RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:36. Off 2:37. Winner, Mrs. H. Horst's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAY OUT, $8.80, $4.60, $3.20; HI-BLAZE, $3.80, $3.20; RAVENHURST, $3.40.

WAY OUT forged to front in opening furlong, drew out gradually and was kept to drive to end. HI-BLAZE was hard ridden and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. RAVENHURST was off slowly and improved position under driving tactics to finish gamely. LITTLE DRIFT was in thick of contention early and weakened.

Daily Double, LUCKY DUCKY and WAY OUT, Paid $151.60

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:04½. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. A. A. Gray's ch. f. (4), by Jean Valjean—Cadilla. Trained by W. S. McCabe. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JEAN C., $4.00, $2.80, $2.60; CUSTER, $4.60, $4.00; NETTA WOOD, $5.00.

JEAN C. took lead at once, opened up on CUSTER, but was bearing out while tiring in stretch run. CUSTER was closest to pace and came with good energy in closing test. NETTA WOOD came to outside to move up menacingly and weakened in final sixteenth. MARANDAN ran out in opening quarter and weakened in final half.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:30½. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. D. A. Buckley's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HERE GOES, $3.80, $3.20, $2.40; BEAMING LADY, $5.40, $3.00; WALTER LIGHT, $2.20.

HERE GOES, off in first flight and steadied while racing on inside, came out for racing room leaving backstretch and wore down BEAMING LADY to win easily. BEAMING LADY was hustled early while setting pace and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. WALTER LIGHT lagged in early stages and closed with good energy. ROYAL CROSS saved ground and came with good courage at close.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. The Skyline Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:01½. Off at once. Winner, C. M. Feltner's ch. g. (5), by Dunlin—Julie. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $75; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DULIE, $45.40, $15.00, $8.80; CENTERVILLE, $17.00, $10.80; LACKAWANNA, $14.20.

DULIE was closest to pace of CENTERVILLE early, came to inside when placed to drive and took command to win going away. CENTERVILLE forged to front in the opening furlong, drew clear and continued willingly when displaced. LACKAWANNA, slow to begin, moved up boldly on outside to threaten and tired under punishment in stretch run. IMPERIAL JONES had speed in spots and showed good effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:31½. Off 4:32. Winner, F. J. Mormile's br. g. (4), by Son o' Battle—Georgia W. Trained by M. Thompson. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 2:06.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOUBLE TOUGH, $34.20, $8.60, $5.00; CYNICAL, $3.80, $2.80; SANOMA, $3.20.

DOUBLE TOUGH came through on inside to wear down FRANK H. and get to front and held away thereafter under drive. CYNICAL was well placed from start and came gamely in final test. SANOMA was slow to begin, went to leaders and faltered in final sixteenth. BLUE CYCLONE had early speed and weakened. FRANK H. set pace for half and weakened badly.

Mrs. H. Horst's Way Out, 5-year-old bay daughter of Sir Walter and Bogie Way, is shown winning handily in yesterday's third race at Charles Town, from Hiblaze (No. 4), on the outside, and Ravenhurst (No. 5), both driving hard to overhaul the leader. Way Out was ridden by Jockey Mike Sarno ball and there was Michigan, with the tremendous threat of Harmon, right at Penn's door.

Tom Harmon Calls Reagan 'Finest Back'

Michigan Ace Rates Penn Star Off Game Played in 1939

"I let the first pass from center get past me, like a sap," Harmon recalls, "and so it was now our ball on the 19-yard line. Then we got off a good play, thanks to Evashevski and Westfall." Harmon usually neglects to add that the play was Michigan's famed buck-lateral, of which he was so much a part. Evashevski took the ball from center, gave it to Westfall and Westfall flung a lateral back to Harmon, who had gotten up full speed. Harmon swept out to his right, cut on a dime, and charged over the goal line for Michigan's first touchdown. As usual, he also kicked the extra point, and he took an awful pounding from joyful Michigan players who were clapping him on the back.

Frick Best Lineman

The best lineman I saw all year was Penn's captain, Ray Frick. There is a lot of center!" Harmon enthuses. "He must be the toughest fellow in the world. For Evashevski hit him with one of his best blocks Evvy ever threw—and, believe me, they're blocks! But Frick somehow absorbed it. Frick got knocked into a somersault, but Evvy came up with a bad shoulder."

Harmon started Michigan's second touchdown drive with a dazzling 26-yard zig-zag to midfield in the third period. Westfall bulled his way through Penn's 34, and Harmon swept around end for 14 yards, before Reagan flung him out of bounds. Penn held gallantly, but Michigan was not to be denied. Harmon came rushing around to take the same kind of lateral off which he scored the first down. But this time the Penn team was converging on him. So he stopped dead in his tracks and threw a touchdown pass to his end, Ed Frutig, and kicked the extra point that gave his side a 14-0 victory, and himself a singular triumph over Reagan, the East's leading player.

The papers commented after the game on the "hot words" between Harmon and a Penn tackler who knocked him after he had gone out of bounds on a fourth period run. "It might have looked like I was cussing him," Tommy says, "but all I said was 'hey, grow up, wild you?'" Weary, his uniform half torn off him, Harmon was leading Michigan to another touchdown when the game ended.

Tommy's touchdown gave him a total of 28 for his career on the Wolverine varsity, three short of Red Grange's old Western Conference record, with Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State coming up.

Tomorrow's article deals with Michigan's loss to Minnesota, about which Tommy says, "It still makes me sick to think of losing to a club like that."

Caliente Fire Causes Slight Damage to Plant

Agua Caliente, Mexico, Dec. 4 (AP).—The $2,000,000 Caliente racing plant was endangered today by a fire which caused more alarm than damage.

Evidently started from an overheated stove, the flames were kept in check by a bucket brigade of stable hands until the Tijuana department arrived. Major damage was to feed and harnesses.

Navy Yard Team Drills

All members and any new candidates for the Navy Yard quintet, of the Government league, are requested to be present tonight when first practice of the season will be held at Bolling Field at 8 o'clock.

Mercer Decides To Give Football Back to Students

By the Associated Press

Macon, Ga., Dec. 4.—Mercer University has decided to deemphasize intercollegiate football and put the athletic director's salary on a level with collegiate professors.

The trustees of the Baptist school (enrollment 450-odd) revamped the athletic program yesterday "to give football back to the students."

The new plan stresses student body physical education and puts athletic scholarships under joint control of faculty and trustee committees.

Mercer officials have been seeking to form a new conference for small school athletics in this section. The football team this season won one game, lost seven. The losses included bows to such Dixie behemoths as Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana State.

$100,000,000 In New Issues Are Marketed

Underwriters Clear Decks for Expected Huge U. S. Flotation

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 4.—Wall Street underwriters marketed about $100,000,000 in new corporate and municipal issues today as the financial district cleared decks for an expected huge U. S. Treasury flotation in mid-December and loans for expanding defense industry.

The offerings, bond dealers said, represented the final phase of the current run of new financing which has given the financial district one of its busiest periods in recent years.

The great accumulation of idle funds in banks and other lending institutions helped create active demand for the new issues and to encourage plans for additional loans after the turn of the year.

Dealers said today's offerings met good demand. Dealers reported increased inquiries for underwriting of small and moderate-sized issues, particularly common and preferred stocks, from companies in need of capital to handle defense business financing in that field, it was said, probably would be seen early next year.

The move for expansion of production facilities in steel and other heavy industries was expected to broaden demand for capital.

Heading the latest group of offerings was a new issue of $53,000,000 Boston Edison Co. first mortgage 2¾ per cent bonds, offered by an underwriting syndicate headed by the first Boston Corporataion.

Proceeds were to be used for repaying outstanding 3½ per cent bonds, due 1965.

A $25,000,000 offering of New York State bonds marked the entry of J. P. Morgan & Co., Inc., into routine dealings in new issues of tax-exempt bonds. The bonds were put on the market at prices to yield 0.15 to 1.55 per cent, according to maturity.

Other large offerings were $13,291,000 of Los Angeles Department of Water and Power bonds and $10,000,000 Kansas City, Mo., Water Works refunding bonds.

Chile Suspends Bond Retirement; Will Pay Interest

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 4 (AP).—Chile suspended foreign debt retirement operations today for the time being, but announced she would continue paying interest on outstanding obligations.

A decree suspending government purchases of Chilean bonds in foreign markets directed that $6,000,000 be earmarked for retiring dollar bonds turned over to the treasury for use in reconstruction of southern areas devastated in the 1939 earthquake.

(The Foreign Bondholders Protective Council at New York said latest figures indicated the outstanding dollar indebtedness of Chile held in this country amounted to roughly $176,000,000, comprising national, municipal and government-guaranteed corporate obligations.)

Shipbuilding and Shipping Shares Advance As British Need Grows; General List in Rut

New York, Dec. 4.—British demand for American-built ships gave a boost to shipbuilding and shipping shares today and provided a bright spot of action in an otherwise irresolute stock market. Recurring fractional declines in the majority of issues—most of which were balanced off by rising moves prior to the close—were attributed in the main to individual liquidations of holdings for the purpose of year-end tax accounting.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks remained unchanged at 44. Transactions totaled 651,170 shares compared with 449,200 yesterday.

About one-sixth of the session's volume represented large-scale transfers of Commonwealth & Southern which closed with its price unchanged, although it was 1-16 point off through most of the day.

The final bell found the steel group ahead by virtually the same fractions with which the session started, bringing to a close a series of fluctuations which carried the issues repeatedly above and below the waterline.

Small lifting influences appeared late in the day after Secretary Jesse Jones commented that he considered the British government a good risk and that "this year's volume of Christmas business will shatter all previous records."

Steel shareholders were interested in a report by the magazine Iron Age that the steel industry and its customers were experiencing no "steel shortage" and that it could produce 80,000,000 tons of steel ingots in 1941 with present facilities.

Gainers included New York Shipbuilding, Electric Boat, International Mercantile Marine, American Hawaiian Steamship, Loft, Dupont, United Aircraft, United States Steel, Youngstown, Harvester and Texas Corporation on the offside were Chrysler, Western Union, Eastman and New York Central.

Backward in the Curb, where transactions totaled 157,000 shares compared with 158,000 yesterday, were Aluminum Ltd., Commonwealth Public Service, National Steel Car and Gulf Oil. On the advance were Montgomery Ward "A," American Cyanimid "B," and New York Shipbuilding Founders Shares.

The bond market tugged and hauled both ways today and ended with price changes well scrambled. Selective buying in second grade rails and a scattering of miscellaneous corporates served to keep the Associated Press averages on firm ground. Rails and industrials were unchanged and utilities scored a minor gain.

Continued sluggishness of the stock market was a restraint on general buying activities but low yield liens and United States Governments seemed to be favorably regarded in view of reports from underwriting quarters of a good disposal of the several large new corporate issues placed on the market the last few days.

Fractionally higher at the close were Consolidated Edison 3½s of '48 at 106, Commercial Mackay Debentures at 41½, Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 108¾, Alleghany Corporation stamped 4s of '49 at 80½ and Walworth 4s at 78⅞.

Bonds losing a little ground included Nickel Plate 5½s at 70¼, Western Union 5s of '60 at 76, Delaware & Hudson Refunding 4s at 48 and Chesapeake & Ohio 3½s at 104½.

The United States Government list extended its recent slow rise, several treasuries adding from 2-32ds to 7-32ds of a point.

Chilean dollar bonds were depressed by reports from Santiagothat amortization provisions on the foreign debt would be temporarily suspended. Gains were recorded by Japanese, Australian and Scandinavian groups.

Transactions totaled $8,224,750 face value against $7,491,450 Tuesday.

Big Board Head Sees 2 Years of 'False Prosperity'

San Francisco, Dec. 4 (AP).—Two years of prosperity from the defense program was forecast today by William M. Martin, jr., president of the New York Stock Exchange.

"But it will be false prosperity," he told interviewers, "unless private industry expends more of its money and turns out more products that are needed by the ordinary man in the street."

The war itself, he forecast, either would "end in the next six months or last for several years."

After the war he predicted that despite obstacles in the way better trade relations would be developed between the Americas.

Byers to Expand Alloy Facilities

Pittsburgh, Dec. 4 (AP).—A. M. Byers Co., manufacturer of wrought iron for 76 years, announced today it will expand its facilities to produce alloy steels, including stainless.

The company's Ambridge, Pa., plant will be enlarged to provide space for a melt shop for new electric furnace equipment. Other equipment for heating and rolling alloys already has been installed at the plant and production of the new items will begin within four to six months.

Staple Exchange Orders Inquiry In Zinc Contracts

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Governors of the New York Commodity Exchange at a special meeting today appointed a special committee to investigate the position with respect to open contracts in zinc on the exchange

The reason for the investigation was not disclosed, but from trade sources it was learned that a "rather tight" situation exists with respect to spot supplies of the metal.

Early this week C. Donald Dallas, president of Revere Copper & Brass, Inc., urged curtailment of nondefense usage of zinc, warning that brass fabricators have less than one-half the zinc needed for present requirements. It would require a minimum of six months to develop new supplies of the refined metal, he added.

On the other hand, surveys of the zinc industry made in connection with national defense were reported to indicate supplies ample for both national defense requirements and ordinary industrial needs during 1941.

Transamerica Case To Be Heard Dec. 9

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission announced yesterday that public hearings in the proceeding against Trans-America Corporation would be resumed December 9 at its San Francisco regional office.

The proceeding was begun under the Securities and Exchange Act to determine whether the capital stock of the corporation shoould be suspended or withdrawn because of alleged failure to disclose certain material facts in registering with the S. E. C.

Gas Income Gains 29% In October

D. C. Firm Reports Net of $25,596 During Month

Net income of the Washington Gas Light Co. totaled $25,596 in October, an increase of 29 per cent over the $18,321 reported for the same month last year.

Operating revenues for the month, reported yesterday, were $674,351, an increase of $84,136 over October last year. Operating expenses, including taxes, increased $77,291, amounting to $607,733 this October.

The company's net income for the first ten months this year aggregated $989,448, a gain of $150,899 over the same period last year. Operating revenues totaled $7,514,612, against $6,587,342 in the same 1939 period. Operating expenses, includnig taxes, jumped $846,741 to $6,062,095.

The report showed that gas sales in October increased 18 per cent over the same period last year. The company expended about $181,400 in October and $968,400 in the first ten months for extensions to provide for expanded service requirements.

New Yule Record Seen

Indicatioons point to a record-breaking holiday season, according to C. W. Turner, superintendent of the Washington office of the Railway Express Agency Inc. His prediction, he said yesterday, is based on advices received from representatives of his company at key points throughout the country indicating that Christmas buying may run as much as 15 per cent ahead of last year.

"In practically every line of manufacture," said Mr. Turner, "the retail sales volume in December is almost twice that of any other month. The enormous expansion in the express business during Yuletide plainly reflects that fact. Since almost an endless variety of articles, large and small, move through these channels daily, the stimulating effect of increased public buying will be far reaching. Certainly all of our Washington stores and shops and merchants generally, will profit by it in the near future."

N. A. S. D. Board Meets

In session here yesterday were the board of governors and advisory council of the National Association of Securities Dealers. Officials said that the group discussed the part members will play in financing national defense preparations and the policy of the assoociation in this work.

Also considered was the relation between business and government, especially insofar as the work of the special Securities Acts Committee is concerned. This committee has been discussing possible changes in the securities act with the Securities and Exchange Commission for several months.

The matter of uniform standards for trade practices for the entire country also was to be taken up. This set of over-the-counter standards was to be laid before the board of governors for final action. Representing District No. 11 which includes Washington are B. Howell Griswold, jr., of Baltimore, and James Parker Nolan, of Folger, Nolan & Co., Washington.

Cashiers to Confer

The cashiers' section of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association will hold its regular luncheon meeting today at the Jackson Place Coffee Shop.

Agency Celebrates Record

The Washington Agency of the Mutual Benefit Life of New Jersey held a victory luncheon yesterday at Harvey's to celebrate the fact that on November 28 the agency passed the mark of the total business for 1939. George C. Campbell is agency leader for November, with the firm of Gibson and Scott in second place.

George E. Keneipp, local manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, spoke on Washington's growth and prospects. H. Lawrence Choate, C. L. U., general agent, presided.

London Stocks

London, Dec. 4 (AP).—The stock market closed with prices irregular and trading small. The gilt-edged list reacted slightly around midday and finished below the best levels after initial strength. Oils were firm, with Shell Transport trading featured. Kaffir dividend payers failed to maintain early gains, but other mining groups held firm. Leading industrials recovered in final trading, but secondary issues closed heavy. In the foreign bond section Argentine and Brazilian bonds showed occasional losses of ¼ point, but otherwise bonds were firm.

Curtailed Shipping Service to Gulf Ports Swamped by Waves of Defense Goods

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—War and the southward expansion of United States business are twisting trade routes between the Atlantic seaboard and Gulf Coast ports, a survey disclosed today.

Latest steamship company to suspend or curtail service was the Morgan Line, controlled by the Southern Pacific Co. It announced indefinite suspension of direct coastwise service from Houston and Galveston to Boston, New Bedford and Norfolk.

In the last year three sea carriers have discontinued running a total of 14 ships between the two trading areas.

A Morgan Line official said the load was more than their present equipment could carry. The 13 ships the company ran between those ports, he said, could be operated more efficiently if their routes were compressed. The company has not sold any ships to Great Britain, he added, and such a step was not contemplated.

The official pointed out that since withdrawal of the other three companies, the traffic borne by the Morgan Line jumped considerably. Topping that development were the mountains of goods needed to fill defense orders and helping to tangle shipping schedules. Concerning adding ships to the company's fleet, the official said prices he had seen were far too high. He added the company had not consulted the Interstate Commerce Commission on the move.

Earlier this year Lykes-Coastwise Line and New Tex sold four boats each to British interests to fill out war-lost tonnage.

The Lykes company said there was a possibility service between the Gulf and Eastern seaboard might be resumed but definite plans had not yet been drawn.

Moore-McCormack Lines, which took six ships out of that service and sold them to Brazil, indicated they were concentrating on other territories, especially South American.

"Since inception of the Administration's policy of actively expanding trade with Latin America," a spokesman said, "the line has been building up its service between the United States and Southern ports."

Seamen employed in the coastwise routes, officials said, were absorbed in other trade.

British Hold Marine Risk Rates Steady

2½% Charge Remains Despite Current Heavy Losses

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 4.—Marine underwriters disclosed today the British government had prevented a sharp increase in commercial war risk insurance rates despite current heavy English shipping losses.

The British war risk office insures all cargoes between United States Atlantic Coast ports and the West Coast of the United Kingdom for a flat 2½ per cent.

Commercial interests in the United States and England charge 10 per cent, which has been in effect for months.

A few exporters and importers pay the higher rate, insurance men said, because they fear delay in payment of British policies because of government technicalities and prefer dealing with United States firms with which they are familiar.

Domestic underwriters claimed they were not doing enough business on Europe-bound cargoes to keep in postage stamps, largely because of the British rate. Most insurance business now comes from Far Eastern and South American shipping, they said.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Nearby cotton futures deliveries came within an ace of the season's top marks today in the third consecutive advance. Final prices were 3 to 7 points higher.

Buyers were forced to raise bids to obtain contracts because offerings were limited largely to hedging by a Houston spot interest and light Southern offerings.

Local demand was encouraged by the still tight spot supply situation (because of the cotton held off the market for better prices or going into the Government loan) and rising prices for spot staple in the South. Another firm market at Liverpool was at added prop.

Price-fixing by mills remained a dominant market influence.

Worth Street textile brokers reported industrial goods and sheetings continued to hold a favorable position. With mill backlogs at cheering levels, sellers showed little inclination to lower prices.

Export Tuesday, 16,236 bales; season so far, 800,562. Port receipts, 6,120; port stocks, 3,304,377.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Heavy types of cotton goods and sheetings maintained a strong position today at full asking prices. While print and broadcloths were neglected.

Mills continued to report an improved demand for better grade all-worsted cloth. Activity in wholesale cloak and suit markets subsided somewhat.

A steady influx of orders into the rayon goods market kept volume at a high rate. In the silk market only odd lots of crepe de chine changed hands.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery: Print cloths, 39½, 64x60s, 5.38. 8½, Broadcloths, 37, 100x60, 4.10, 7½, Sheetings, 37, 48x48, 4.00, 6¼@6¾. Combed lawns, 40, 76x72, 9.00, 7.

Bond & Share Head Resigns

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Sidney R. Inch has resigned as president of the Electric Bond & Share Co., but will remain in the big utility system as the head of Ebasco Services, Inc., the Bond & Share subsidiary service organization, it was learned today.

The resignation, informed suorces explained, was aimed to meet objections of the Securities & Exchange Commission against interlocking executive positions in utility holding companies and subsidiary service units.

In line with the shift, C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of Electric Bond & Share, was expected to resign as chairman of Ebasco Services and to assume the presidency of the top company vacated by Inch.

Trustee Is Sought For Barium Steel

Cleveland, Dec. 4 (AP).—Seeking reorganization of Barium Stainless Steel Corporation, of Canton, so that it "could become an important factoor" in the national defense program, three asserted creditors alleged today the company was planning preferential treatment of an $80,000 claim by Sisto Financial Corporation.

The petition was filed in Federal Court by Cold Metal Process Co., of Youngstown, Ohio, which said the Barium Corporation owed it $6,000; Oyler Bros., a Canton, Ohio, partnership consisting of Russel J. and William E. Oyler, which claimed $300, and Manufacturers Rubber & Supply Co., Canton, claiming $300.

The petitioners sought appointment of a trustee.

Commodity Money Declared Success

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP).—Sir Charles Morgan-Webb said today that the commodity standard of money adopted by Great Britain in the emergency of 1931 "succeeded beyond all expectations."

Internal industry was stimulated equally with international commerce, he said, and the result was the close correspondence of the rising capacity to produce wealth with the rising standard of living.

Sir Charles, secretary of the monetary committee of the British House of Commons, addressed 600 delegates and guests at the annual convention of the American Finance Conference, an association of 365 independent automobile discount companies.

Produce Group Organizes New Cooperative

Fruit and Vegetable Organization Formed By Growers, Shippers

By the Associated Press

A group of growers and shippers announced yesterday the organization of a Nation-wide cooperative for the marketing of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The organization will be known as the Cooperative Fruit and Vegetable Association. It has been incorporated under the laws of Florida.

Its incorporating committee included John A. Snively, president, Polk Packing Co., Winterhaven, Fla., citrus growers and distributors; Karl C. King, general manager, King Farms Co., Morrisville, Pa., vegetable growers and shippers and John D. Neff, of J. P. Neff & Son, Staunton, Va., apple growers and distributors.

Any grower, shipper or distributor may become a member of the cooperative, it was said.

The cooperative's secretary, John D. Neff, said its purpose was to help eliminate operating inefficiencies, to stimulate sales through greater unity in promotional efforts, and to oppose obstacles to free marketing such as interstate trade barriers.

Present it Proudly
I. W. HARPER is such superb whiskey because, in making and maturing it, cost is no object. The one, the only guiding principle that controls every precious drop is: Make it as fine as whiskey can be made—regardless of cost. Little wonder, then, that men who know whiskey have a respect, almost a reverence, for The Gold Medal Whiskey. Yes, indeed, present it proudly.

Flynn, Martin To Testify In Vote Probe

Grand Jury Selected To Weigh Suspected Hatch Act Violations

Top-flight Republican and Democratic politicians today are scheduled to begin their appearances before an extraordinary grand jury impaneled by the District Court to investigate suspected violations of the Hatch Act.

Among the first witnesses will be Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committe, and Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts inducted the 23 special grand jurors yesterday, instructing them to inquire into "unlawful and pernicious" practices in the recent national campaign.

"The investigation," said the justice, "is political, in a sense, but not partisan."

Chosen foreman of the grand jury was Edmund J. Flynn, 51-year-old realty broker, 225 Emerson Street Northwest. Before him and his colleagues, witnesses will be questioned by Maurice M. Milligan and Judge Roy D. Williams, special assistants to Attorney General Jackson and Assistant District Attorney William S. Tarver.

Tarver spent yesterday afternoon at the Department of Justice, conferring with Milligan and other prosecutors. Milligan is the United States attorney for the Western District of Missouri and has had much experience exposing machine politics in Kansas City.

Beside Foreman Flynn, the officers of the grand jury are John J. Patterson, jr., 35, 6224 Thirtieth Street Northwest, secretary; Loren Leroy Murray, 31, architectural draftsman, 5931 New Hampshire Avenue Northeast, clerk, and Joseph Thomas Gaier, 34, engineer draftsman, 1835 Third Street Northeast, poll clerk.

Also grand jurors are George Edward Barnhoit, 42, teller, 1409 Lawrence Street Northeast; Brooke V. Beyer, 42, realty man, 3738 Jenifer Street; Mrs. Ruth Hughes Bollinger, 54, housewife, 647 Franklin Street Northeast; Mrs. Ruby Catherine Bishop, 56, housewife, 4120 Fifth Street Northwest.

Also Duncan D. Burroughs, 49, realty man, 3620 Connecticut Avenue Northwest; Roy W. Condit, 57, salesman, 3121 Sixteenth Street Northwest; Mrs. Mary Emma Curtin, 52, housewife, 1739 Thirteenth Street Southeast; Mrs. Nellie Gray Dodson, 48, housewife, 1008 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast; Thomas H. Donohue, 39, power company official.

Also Walter Lee Polts, 27, grocery manager, 1360 Levis Street Northeast; Bennett Gilneberg, 58, retired, 1451 Park Road Northwest; John R. Hightman, 62, retired, 6200 Thirteenth Street Northwest; Welty Clyde Hospital, 59, wire chief, 4568 Conduit Road; Mrs. Bessie Bell Melton, 56, housewife, 15 P Street Northwest.

Also Josephus E. Bandy, 47, telephone company supervisor, 3829 Windom Place Northwest; George Gardner Travers, 50, salesman, 4435 Fessenden Street Northwest; Richard Watt Wheat, 52, salesman, 1443 Madison Street Northwest; Levis N. Dembits, 30, Federal Reserve Board economist, 802 Fern Place Northwest; Charles Penton Laycock, 30, fiscal clerk, 716 Fourth Street Southeast.

Hazen, Young, McCoach to Aid Inaugural

Joseph E. Davies, who is in charge of arrangements for the third term inaugural of President Roosevelt on January 20, yesterday announced the appointment of 14 vice chairmen, including the three District Commissioners.

Headquarters of the inaugural committee will be formally opened at noon today on the fifth floor of the District Building, Davies said.

He named the following as his committee assistants:

Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen, David McCoach, jr., and John Russell Young; Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, American Minister to Norway but now in Washington because of the war.

Also Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Daniel C. Roper, former Minister to Canada; former Commissioner George E. Allen, Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, and Malcolm S. McConihe, Democratic national committeeman.

Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co., was appointed treasurer, and Joseph P. Tumulty, general counsel. Chairman Davies named Alfons B. Landa as his executive assistant, and Earl Godwin as publicity director.

Contract Bridge

This question concerns the play of today's hand. Plan your play so as to make 12 tricks at hearts. You are sitting East as declarer and South opens the king of spades.

Declarer must avoid the loss of two club tricks if he is to win his ambitious six-heart contract. Since it is almost certain South has the club king the only way out is to force him into an end play, and for this purpose the otherwise worthless queen of spades comes in very handy. The king of spades is led, marking the ace in the South hand; declarer trumps with an honor, leads out trumps and takes his three high diamonds. He enters dummy with a low trump and plays the spade queen, throwing off the six of clubs. South must win and lead a club into declarer's ace-queen, or play a spade which will be trumped in the dummy as the club queen is discarded. East makes six hearts, losing one spade trick.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Capt. William F. Santelmann conducts the United States Marine Band Orchestra on Wednesday evening in Barracks Auditorium. Soloist: Earl Schuster, oboe. Program: Overture. "In Autumn" (Grieg), "Symphonic Sketches" (Chadwick), Sonata in D major (Handel). Symphony No. 1 in C minor (Brahms).

Opening the winter season of weekly concerts, the United States Marine Band Orchestra, under the direction of Capt. William F. Santelmann, presented an interesting concert last evening for an audience that nearly crowded Barracks Hall, despite a nipping wind and flurries of snow. The program can be called interesting for the best of all reasons: Departure from routine. It is true that an old and reliable symphony, the Brahms first, was on hand, but it was preceded by revivals of two frequently overlooked compositions and by a new arrangement of a classic.

BROWN

Grieg's lyrical overture, "In Autumn," led the procession. This is one of the loveliest orchestra works from the pen of the composer whose Scottish and Norwegian ancestry gave him a double heritage of folk instincts. The scoring suggests the flaming autumnal foliage as well as the gray tints of the waning year, and the melodies have both wistfulness and cheer. The singing quality of the themes, the primal charm of the overture, derives from the "Autumn Songs" which Grieg utilized as materials for his adroit weaving.

With George Whitefield Chadwick's "Jubilee" we are fairly well acquainted from appraising it at concerts now and then, but its companions in the "Symphonic Sketches" are seldom heard. Capt. Santelmann corrected this injustice by playing the entire suite: the nocturnal and peaceful "Noel" with its vision of the first Christmas, the capricious and mischievous "Hobgoblin" and the lusty "Vagrom Ballad" with its evocation of the hobo jungle. Chadwick had a delightful vein of humor upon which he drew for three of these impressionistic tableaux, and the quirks and pranks of the instrumentation are continually surprising.

The D major sonata of Handel has been heard from the violin strings of Kreisler, Heifetz, Menuhin and Spalding, not to mention scores of other performers, but none had thought of its possibilities for the oboe. This idea did occur to Earl Schuster, a recent enrollee of the Marine Band Orchestra, and his excellent adaptation of the sonata for oboe and accompanying strings was introduced with immediate success. The young musician has done a competent piece of work in the transcription of the piano partition, and his playing of the solo part was skilled, neat and devoid of reed trouble.

Book Details CCC's Defense Contributions

Volume by Corps Chief, James J. McEntee, Published Today

The Civilian Conservation Corps has trained or is in the process of instructing 403,000 young men in crafts useful to the National Defense Program, including 20,000 potential Army cooks and bakers.

These estimates of the corps' contribution to the task of rearming the country are contained in the story of the CCC written by its director, James J. McEntee, for publication today in a book, "Now They Are Men," by the National Home Library Foundation of Washington.

In evident anticipation of the demand for cooks and bakers created by the Army's selective training program, McEntee recommended doubling the cook training program. More than 20,000 cooks have been trained in Army cooking schools and in the CCC camps since the corps was established in 1933, he said.

2,000 Learn to Be Mechanics

In central repair shops, McEntee estimated, 2,000,000 enrollees are now receiving instruction in overhauling trucks, tractors and other mechanical equipment, in addition to the 9,000 who are getting similar training annually in camp garages. Other national defense training, McEntee said, includes instruction in operation of heavy automotive equipment for 72,000 enrollees a year and Red Cross first-aid training for more than 300,000 youths since 1933.

At the same time, McEntee painted a glowing picture of the corps' accomplishment in raising health standards of enrollees to that of the Army. One-quarter of the boys enrolled, he said, are below the minimum acceptable weights for the Army, while three-quarters of them are below weights "the Army regards as desirable."

Purposes Outlined

"After these youths have spent a year in a CCC camp, it is an entirely different story," McEntee wrote. "When they leave the corps to go home, only 4 per cent of them—only one boy in 25—is below the minimum acceptable weights."

The book details each activity of the corps and reviews the reasons for its organization—"save the soil, save the forests and by that process save the young men." It recalls that with little advance notice the Army launched the corps by processing and equipping youths at a rate faster than that for Army and Navy combined during the World War.

In an introduction to the book, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, described the corps as being entitled to inclusion in a family of "permanent" institutions which includes schools and the churches, which "build up the strength and vigor of society."

CHEVY CHASE, D. C.

Facing Historical Fort Reno Park
Highest Elevation in the City

Beautiful 3 and 4 Bedroom Residences.

Special Conveniences:
Within 10 minutes drive from downtown.
Walking distance to city's finest schools.
Convenient to churches, transportation and shopping center.
Restricted and pleasing environment.
Unusual Opportunity Because:
The location and surroundings cannot be duplicated.
These homes were built in the summer months, which is the most economical and safest time to build.
They were completed just before the increase in wages and materials caused by the defense program.
The foregoing advantages and many other features enable the builder to offer the purchaser an opportunity to procure a home in an environment and at a price which cannot be equaled in homes now being built at prevailing and advancing prices.
Drive out Conn. Ave. to Fessenden St.—turn west to 3035-3041 Fessenden St. N.W. Open noon to 8 p. m. daily—10:30 to 6 p. m. Sunday.

WHAT HAVE WE FOR BREAKFAST, MRS. CALLAHAN?
THE USUAL THING, GRAPEFRUIT AND LETTUCE SALAD. YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.... YOU'VE HAD IT DAILY FOR THE PAST EIGHT YEARS!
BUT YOU KNOW, MRS. CALLAHAN, THAT I DESPISE GRAPEFRUIT AND LETTUCE SALAD...
YOU EAT IT—AND LIKE IT!
MINUTES LATER, WATSON DASHES OUT ONTO THE STREET, UNAWARE OF THE MAN OF TOMORROW'S OBSERVATION.
HE BARELY MADE THE STREET CAR! AND IT LOOKED TO ME AS THO THE CONDUCTOR DELIBERATELY SPEEDED UP WHEN HE SAW EUSTACE COMING!

2:00 p. m., WMAL—"Winter of War" is Margaret Culkin Banning's subject on her weekly quarter-hour, It Looks From Here. Mrs. Banning speaks from Duluth.

8:00, WRC—Lord help Daddy, but Snooks is carrying her interior decoration scheme into his proposed Beverly Hills home. And how about a touch of Yiddish to brighten that che-lid, Fanny Brice?

8:30, WJSV—There have been devices whereby those who have lost their vocal chords might speak, but Gilbert Wright, son of the novelist Harold Bell Wright, has discovered a new one which will enable John J. Smith, New York newspaperman, to speak the first words he has uttered in over a year, Strange As It Seems.

9:00, WRC—Comedy is the note Bing Crosby strikes for that cheese company; Cliff Nazarro and Benny Rubin are the comics. Connie Russell joins Bing for the Cole Porter song with which Ethel Merman and little Joan Carroll are sweeping Manhattan—"Let's Be Buddies."

9:35, WMAL—Dr. William Crane Johnstone, whose students and former students at George Washington University are many and admiring, brings his knowledge of the Far East to America's Town Meeting of the Air. "Must America and Japan Clash" is the question and Professor Johnstone's associates are Dr. Brooks Emery, of the Foreign Affairs Council, and Robert Aura Smith of the New York Times.

10:00, WRC—With John Barrymore, Sigrid Gurie and Vince Barnett in the other leads, actor-manager Rudy Vallee presents "The Adventures of a Society Crook."

10:30, WRC—Here's "Let's Be Buddies" again. This time its Rosemary Lane singing it with Tommy Riggs' mythical Betty Lou on Musical Americana.

10:45, WOL—Hans Lange leads the Chicago Symphony Orchestra with Josef Hofmann, the inventor-pianist, as guest artist in Beethoven's Concerto for Piano No. 5.

Strange as it seems, you're going to hear on the radio tonight a talk by a man who lost his power of speech six years ago.

Appropriately enough, it's going to be on John Hix's "Strange As It Seems" program over WJSV and the Columbia network at 8:30 p. m. It's to be a demonstration of a new speech-restoring invention developed by Gilbert Wright, son of the popular novelist, Harold Bell Wright, who's an author and movie scenario writer himself.

It was through Wright's motion picture work that he invented the device which almost perfectly approximated the human voice and which can be used by persons with defective vocal cords.

The speaker will be John J. Smith, 64, who was employed for 31 years on the New York Post and for six years on the New York Sun. Some years ago an operation necessitated the partial removal of Smith's vocal cords. Subsequently all his speech cords were removed and he has been unable to make a sound for the past year.

On the broadcast, he will be the first man to use the Wright device restoring his powers of speech. Assisting in the demonstration will be Dr. James S. Green of the National Hospital for Speech Disorders.

Not only does the machine allow a person without vocal cords to speak, according to Wright, but he will speak with the same accent with which he spoke before he lost his vocal cords.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Fate Rides a Freight — BY MILTON CANIFF

THANKS, HU SHEE!
NOT EXACTLY A DRAWING ROOM... BUT YOU CAN'T HAVE EVERYTHING! HOW DO YOU FEEL, TERRY?
...KINDA HARD TO BREATHE ...I--
SHHH!
SO, MY FRIEND, WE NEAR OUR DESTINATION —AND THE GUERILLA CALLED THE "BLUE TIGER" HAS NOT ATTEMPTED TO WRECK US!
INDEED! I WILL TAKE ONE LAST LOOK OVER THE TRAIN!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

OF COURSE, GOVERNOR, THE LIE-DETECTOR HAS ALREADY PROVED THAT SLIM WORTH TOOK THE BONDS--THIS IS JUST FORMALITY, EH?
THAT'S ALL, MR. LEACH--- MERELY ROUTINE!
NOW, AS YOUR 13TH QUESTION (AND I HOPE YOU'RE NOT SUPERSTITIOUS!) DID YOU STEAL ANYTHING WHILE YOU WERE PAINTING MURALS IN THE MAPLEVILLE BANK?
CERTAINLY NOT!
IF THIS KID GAME IS OVER, I THINK I'LL GO FOR A STROLL!
JUST A MINUTE! --FOR THE FIRST TIME TONIGHT, THE MACHINE INDICATES---
...GUILT! DON'T LET HIM PAST YOU, HIGGINS!
-DALE

DONALD DUCK — BY WALT DISNEY

MICKEY FINN — According to Plans! — BY LANK LEONARD

IT'S TEN O'CLOCK, JOHNNY— THE COMMISSIONER OUGHTA BE CALLING THE INSPECTOR ANY MINUTE NOW!
THERE IT IS!
CALL FOR INSPECTOR KLIPP! INSPECTOR KLIPP!!
IT'S ON THE PHONE AT THE DESK, INSPECTOR!
OKAY!
YOU WANT ME OVER AT YOUR OFFICE RIGHT AWAY, COMMISSIONER?
YES, INSPECTOR! RIGHT AWAY!!

DIXIE DUGAN — Sued for Libel — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

DIXIE IS TO BE SUED FOR LIBEL! SHE ACCUSED REYNALDO RICHO OF HYPNOTIZING DONNA DEBBS INTO MARRYING HIM
TAKE IT EASY! I'M THE ONE ON TRIAL COURT HOUSE
YOU'RE THE ONE SAY--I'M IN THIS JAM JUST AS MUCH AS YOU ARE!!
YOU'RE NOT!! I, ALONE, MADE THE ACCUSATION!
THAT DOESN'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE!-- IF YOU GO TO JAIL I GO TOO!
SHHHH--- SOMEBODY'S COMING
MR. RICHO TO SEE YOU, MISS DUGAN

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — The New Bodyguard — BY FRANK MARTINEK

GEE! WHAT'S IN THIS ENVELOPE? THAT SWELL-LOOKING DAME IN THE EXPENSIVE CAR TOLD ME TO OPEN IT
If you would like easy work at high pay, come at 9 this evening to 707 Cassandra Boulevard.
NOW I MUST CHOOSE OTHER TYPES, PLAIN-LOOKING BUT BRAINY, RUTHLESS. THEY'LL ALL FIT INTO MY NEW SEVENTH COLUMN
GOOD HEAVENS! WHAT BRUTE STRENGTH! I'M GOING TO BREAK MY OWN RULE AND HIRE THIS FREAK AS MY BODYGUARD!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

BUT SUPPOSE YOUR FIANCEE DOES NOT LIKE ME? HOW THEN CAN I WEEN HER AWAY FROM YOU?
WALK PAST HER STATE-ROOM WITH ME — I THINK YOU'LL HEAR THE ANSWER!
A REAL GRAND DUKE, MAMA? AND I'M TO MEET HIM AT DINNER!
YES, LULU! YOU MUST DRESS TO LOOK AS WILLOWY AND EXOTIC AS POSSIBLE!
UGH! HEAP HARD FOR SAW-LOG TO LOOK LIKE WILLOW!
OF COURSE, MY CHILD, YOU MUST DO NOTHING WHICH WOULD GIVE STEPHEN AN EXCUSE TO BREAK YOUR ENGAGEMENT— UNTIL WE FIND OUT THE DUKE'S FINANCIAL STATUS!
NO, MAMA, I WOULDN'T WANT TO MARRY A PAUPER— EVEN A TITLED PAUPER!
DEAR, DEAR! I WONDER IF MY TYPE WOULD APPEAL TO A RUSSIAN!
